THE NEW-YORK HISTORICAL SOCIETY

INDEX TO THE RECORD AND GUIDE.

lowing semi-annual Index of the Con- and Projected Buildings in New York s Counties, as published in THE RECORD DE during the first six months of 1889, und of great value to those of our sub- who have preserved all the issues of this ing that period. The utmost care has n to keep the Index up to the same per- lard which has characterized it in the e pages are given on which all the trans- ealty published in Volume XLIII. can ely be found, and the streets and avenues b-divided that very few references are

For instance, transfers of property on ward appear in twenty-two issues during onths, which in the Index is sub-divided een parts, so that the least possible need be incurred, any transfer being y referring to six pages at the most, it is known between what streets or the property is located. Although many bscribers have used the Index for years, them do not fully understand the com- of the work. We are frequently told of at our readers think they have discov- ich, upon investigation, prove to be errors archer—not of the Index. For instance, urrent number appears the following: et, from Madison to 5th avenue, 49, 846, atter being the pages on which transfers treet may be found. Now, turning to , the average searcher would fail to find referred to, because it does not appear merical order of streets. A close search e item under the head of Park avenue, vo entire blocks, 204.5x920, are conveyed. ex is, therefore, in some cases condemned pposed omission which is really the t evidence of the thoroughness with t has been compiled. Where such an should occasionally seem apparent to criber, he should search the whole page, vill then find the item which is referred Projected Buildings are indexed in a manner, so that it can readily be ascer- n what streets improvements have been Those wishing to keep a file for perma- ference should see that all the numbers plete and have them bound. A suitable can be obtained at the office of THE AND GUIDE, 191 Broadway, corner Dey rice, one dollar.

CONVEYANCES.

—The figures in extra black type—for , 220, under the head of Attorney, from on to Stanton street—denote that the ion on the page given is Leasehold, or a aning for a long term of years. This ex- on is made so that subscribers searching nsfers in fee can at once distinguish the former and the latter without g to the page mentioned.

VOL. XLIII. JANUARY 5, 1889. No. 1,086

The annual number of THE RECORD AND GUIDE, containing the Building Material Market review for 1888, will be published on the 12*th inst. In addition to the usual matter which has made this number indispensable to the trade several special features will be introduced, including full-page illustrations of prominent New York buildings, together with Benner's prediction concerning the business world for the next three years. This number will have a greatly increased circulation, and of this advertisers who wish to reach all those using building material, as well as those engaged in buying, selling, leasing and lending on real estate, should avail themselves. To be well placed advertisers should send in their "copy" as early as possible.*

The regular semi-annual Index to the Conveyances and Projected Buildings, published in THE RECORD AND GUIDE, will be ready on January 19*th. Subscribers desiring copies should send word to this office.*

The course of prices on the Stock Exchange has been not only a puzzle but a disappointment to both bulls and bears. We ought to have had an advancing market after the uncertainty of the Presidential election was over, but, instead, prices took a plunge downward during November. December is usually a bear month. Prices fall off nine years in ten, but the last few weeks of the year 1888 developed a better feeling in the market and some handsome advances were made. Everyone supposed that the New Year would be signalized by a further enhancement in railroad values, but, on the contrary, a depressed feeling has obtained since the opening of the New Year. So far as surface indications go prices should be better in the immediate future as there is an immense traffic, due in great part to our large corn crop; and then, rates have been restored everywhere east of the Mississippi, while in the West and Southwest the officers of the warring corporations have promised to advance rates to a paying basis.

But the financial writers have managed to destroy all confidence in the promises of these Western railroad presidents. They are charged with being a lot of stock gamblers and rascals; but there are few facts in possession of the public to warrant the belief that this particular group of railroad officials are any worse morally than the chief executives of the Eastern or Southern transportation lines. People who have lost their money in Western stocks naturally think the worst of the officers of the companies, the securities of which have behaved so badly during the past year and a-half. The simple fact of the matter is that all the great Western corporations have been overbuilding. They have constructed 25,000 miles of road in three years when 5,000 would have been all-sufficient to supply any immediate demand. This mania for overbuilding shows itself every few years in railroad circles, and is always followed by railroad wars and a period of depression. A check has been given to it for a time, but another craze for building will probably show itself within the next seven years. We constructed 6,400 miles of road in 1888 against 13,000 in 1887. During the present year it is doubtful if we shall build more than 5,000; but, of course, there will be large consumption of iron and steel in replacing old tracks and in furnishing sidings and other betterments.

General business is fairly good, and the only really bad symptoms are the weakness in the iron trade and the doubt about the value of stocks. Real estate is dull, but better than it ordinarily is this time of the year. Dealers expect—and with good reason—that the coming spring would develop an active and higher market in realty, both improved and unimproved. Of course the general financial situation will be more or less affected by the action of President-elect Harrison in the formation of his Cabinet and in his general policy to be outlined in his inaugural address.

The Evening Post, which opposed so bitterly the Arcade road under Broadway, now favors a scheme for an elevated cable system on that thoroughfare. It is backed up by Mr. O. B. Potter and other gentlemen, who have objected to almost every rapid transit scheme suggested. There will, however, be a vigorous opposition to any possible defacement of Broadway by an elevated structure, no matter how ornamental. Yet we may have to come to a point when such a scheme must be tolerated. But the evil day could be postponed for many years if Elm street were widened and extended from the Brooklyn Bridge to the Harlem River and an elevated road built thereupon. Another over the west side Boulevard, connecting with the Ninth Avenue at 59th street, would help postpone the day when any form of elevated rapid transit would be needed on Broadway. In the meantime, what has become of the Arcade road? It has a charter and an organization, and it has enterprising and capable officers. Apparently, there must be some difficulty about raising the money to begin the work.

Mayor Hewitt's eulogistic review of his own career as Mayor of New York is exceedingly well written and very plausible; but it would come with better grace from some other person or public body. If we have ever an organized board of censors, such as "Sir Oracle" has so often suggested, judgments will be given to the public touching the virtues or shortcomings of our chief executive officers. The verdict of the press is one-sided and cannot be fully accepted; but it would be an aid to good judgment if we had some body of censors or critics who would pass judgment upon the conduct of the Judges, Mayors, Governors and Cabinet ministers. Mayor Hewitt did a great deal of good work, and was probably the ablest chief magistrate this city ever had; but he was too brilliant a man for the position. He was cranky, erratic, and, in many respects, impracticable. He was at fault on such important subjects as rapid transit, the widening and extension of Elm street, and the subway question. Had he been in sympathy with the movement the disfiguring electric and telegraph wires on our principal avenues might have been put under ground. We are in hopes that Mayor Grant, while not able to write as brilliant letters and messages as his predecessor, will be able to help along more efficiently than Mr. Hewitt needed public improvements. We propose to think the best of Mayor Grant until such time as his policy is fully developed. We expect he will take care of Tammany Hall, as a matter of course; but his first duty is to the people of New York city. We want more rapid transit—some better means of getting up and down town by vehicular traffic, both on the east and west sides. Mayor Grant ought to help to bring about a consolidation of Brooklyn and New York, without which the metropolis of the Western world will never assume its proper position. There is a splendid future for Mayor Grant if he can realize the possibilties that are immediately before him.

Now that a Republican President has been elected, Democrats in office are disposed to be Civil Service reformers. At a rough estimate there are about 120,000 office holders, who are appointed under some department of the Federal government. Of these probably 80,000 are Democrats—that is, there are Custom House officers, departmental clerks, internal revenue officers and post-office clerks. Their salaries range from $800 per annum to $2,000 per annum. It would be a grievous hardship to these 80,000 Ins to put them out and fill their places with Republican appointees. But the Democratic press and organization has made a shameful record on Civil Service Reform for the past four years. They have insisted Republicans should be turned out and the spoils system fully recognized. President Cleveland tried in vain to keep minor appointments out of politics. But he was overborne and forced to belie his own Civil Service professions. Now that he has been defeated, the Democrats are confronted with their own committance against Civil Service Reform. In view of the record they have made, they cannot object if President-elect Harrison should turn them all out and put Republicans in their places. It is to be hoped, however, he will do nothing of the kind. There is something contemptibly mean in a great party, when it gets into power, making war upon poor clerks and tide-waiters. No civilized government but ours countenances the spoils system. Let us hope that President-elect Harrison will try to emulate President Cleveland in the first years of the latter's administration. The country will be gravely disquieted if the Republicans should be so eager for the spoils as were the Democrats. Of couse no one disputes the right of a new administration to have all the heads of important departments in accord with its policy, but the dismissal of minor clerks and officials with small incomes is beneath the dignity of any great government.

The newspapers are wasting a good deal of space controverting the passages in Governor Hill's message relating to the reform in our electoral laws. It is a foregone conclusion that he will veto any bill which embraces any features of the Australian or English system, nor will he countenance any restriction on the liquor traffic. Before the close of his three years' term of office the result of trials in other States will prove or disprove his objections to the reforms embraced in the Saxton bill. The legislatures of twenty-five States will be in session this winter, and it is safe to predict that in at least twenty of them laws will be enacted embracing some or all of the features of the Australian system. Indeed, three States have such laws now on their statute books. It is universally felt that our institutions are in danger from the profuse use of money corruptly at the polls. Matters are bad enough in large cities, but they are still worse in the rural districts. Many farmers, who pass for respectable, will not go to the polls unless paid to do so.

Governor Hill's message is able, and his heavy vote in this State puts him on the best of possible nominees in 1892. The high license and local option movement may get into disfavor in the years to come. The vote in the State of New York and New Jersey marks the first serious check to this movement, and the reaction may become general, in which case Hill would be the inevitable candidate of the great saloon interests of the country. The strength they exhibited in New York will induce the politicians of both parties to count the great brewing and distilling liquor interests of the nation.

Twelve Months of Real Estate.

The year which has gone by has not been as prosperous to the real estate and building interests of New York city as the year which preceded it. The number and cost of the properties transferred and the buildings projected show an appreciable decrease. The number of real estate transfers was 1,861 less and their cost $40,931,044 less. The largest falling off was in April, when the conveyances showed a decrease of 464 in number and $14,273,448 in amount, while the smallest decrease was in January. The Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards fell off 457 in number and $3,006,904 in amount, though they make about as good a showing as 1886, which cannot be said of the figures for the entire city.

The tables of mortgages show that $26,756,684 less has been loaned on property in 1888 than in 1887, though the number of mortgages is almost as large as in the latter year. That is to say, the average amount loaned on each parcel of property in 1888 was $10,142, while in 1887 it was $11,917. From this it appears that in the latter year an average of about 17½ per cent. more was borrowed on real estate than during the year which has just passed.

In the projected buildings for the year the decrease is the most striking. They show a falling off from 4,385 to 3,076 in number, and from $66,839,980 to $47,142,478 in amount. The greatest decrease was between 59th and 125th streets, west of 8th avenue, and the smallest between 14th and 59th streets.

The figures for December show a decrease in the number and an increase in the amount of the conveyances as compared with the corresponding period in 1887; the mortgages give the opposite result, while the projected buildings show a considerable increase in both items.

*The cost of building was abnormally high in these years.

The conveyances for Kings County are slightly larger in number and considerably less in amount, the decrease in the latter being from $63,661,390 to $56,966,012. The mortgages show a result similar to the conveyances, while the projected buildings are less in number and larger in their estimated cost. The following are the tables:

Our Prophetic Department.

MR. LOOK-AHEAD—As this is the first week of the new year, would it not be well to give the readers of THE RECORD AND GUIDE a forecast as to what the business situation is likely to be, at least up to the close of the crop year?

SIR ORACLE—It almost seems presumptuous to make any statements in view of the many factors, political and industrial, which enter into the situation. I can only give probabilities. Still, every man in business has to lay his plans with reference to the future, and it is quite natural that a business newspaper should give its best judgment to its subscribers and patrons. I confess to being moderately hopeful as to the outlook, but do not think the coming year will be much more profitable to those in business than the past has been.

MR. L.-A.—In view of the audience you address, why not say something about real estate—what seems to you the prospect East and West? Or, perhaps you had better begin with New York city.

SIR O.—I look for a better year than the one just past. There will be a revival of building—indeed it commenced, I think, some three or four months ago—but it will not be on the scale of of 1886 or 1887. During those years we produced more houses than there was a demand for. Some of the builders have had heavy loads to carry, but the surplus houses are now being steadily absorbed. The increase in the plans for new buildings and the larger outlay as will be seen by our tables week by week, as compared with last year, tell the story of the willingness of the average builder to recommence house construction on this island. There is no getting over the fact that the population of New York is steadily and largely increasing. This is shown by the vast additions to our elevated and horse-car passenger traffic. I see that in 1888 the number of passengers was, in round numbers, 377,000,000, an increase of 18,000,000, or 5 per cent. over 1887. The elevated roads carried 45 per cent. of the total number and obtained two-thirds of the increased traffic. These figures show the increase of our population year by year, and accounts for the steady absorption of the surplus houses built in former years. I expect to see quite an improvement in the demand for vacant lots in the 12th, 19th and 22d Wards, and in the region beyond the Harlem.

MR. L.-A.—But will there not be trouble in the centres of population in the West where excessive railroad building unduly stimulated land speculation. Eastern investors have sunk a great deal of money in Western farm and city mortgages. I see it stated that that little State of New Hampshire has $30,000,000 tied up in Western land mortgages. From this one fact we can judge of the enormous sums which have been paid out by Eastern capitalists to help along the "boom" in Western land securities. The State of Kansas is about to pass laws to prevent the collection of interest on land mortgages for three years to come, and other Western States will come to the relief of their farmers and land speculators in the same way. This must create trouble East and West.

SIR O.—I fear you are right. I judge there will be bargains in land purchases for the next two years out West; but the growth of our population is so rapid and our Western railroad system is now so complete that I do not think the trouble will be so very serious. The owners of the farm mortgages in the East will be forced to foreclose these Western properties. Generally, being persons of some means, they can afford to hold them until the land becomes valuable again; but the savings of investors may hereafter find their way into railroad securities which, I judge, will have an advancing tendency during the coming year.

MR. L.-A.—Are you so very sure of that? If the government stops bond purchases it will be a blow to prices some time this spring, for the rates of interest will advance as they did in the summer of 1887, when the 3 per cents. were taken up and cancelled. Then we may have a foreign war this spring, which will affect our markets profoundly.

SIR O.—Yes; those contingencies should be kept in mind, but there are some hopeful indications in connection with the business of the country and the stock market. It really looks as if rates were to be restored in the West, and it is a noticeable fact that the great trunk lines with smaller gross are showing greater net earnings. They have been using their surplus funds for three years past in betterments and improvements. These have been completed; and hence the Pennsylvania Central, the New York Central, the Erie, C., C., C. & I., and the other great lines east of the Mississippi show a gratifying falling off in operating expenses. There is an immense railroad business to be done, because of our great corn, cotton, hay and minor grain crops. The coal roads, we know, are doing well. So will the trunk lines and corn roads; indeed, the corporations east of the Mississippi all promise to do better this coming year than ever before. Our splendid corn and hay crops insure a good animal crop for at least two years. Our supply of hogs and beef is certain; hence provisions will be abundant.

MR. L.-A.—We are to have a change of administration next March. How is that likely to affect business?

SIR O.—Favorably, I hope and believe. The administration will be dominated by Western not Eastern ideas. They will favor silver coinage, and will not be afraid to spend the surplus money in the Treasury in works of internal improvement. President Cleveland is a man without any ideas of his own, and has been dominated by the holders of Democratic theories which were in fashion at the beginning of the century, but are out of date to-day. President-elect Harrison says he is not afraid of the word subsidy, and I am quite sure he will favor the rehabilitation of our commerce, seacoast defenses and internal improvements generally. This will get rid of the dangerous Treasury surplus and will stimulate, healthfully, the material interests of the country. Yes, you may put me down as an optimist as to the business prospects of the nation.

MR. L.-A.—What are the chances of war abroad this spring?

SIR O.—On that point rational prevision is at fault. Any one of three or four groups of persons can precipitate a general conflagration in the Old World. One of these is the Emperor of Germany, the other is the Czar of Russia and his advisers, and then it is possible that, to escape internal trouble, some French ministry might precipitate an international conflict. There will be a real danger when the King of Holland dies, for Germany evidently looks longingly upon the ports and frontage on the German Ocean in possession of that otherwise unattractive country. The splendid colonies of Holland also will be a temptation to Germany, which all over the world is trying, and very successfully, to become the commercial rival of Great Britain. Germany has a sort of claim on Holland, and were she to seize it we might see England joining with France in the war against the German Fatherland. Germany would like, too, to get in possession of Antwerp, in Belgium. In her hands that ancient city would become one of the great ports of the world; but I guess we have talked long enough to tire the patience of the readers of THE RECORD AND GUIDE this week.

The Scramble for Gold.

The Financial Chronicle has always been opposed to the silver coinage policy of the United States; but it has generally held that gold alone does not meet all the requirements of modern commerce as a sole measure of values. It does not often discuss the matter, as its subscribers and patrons belong very largely to bankers and money dealers whose interests are those of the creditor class. People who own gold-bearing bonds and mortgages naturally prefer, as a matter of interest, a currency the value of which is steadily enhancing.

In calling David A. Wells to account for his misuse of statistics in order to prove that demonetization of silver has had little or nothing to do with the great fall in prices which have occurred since 1871, the Chronicle gives some facts about the scramble for gold which is now going on all over the commercial world. It says, in substance, that although there may seem, because of enormous hoards of gold in sight, that there is an abundance of that metal, in truth there is nothing of the sort. The total output of gold is about $90,000,000 per annum. Of this, half is absorbed by the manufacturing industries, and nearly, if not quite, the other half is absorbed by India, China, South America and the other outlying countries. These stocks in bank vaults are therefore collected in spite of the fact that the countries of Europe have in the aggregate had nothing for years to increase or even to repair their currencies with. Take as an illustration the effect this condition has had on the domestic situation in Great Britain. From the year 1858 to 1877 the United Kingdom appears to have needed for its commerce and other uses a new supply of about £86,026,061, or about 430 million dollars. During the eleven years since, instead of gaining anything the country has lost £7,714,169, or about 38½ million dollars, in addition to the amount it has consumed in the arts and manufactures. It is to be remarked, further, that while England was accumulating gold the country was in a healthy, prosperous condition—a prosperity which disappeared as soon as she began to lose it.

What is true of the gold movement of Great Britain is true also in the main of the other nations of Europe. They have large stocks of gold at the chief financial centres; but they have been artificially collected and are artificially retained. The Imperial Bank of Germany drew into her own vaults the increased holdings of that metal by putting a premium on gold and making advances free of interest on shipments to Germany. Millions of dollars are being taken from New York to Berlin and London now, and the movement has been in progress for months, although, as an exchange operation, there is a loss. The Bank of France, too, is keeping a tight hold on its gold; and the same is true of the Bank of Italy. Both institutions give gold in exchange only for small notes. Large stocks of the metal gathered and held as these are cannot be evidence of abundance, but are proof rather of present scarcity mingled with a fear of greater scarcity.

The fire insurance business of New York and the country is in a very bad way. Companies are at war with each other and have been cutting rates and commissions in such a way as to render the whole business unprofitable. The community is not well served by the fire insurance companies. In a rough calculation it will be found that over two dollars are paid out in insurance for every one dollar of loss by fires. This is not a profitable way of doing business for the insured. The cost over losses should not be over 7 per cent., instead of 58 per cent. as now. The fact is, the general government ought to enter into the business of insuring against fires. Our present system stimulates incendiarism and wastes capital. A wise government insurance would reduce losses by incendiary fires two-thirds and would be economical in every way. In the present chaotic condition of fire insurance we expect to see a survival of the strongest companies. The weak ones will go to the wall, and the remaining strong ones will, after the fashion of the times, form gigantic trusts which will tax insurers unduly.

Building Agreement not a Contract.

James T. Hoyt, the writer on Mechanic's Lien Law, has just been rendered an important decision by Judge Miles Beach in the Supreme Court.

The action was brought by David Miller to foreclose a lien under Statute 343, Laws of 1885. The defendant and owner, Sarah F. Mead, had a building agreement with Edward Grippentrog providing for the completion of the houses, an advance to him of $21,000, and a subsequent conveyance to him of the premises. Under prior enactments for New York city, the courts have held that such a lien could not be enforced against the owner, under the theory that nothing was due the immediate contractor, who had failed to perform, from the owner.

Judge Beach shows that the changes in the present Statute were intended to meet the facts of such cases and that the consent of the owner, as evidenced by her agreement with the immediate contractor, is sufficient, and, in his opinion sustaining the lien, says:

There was no contract between defendant Mead and Grippentrog, in the sense of that word, used in section 1 of the act. What the word there means is a contract between them to build houses for an agreed price, the title to the property to be in no way affected. The agreement here is far different. It certainly provides for the erection of houses, but not for the defendant, Mead, as owner, but for Grippentrog himself, who is to take title upon performance of the agreement. This must be a correct construction, else the legislative intention to pass a remedial and protective Statute was knowingly turned into an enactment to facilitate imposition upon and loss to those deemed worthy of protection.

The Master Builders' Annual Convention.

The arrangements for the third annual convention of the National Master Builders' Association, to be held in Philadelphia on February 12th, 13th and 14th, have been completed. The convention will hold its sessions, of which there will be two daily, in the lecture room of the Franklin Institute, on 7th street, near Chestnut. The chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, David A. Woelpper, and John S. Stevens, President of the Master Builders' Exchange of Philadelphia, as well as of the National Association, have made great preparations for the event. Over five hundred builders, to say nothing of many persons interested in matters pertaining to building, are expected to be present. Nearly every State in the Union will be represented. The visiting delegates are to be quartered at the Continental Hotel and the Girard House, where ample accommodations for their comfort have been secured.

The convention will be called to order at 10 A. M., on February 12th, when President Stevens will deliver an address of welcome. This will be followed by the reports of the officers of the association and routine business. During the numerous sessions of the convention the various committees will report on subjects of much interest. Among those to be specially considered are "Uniform Contracts," "Lien Law," and "Rules and Conditions for Estimating Work." The subjects "Furnishing Sureties on Builders' Estimates and Contracts," "Uniformity of Measurement" and "Uniform Size of Brick" are also to be considered. Of special interest to journeymen as well as employers will be the reports of the committees on "Permanent Arbitration" and the "Apprenticeship System." The public as well as builders and contractors will be interested in the report of the "Committee on Insurance Against Accidents to the Public."

Prominent architects, builders and contractors from all sections of the country will make addresses, and as many of them are the brightest men of the day in their line, what they will have to say will create widespread attention. Among them is Mr. James John, of Chicago, who is to present a paper on "Plastering and Stucco Work." Mr. Samuel J. Cresswell, of Philadelphia, will speak on "Iron Work, Past and Present," and John J. Tucker, of this city, on "Masonry." Secretary William H. Sayward, of Boston, is to talk about "Builders' Exchanges, Their Opportunities and Advantages." Then Col. Richard T. Auchmuty, of this city, the founder of the Mechanical Trade Schools, will speak on the subject of "Trade Training," and Professor George Eastburn, M. A., of Philadelphia, on the "Metric System." O. P. Hatfield, of this city, Treasurer of the American Institute of Architects, will deliver an address on the "Relation of the Architect to the Builder."

After the close of the convention on Thursday evening, February 14th, a grand banquet will be given to the delegates and builders generally. It will be held in Horticultural Hall. Covers will be laid for 600 guests. Taken altogether, this will be by far the largest as well as the most important convention ever held by the association.

In this connection it is of interest to note that the Master Builders' Association of Philadelphia have just purchased the old German Society and Gas office building on 7th street, opposite the Franklin Institute, where the convention is to be held. It is 74x104, and three stories high. The price has not been made public. They propose to convert this structure into a first-class exchange, with every modern improvement, and erect in its rear a four-story fire-proof office building, 64x74, which will be connected with the present building. Many of the offices have already been applied for by architects and builders.

On the first floor of the present building it is proposed to establish an exhibition, in which will be displayed building materials, machinery, models, architectural designs, etc. As it will be necessary to pass through this hall to get to any part of either building, it monopolizing the entire floor, it is proposed to make the exhibits as attractive as possible, not only to builders but the public. On the second floor will be the exchange proper. It will be 74x41, and will be replete with all conveniences. The basement will be devoted to a trade school. Novices are here to be instructed in the building trades and given an opportunity, under the direction of the exchange, to become efficient workmen, with all the facilities for obtaining remunerative employment their skill and efficiency can command. A building committee, of which Stacy Reeves is chairman, has been appointed to carry out these improvements, which, it is estimated, will cost about $60,000. The contracts have not yet been let.

New Companies.

The Rosedale Land and Lumber Company has been incorporated by M. Dudley Bean, John O'Donnell and W. S. Call, for purchasing, leasing, selling, etc., real estate in New York and elsewhere. Capital $50,000.

Articles of incorporation have been filed for the Millinery Building and Loan Association by W. H. Carpenter, Jacob Appel, Henry Hofheimer and E. Frank Haven to accumulate a fund to aid members to acquire and improve real estate.

The Union Mutual Building Loan and Savings Association of the City of New York has been incorporated by Peter J. Doolan, P. E. De Mille, Moritz Schiff, Manton L. Miller, John Quinn, Robert Auld and Samuel Solinger, for the purchase and improvement of real estate for its members.

An Improving Up-Town Section.

A GREAT INSTITUTION'S PURCHASES—NEW TRANSVAAL AND CROSS-TOWN ROADS CONTEMPLATED.

The rapid growth of some of the neighborhoods in the upper part of the city during recent years is nowhere better exemplified than in the region around the 135th street elevated road station at 8th avenue. It is scarcely more than two years since that the property thereabouts was to a large extent vacant, whereas now it is covered with several rows of costly buildings.

The most important factor in the development of this section was the immense purchases of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. For some time past this great institution has quietly bought up large blocks of vacant property in various parts of the city, and resold them for improvement. These purchases have usually been made in desirable localities. In some instances they have purchased entire blocks, as was the case north of 135th street. The files of THE RECORD AND GUIDE show that the transfers of property to them amounted to nearly $4,000,000 between 135th and 142d streets in about a year's time. Their first purchase was that of the entire block, with the exception of five lots, bounded by 7th and 8th avenues 135th and 136th streets. This was transferred to them in June, 1887, for the sum of $600,000, the five lots subsequently being sold for $62,500. Simultaneously they took title to the block just north, bounded by 7th and 8th avenues, 136th and 137th streets, for $425,000. Both these parcels were held for many years by the late Richard Arnold, of the well-known dry goods firm of Arnold, Constable & Co., and were transferred by Mr. Fred Constable et al., as trustees for the Arnold estate, to parties representing the Equitable Life Assurance Society. In May last that institution further purchased from Mrs. Mary G. Pinkney the three blocks bounded by 137th and 140th streets, 7th and 8th avenues, for $1,500,000. They subsequently bought fifteen lots on 141st and 142d streets, west of 7th avenue, in conjunction with some West End avenue property between 69th and 70th streets, for a consideration of $300,000; and their latest purchase, again from the Arnold estate, comprises 102 lots on 6th avenue, between and on 135th and 137th streets, for $1,000,000.

Having gradually acquired these properties the Society has, during the process, disposed of the two block fronts on 8th avenue, between 136th and 138th streets, comprising sixteen lots, for $245,000, the lower front bringing $120,000 and the upper one $125,000. They also sold twenty-two lots on the north side of 135th street, east of 8th avenue, to Builders McManus & McKee, and the block on the east side of 8th avenue, between 135th and 136th streets, to P. H. McManus, the price paid for the street lots being $10,000 each, and for the avenue front $120,000. Mr. McManus has improved the lots purchased by him by erecting handsome flats on the street, and by covering the avenue front with eight first-class apartment buildings, with stores, from plans by Architect J. E. Terhune. The latter are named the "Shenandoah," after the well-known river in the valley of Shenandoah, Virginia. These flats are of special design. They have wide entrances, the halls being tiled and wainscoted in hardwood. The first floors contain single stores, the two corners having in addition a spacious hall room on the second floor, evidently intended to meet the requirements of some of the many societies and orders which have sprung up in Harlem with the vast increase in the population up-town in recent years. The suites vary in the number of their rooms and in size. The corners have three families per floor, and the inside buildings two families. Every suite is heated and trimmed in hardwoods. The arrangement of the plan gives good light and ventilation to the rooms, and various improvements are introduced. The fronts are of Euclid stone, rock faced, and brick and terra cotta. The construction is sound and substantial in mason work, bricklaying, plastering, plumbing, etc., and the houses are certainly desirable investment property. They vary in size, the corners being 25x76 each, two 25x75 each, and the balance 25x65 each. By this arrangement and by the adoption of a court-yard between each house, much superior light and ventilation is obtained than in the ordinary building. The idea of naming the flat after an important river is not a new one. Builder McManus had previously named a block front of buildings which he erected on the west side of 8th avenue, between 119th and 120th streets, after the historic "Potomac." The latter property he sold to Mr. Albert Baumann for over a quarter of a million of dollars, the buildings being purchased as an investment.

A further glance at the files of THE RECORD AND GUIDE shows to what extent building has taken place on Manhattan Island north of 125th street for some years past. In 1885 the projected buildings in that region numbered 422; in 1886, 515; in 1887, 515; and in 1888, 335. Their cost, in the same years, was $4,095,139 in 1885, $6,177,080 in 1886, $7,985,060 in 1887, and $4,941,780 in 1888. The decrease during the past year is generally due to the same causes which affected the down-town districts.

Glancing at the figures of projected buildings between 110th and 125th streets, between 5th and 8th avenues, the number and cost in 1885 was 100 and $1,805,502 respectively; in 1886, 197 and $2,774,950; in 1887, 240 and $3,881,500, and in 1888, 99 and $1,618,850. Mayor Chapin, of Brooklyn, in a recent letter, stated that the principal increase in New York's population in recent years has been in the very sections described above.

TH AVENUE, BET. 135TH AND 136TH STREETS. THE SHENANDOAH FLATS. P. H. McMANUS, Builder.

It seems that while the Equitable Life people have recognized the advantage of purchases between 135th and 142d streets, other capitalists have also entered the lists in that locality. Two of the most recent of these are Messrs. Maurice B. Flynn and Chas. H. Field, of Guy C. Hotchkiss & Co., the well-known contractors, who purchased one of the McManus houses on 135th street, No. 235, for $45,000. It is a five-story flat, 25x87x100.

And this leads to the reflection that Mr. Flynn, who is not unacquainted with city affairs, may have some belief in, or knowledge of, the success of the "St. Nicholas Avenue and Cross-town Railway Company." This corporation has received the consent of property-owners along their route, and they propose shortly to put up the franchise at auction. It will run from the Harlem River along 129th street to 4th avenue, then along 135th street—which is a wide street—to St. Nicholas avenue, then down to 129th street and along to the North River to the Fort Lee Ferry. This is, roughly sketched, the cross-town branch. The transvaal branch will start in at the East River, thence along 116th street to New avenue thence northerly to 125d street and continuing northwards up St. Nicholas avenue to 160th street. It will thus be seen that when this road is built it will greatly benefit the property of which the Equitable Life has purchased so largely. The projectors and officers of the company are business men and property-owners, and it is understood that every effort will be made to put the road through at an early date. The late John H. Sherwood is said to have first conceived the idea of this road, and intended to have it run in conjunction with the elevator building at 116th street and 8th avenue, which was originally projected by him, and which, unfortunately, he did not live to see opened. It should be added that the Sixth Avenue Railroad Company, which has a franchise under which it can run up Lenox avenue, intends to construct a cable road, it is said, on that fine boulevard, and that its recent purchase of property on Lenox avenue, between 140th and 141st streets, was with the object of building a depot for that purpose. The contemplated new transit lines, when in operation, will be of great value to property along their route and will benefit the whole upper portion of the city. OBSERVER.

Men and Things.

Edwin Booth's gift of house No. 16 Grammercy square to the Players' Club was certainly munificent, but probably unwise. Social clubs con, fined to one profession have never yet permanently succeeded. Doctors-lawyers, artists, and even actors, may meet together occasionally for business or special reasons, but too much "shop" in one's life is like a continuous diet of quail—palatable enough for a few meals, but distasteful in the long run. Clubs composed of players, authors and artists, with a scattering of other professions and business men, have succeeded repeatedly. This was the original basis of the Lotos Club; and there are several such, both in Paris and London. Mr. Booth would have done better to put the $100,000 the club cost him out at interest to furnish prizes for successful American plays. The great actor, after whom his father named him—Edwin Forrest—spent considerable money in trying to establish a native American drama; hence his "Jack Cade," the "Gladiator," "Metamora," the "Broker of Bogata"—dating back nearly forty years ago—a period when there was small encouragement for dramatic authors in this country. Mr. Booth has never spent a cent on an original drama. He has never appeared except in a role created by some Englishman. A good disposition of the $100,000 would have been to form the nucleus of a fund for erecting a temple of the drama, such as the Theatre Francais of Paris, which would do for histrionic art what our Metropolitan Opera House is doing for German opera. Mr. Booth has been badly advised.

From all accounts, the revival of "Macbeth" with Henry Irving and Miss Terry as the guilty Thane and his wife, is the most magnificent spectacle ever produced at any theatre. The dramatic novelty of this revival is the recreation of the character of Lady Macbeth by Miss Terry. It was Mrs. Siddons who gave us the traditional stage figure of a woman imperious of mein, remorseless, devoured with ambition and capable of any crime. This was necessary because of Mrs. Siddons' physical characteristics, but her own theory of the part was quite different. According to her, Lady Macbeth was intensely feminine, was probably a small, slight, blonde woman, whose fierce utterances in the first two acts were to please her husband, whose desire to get Duncan out of the way in order to make himself king was well known to her. Her true character was shown when she fainted at the murder of Duncan and finally lost her reason because of her womanly terror at the deep damnation of Duncan's death. Clara Morris tried to embody this ideal of Mrs. Siddons, but the theatre-going public having Charlotte Cushman's imperious and fierce Lady Macbeth in mind would not tolerate the emotional style and colloquial utterances of Clara Morris, who never succeeded in any play outside of the modern French drama. Nevertheless it seems Ellen Terry has been able, because doubtless of the artistic surroundings in which she appeared—the marvellous scenery, machinery and the music of Sir Arthur Sullivan—to make a decidedly favorable impression on the conservative English theatre-going audience. It will be recalled that when Irving produced "Macbeth" some ten years ago, with Miss Bateman as Lady Macbeth, he failed dismally.

This London revival lends interest to the attempt Mrs. Langtry is shortly to make to portray Lady Macbeth with Charles Coghlan in the title rôle. Apriori one would say she must necessarily fail, as she has neither the commanding figure of Charlotte Cushman or the fragile winsomeness of Ellen Terry. It must necessarily be a Lady Macbeth dominated by her own physical peculiarities, which are neither one nor the other. She has not shown the kind of power that would fit her for that great tragic part, nor is it likely that Charles Coghlan will prove an acceptable Macbeth. He is probably the best actor on the stage in the translated versions of the modern French drama, but at Wallack's he failed in old English comedy, nor has he made any point in heroic rôles. Still the unexpected sometimes happens, and this Shakespearean revival will excite some curiosity, although it may not command much applause.

Notes and Items.

The Commissioners of Public Parks give notice that they will hear all statements, etc., in reference to a contemplated change in the lines of East 180th and Folin streets and Anthony avenue, on Wednesday, January 23d, at 11 o'clock A.M.

Application will be made to the Supreme Court on Saturday, February 2d, for the appointment of Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment, relative to acquiring title to certain lands required for the High Bridge Park in the 12th Ward.

At the last meeting of the Armory Board for 1888, it was resolved to appoint a committee of three to select sites for Armories for the 9th, 11th and 69th Regiments. The committee consists of Col. Clark, Commissioner Coleman and Commissioner Smith.

Mrs. Caroline G. Thebaud and other property-owners in 34th street, recently brought suit to restrain George W. Vultee from building an apartment house on the south side of 34th street, between Lexington and 4th avenues, on the grounds that such an act would violate restrictions in the deeds granted in 1847, that no buildings should be erected "other than brick or stone dwelling houses of at least two stories in height, or churches, or stables of brick or stone for private dwellings." Judge Bookstaver decided in favor of the defendant, holding that the spirit or terms of the agreement, made forty years ago, would not be violated by Mr. Vultee's action.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce the following preamble and resolution were adopted:

Whereas, it is desirable to harmonize the conflicting views of the members of this Chamber respecting the matter of the location of the new customs building authorized by Congress to be constructed in this city, and in order to present as nearly as possible a unanimous recommendation on the subject to the Secretary of the Treasury, be it therefore

Resolved, that the President be requested to appoint a committee of seven members for this purpose, which committee shall report its conclusions at the next regular meeting of the Chamber.

The committee appointed are the following: Alexander E. Orr, James McCreery, John Sloane, James M. Constable, Vernon H. Brown, Joseph H. Park, George Bliss.

The Board of Street Opening has decided that half the cost of High Bridge Park shall be assessed upon the property benefited and half upon the city.

The taxpayers of Washington Heights consider their part of the city neglected by the municipality. In order to stir up the city officials a permanent organization has been formed. Dr. M. Van Renssalaer was chairman of the meeting and Z. J. Halpin secretary. Among those interested are E. B. Treat, F. N. Dubois, L. N. Fuller, Charles E. Runk, S. M. Milliken and Frank Koch.

Obituary.

The death of Leopold Friedman removes a familiar figure from real estate circles. Mr. Friedman underwent a severe operation some time since, and his life was then despaired of. He lingered for several weeks, but the malady—internal ulcer—proved fatal. He died on the evening of New Year's Day.

Mr. Friedman was one of the first organizers of the New York Real Estate Exchange, and in the inception of the movement worked industriously for its success. He has for some time not taken an active part in that institution's affairs, but showed an interest in its prosperity to the last. As a member of the firm of Lespinasse & Friedman he assisted in carrying through some important transactions in realty during his career as a real estate broker. The immense pile of apartment houses built by Mr. José F. de Navarro, opposite Central Park, was the largest of these

The funeral services were held yesterday morning at the Church of the Transfiguration, so well known as "The Little Church Around the Corner." The Rev. Dr. Houghton, the rector, officiated, and a number of relatives and friends were present, among the latter being several known to the real estate community.

Real Estate Department.

The New Year opens very auspiciously for real estate. Our reports from all parts of the city show that we have entered upon an active and prosperous season. The sales reported for several weeks past gave promise of this, but those which appear in our "Gossip" columns this week are unprecedented for the time of the year. The sales of property for some time past were largely trades, but those now reported are, for the most part, purely bona fide. The transactions and reports indicate that the market for investment is getting stronger every day. The number of large houses sold point out that moneyed men are not afraid to place their capital in real estate.

Down-town property is held very firmly and dwelling houses are selling to better advantage. There is also some movement in vacant lots, which has not been the case to any extent for nearly a year. Taking a review of the entire situation, the prospects for the current season seem very encouraging. It is all the more satisfactory to be able to write in this strain, as the market, until recently, has warranted a less bullish tone for many months past, and this has been reflected in this column.

The auction sales during the past week have been quiet, mainly owing to New Year's Day. Next week things will be more active.

A loan of $22,500, made by George R. Fearing and another, as trustees to V. K. Stevenson, on a lot purchased at the Jones estate sale for $25,100, shows what confidence capital has in city realty. This loan represents nearly 90 per cent. of the purchase price.

On Tuesday next, the 8th inst., D. Phœnix Ingraham & Co. will sell for Auctioneer Jas. S. McQuillen the entire west front on 7th avenue, between 141st and 142d streets, as well as the block bounded by 7th and St. Nicholas avenues, 116th and 117th streets, suitable for a hotel, road house or flat. The former has a large residence, stable and carriage house, and will be sold as three parcels. The sale will be positive and absolute, and offers a good opportunity to investors and dealers.

On Thursday, the 10th inst., James L. Wells will sell the choice investment properties situated at Nos. 2493 and 2495 3d avenue and Nos. 102 and 104 East 120th street. The former comprise increasingly valuable store properties, and the latter, well-rented brick apartment houses.

Scott & Myers will sell several parcels on January 29th, by order of John H. Morris, receiver of James D. Fish. Nos. 182 and 184 6th avenue, 2384 to 2392 6th avenue, No. 46 East 58th street, No. 248 East 72d street and No. 363 West 34th street are embraced in the list to be sold.

On Tuesday, January 15th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell eight valuable lots on Vanderbilt avenue, 167th street and Gouverneur place, and six four-story and cellar brick apartment houses with stores, Nos. 126 to 136 Alexander avenue, at the southeast corner of 134th street, near the station of the Suburban Rapid Transit.

On Tuesday, January 22d, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell, by order of the executors of the late Abraham R. Van Nest, sixty desirable lots on the southwest corner of Grand Boulevard and 66th street, 10th avenue, 100th and 101st streets, West 123d and 124th streets, and 142d and 143d streets. Sixty per cent. can remain at 4½ per cent., or 75 per cent. at 5 per cent.

Special Notice.

The Vermont Marble Company, of No. 35 Hancock place, near 125th street and 9th avenue, wish to call the attention of architects and builders to the increased demand for the use of their material in sills, lintels, bond-stone, coping and chimney caps, also the large stock kept continually on hand for prompt delivery to all parts of the city. The test strength of this company's marble, as made by the United States Ordinance Department at the Watertown Arsenal, Massachusetts, was found to be from 17,000 to 22,000 pounds to the square inch in two-inch cubes, and an idea of the beauty of the material and the excellence of the company's workmanship can be seen at the Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel, 90th street, between 2d and 3d avenues; the residence of Dr. M. S. Buttles, 103d street and Riverside drive, and the terrace wall and grand stairways of the United States Capitol, Washington, D. C.

Contractors' Notes.

The School Trustees for the 12th Ward will receive proposals, until 9 o'clock A. M., Wednesday, January 16th, for a heating apparatus, required for Primary School building No. 9 on the corner of 99th street and 2d avenue.

The Philadelphia Record estimates that the growth in population of the city since 1880 has been less than that of any large American city except Cincinnati and St. Louis. It attributes this to the fact that the railways entering the city do not compete, and that they make discriminations in rates in favor of the shippers of other cities. Her wharves are rotting and her elevators are idle. Undoubtedly Philadelphians themselves are much to blame for all this. The city's natural advantages are superior, and nothing but her loyalty to antiquated business methods prevents her from holding her own in the race for importance among great cities.

Strong, neat binders, especially made for THE RECORD AND GUIDE can be obtained at this office. Those of our subscribers who wish to keep a file of the numbers in a compact form and in regular sequence, can have the binder delivered at their office on receipt of order by postal card. BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—It is still an open market for Common Hards and, all things considered, doing very well. Arrivals have continued from the "Bay" to a fair extent and occasional amounts come in from further up the stream, the New Windsor yards contributing, and we understand something was received from a still more distant point this week, with the supply meeting a sufficiently balancing demand to retain the advantage upon the selling side. Indeed, a further small advance may be chronicled, the best stock now commanding $7.25@7.50 per M, and so far as we can learn nothing even in the way of poorest Jerseys selling for less than $6.00 per M, very few at that. We notice, however, an inclination to find a little fault with the market, the stiffening hardly proving as rapid and pronounced as ordinarily experienced at this season and the fault seems to be with the weather. The very open season has permitted the pushing forward of work with somewhat greater expedition and completeness than could have been expected, and the necessities of buyers are in consequence less urgent, which, in conjunction with a feeling many of them appear to entertain that there is no immediate danger of a shut off of supplies, creates a slowness of negotiation that is somewhat annoying. Feeling, however, that a sudden cold snap may at any time develop and change existing conditions, sellers are tenacious of their advantages and stand on the assumption that all they have thus far secured can be retained without any great effort. Pales do not appear to have been very plenty of late, nor was there proven any special demand for them, but, it is calculated that in sympathy with the rest of the market anything desirable would bring at least $3.00 per M and were buyers anxious possibly a trifle more.

LATH.—It has been more or less of a winter market, embodying not much of a supply and no very great demand, but a reasonably steady tone ruling on values. Probably the best that could be depended upon from the average run of bids would be $2.10 per M, but exceptionally $2.15 is not a remote possibility; indeed, even a fraction more is here and there claimed, and on parcels to arrive as high as $2.25 continues to be "asked." Altogether it remains a reasonably healthy sort of situation, with chances mostly in favor of sellers.

LIME—It is a quiet and unchanged market. Some cargoes have come to hand and been sold; a few more are on the way, and it is expected they will be placed without much difficulty, and so far as known the line of quotations cannot be changed. Yet there is scarcely a doubt but that means are employed through which the actual cost is modified to quite as great an extent as during the earlier portion of the season, and even fuller allowandes are intimated for some of the more recent transactions. The Eastern kilns are burning to a moderate extent, just enough to prevent an excess of production.

LUMBER.—The holiday tone has been upon the market, especially the retail portion of it, and business proved extremely light all around, with no developments worthy of special note. On first hand deals also quietness was apparent in most cases, and so far as made public no important new orders were booked. We find, however, a little more cheerfulness in the tone of some of the trade, and while there has been the lesson of the past year to induce more or less conservative expression there is unquestionably a growing hope of an improved tone before long. Yellow Pine feels the gain to some extent, and there is a belief that as soon as manufacturers get ready to talk about spring contracts desirable spruce will get considerable attention, and in the meantime such stuff as can be delivered by rail may have a chance, as there is no accumulation here to stand any heavy drain. Values are well propped up, and buyers gain no advantages.

Eastern Spruce really has only a moderate demand, yet at a season of limited and uncertain supply buyers are very apt to be found for anything of a really attractive character, and indeed it would be pretty poor stuff that could not now be placed without more than an average effort. The report of light amounts afloat and practically suspended shipments is of course in order, and reasonable, with every chance that this feature will become more pronounced, and a strong or uppish feeling on value follows in natural sequence. From sources of supply the advices are much the same as to be heard every winter, and later information is desirable before attempting to come to any conclusion as to the output, etc. Receivers generally claim that amounts now afloat are moderate and poorly assorted.. We quote at $14.00@15.00 per M for 6 to 9 inch and $15.50@16.25 for 10 to 12 inch, with specials at $16.50@18.00 per M.

Piling has no immediate market to speak of, and is to a certain extent nominal. Most of the supply, however, appears to be in very good hands, and continues to be carried with evidences of firmness and confidence.

Hemlock has a firm market for the Pennsylvania product, and there does not appear to be any conflict of feeling between the different interests calculated to afford buyers much hope for gaining advantage. Indeed, on the contrary, while there is no present talk of expanding values, any increase in demand or anxiety to get stock would probably act as a stimulus. Some hope is expressed of bringing production during the next season under closer general control. We quote Joist at $11.50@12.00 per M; Boards at $12.00@12.50 per M; Timber $12.00 per M for 20-foot and under; $12.50 for 22 to 24 foot; $13.00 for 26 to 28-foot; $14.00 for 30 to 32-foot; $15.00 for 34 to 36-foot, and $16.00 for 38 to 40-foot.

White Pine has not gone into consumption to any extent, nor has there been any special inclination to negotiate on parcels for rail shipment, buyers being very well satisfied with what they have on hand at present. A feeling of some interest, however, may be noted regarding such standard grades as box, and desirable shippers, both of which are thought likely to soon secure increased attention and a portion of the trade, revive the suggestion that even uppers may have seen their worst. There is certainly, in some quarters, a disposition to look beyond present seasonable dullness with more hopeful eyes, yet with a caution that prevents extravagant expectation. We quote $17.50@19.00 for West India shipping boards; $20@29 for South American do.; $14.50@16.00 for box boards; $16.50@17.50 for extra do.

Yellow Pine continues to be spoken of cheerfully by those who may ordinarily be considered authoritative, and while allowance must be made for a little quietness just at the moment the market evidently is making a progressive rather than a retrograde movement. Considerable of the stock in accumulation is believed to be sold against, new specifications for building purposes of various kinds are not uncommon, and those who make a specialty of the export trade reporting a good demand, with more evidence of anxiety on the part of English custom. The local and the Southern associations are also said to be working in full harmony and contributing to the healthy features of the market. We quote Randoms, $18.50@21.00 per M; Specials, $19.00@21.00 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $21.00@22.50 do.; Dry, do. do., $23.00@25.00 do.; Sidings, $13.00@14.50 do.; Cargoes, f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $13.00@15.00 for rough and $18.00@20.00 for dressed; Cargoes, f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $12.00@13.50 for rough and $19.00@21.00 for dressed

Carolina Pine remains in very good form, and new business is not uncommon, because deliveries are comparatively easy. Not much has been done this week, and the trade expect a light deal for probably a week or two to come, but the advantage of sellers is unimpaired when they have really desirable stock to tender, and full former valuations remain current.

Hardwoods are not selling to any extend from yard, and dealers care little about adding to their stock just at the moment, the general market having a pretty dull tone, If some of the consigned lots sent in here during the month, as though this was just the time the market required them, should therefore be ordered sold, the shipper will undoubtedly be compelled to accept a low return for his want of judgment. Walnut is probably the most unsatisfactory wood to handle at present, and poplar the best, with other grades likely to have a good average chance when business picks up Considerable is expected of mahogany during the coming season, as it evidently remains in favor with consumers. We quote by car lot as follows: Walnut $60@110 per M; White ash, $36@42 do.; oak, $36@42 do.; quarter sawed clear, $46@50 do; maple, $25@31 do.; chestnut, $30@37 do.; cherry $67@92 do.; white wood, $25@33 do.; elm, $20@23 do.; hickory, $50@80 do.

Shingles have not been much sought after, and altogether it was a pretty dull market. Supplies, however, are said to be well in hand, and a uniform tone is reported on values all around. Occasional orders for f. o. b. shipments from the South are secured. We quote Cypress at $8@9.50 per M for 6x20 and Cypress large $10@16. Pine, $4.10@4.50 for 18-inch extra; $2.85@3.25 for 16-inch extra; and $4.50@5.50 for 16 and 18-inch stock Eastern shaved cedar $4@4.75 per M. Machine dressed cedar shingles quoted as follows: For 30 inch, $15@20 for A and $23@25.00 for No. 1; for 24 inch $13@15 for A and $17.00@19.00 for No. 1; for 20 inch, $8.75@9.50 for A and $11.00@12.00 for No 1

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The Timberman of Chicago says:

Michigan returns are somewhat at variance—those from the east and those from the west shores. A special representative of the Timberman has been this week inquiring into the returns from the various mills, as to their cut this season. The returns come in very slowly, but enough are at hand to show that the production of the season is going to be larger than was turned out last season, both in shingles and lumber, and the indications point strongly to the belief that more lumber will be carried over on docks than there was last winter at Manistee.

It can also be stated that while work in the woods is getting along nicely in some sections, the absence of snow hinders the general progress very materially, and those who have a large amount of logs on skids are beginning to be anxious, for most of them are a long haul from water, and logs left over are liable to burn.

Wisconsin loggers have, perhaps, been more seriously retarded in their operations than those at the other side of the lake, and one man who had expected to put in 20,000,000 of logs, not having had any snow thus far, has been compelled to build a road himself from where the logs are banked on his skids to the river. At many other places the situation is equally embarrassing, but it is hoped that before holiday week has entirely passed away we shall have more positive evidences that winter is with us.

Later in the week advices from Wisconsin were of a rather more favorable character for loggers. The first snow of the winter fell in a great many places and reached a depth of a foot or more, and as a result lumbermen are now sending to the woods large crews of men and horses to begin the work of hauling logs to the rivers, Early in this fall the marshes, swamps and lakes froze up solidly, and with this snow to make roads, the work in the woods will progress rapidly from now on, provided the "January thaw" does not come too soon.

Holiday week and villainously bad weather have together just about stopped the movement of hardwood lumber locally. Many furniture factories that were running half capacity last week have now stopped altogether. On account of the bad weather the invoice proceeds but slowly, and some firms will not finish until several days of 1889 have elapsed. The sales of hardwood in car load lots to outside manufacturers have improved in the last few days. The profits accruing from this business are not altogether satisfactory. Ash, oak and poplar are moving with more freedom in this direction than any other kinds of lumber. As the demand increases for thick ash more of it is found every day. Considering the uncommonly large cut in all the hardwood lumber producing portions of the country during the year just closed, the most far seeing consumers are not so anxious to buy as they were two months ago. The more conservative dealers do not anticipate a slump in prices of this thick stock, but much bullish talk by large holders is being thrown in with other information as a sort of preventive against such an occurrence. The loud talk indulged in by the small mill men, who at the year's end feel the necessity of disposing of their stock, has strengthened the consumers' hopes of cheaper lumber, but the wholesale dealers have concluded to combat this tendency by concerted action, and hardwood values will undoubtedly be maintained throughout the dull mid-winter days.

The Northwestern Lumberman reviews the situation as follows:

Every lumberman's attention is now directed toward operations in the woods. The winter thus far has been remarkably mild, and little besides skidding has been done, though that preliminary work has been pushed forward with great facility and success. More than the usual amount of logs have thus been got ready for hauling, but the necessary snow and frost has failed to put in an appearance. On December 26th there was a powerful rain storm all over the Northwest, terminating in Northern Wisconsin and Minnesota in a snow storm, so that it is probable that a streak of slipping has followed. But in the latitude of Chicago the threatened blizzard failed to corroborate signal service predictions, and present indications are that winter has not got its grip.

Though lack of snow is no longer an indispensable factor in most of the logging districts, it is still all important in some. At any rate dealers will take the view that a poor logging season has an influence in reducing the log input, and that a short supply of lumber must follow, and consequently higher prices. It can be safely said that a hard season for log hauling tends to prevent overstocking. It checks operations in districts where the hauls are long, with no railroad facilities. Small operators become discouraged under such conditions, and fail to put in what they intended. A prolongation of soft weather will at least give log and lumber owners firm views in respect to prices. There is already much confidence among holders of stock in the wholesale markets, which a continuance of unfavorable logging conditions will serve to strengthen. In the Lumberman's long experience it has learned to count little on a lack in the log supply, for it has been seen that lumber gets to market without reference to the difference of a few million feet of logs on the bank from one season to another. Still, it recognizes the influence of favorable or unfavorable conditions on the confidence of operators, and that such influence has an effect on market prices. On this basis it must be admitted that a mere ordinary input of logs, instead of an unusually heavy one, would tend to strengthen the position of lumber holders.

CANADA.

From the annual circular of J. Bell Forsyth & Co., Quebec, we make the following extracts:

The total of all woods measured this year is 6,035,269 feet, while 8,551,840 feet have been exported, and only 5,617,723 feet are wintering in the coves.

Prices generally opened at slightly advanced rates, which continued all season with a further marked increase toward the close.

White Pine—The supply has been unusually small, although slightly above that of 1887, and it is a remarkable fact and worthy of record that the entire stock is held by shippers, and the manufacturers for once have sold out all their stock in this market, and in many instances their entire manufacture for delivery next year. Such a healthy state of things is unprecedented we believe, and while the production this winter will be on a larger scale than during the past two or three seasons, it will not be in any way excessive, and in our opinion is warranted by the healthy demand in Great Britain as well as in this market. The enhanced value of pine timber limits is very significant and a sure index of the scarcity of this great staple of our trade.

Waney has been in better request than square all season, and sales were readily effected as lots arrived, and in many instances were contracted for last spring or early in the summer. The supply, though light, has been unusually good as to quality. In the stock remaining, just one-half of that of 1887, some old and inferior wood is included. The production this winter is likely to be on a moderate scale—clean, large girthy wood being more difficult to procure than ever.

Square.—The few new rafts manufactured last season were readily disposed of at good prices, but old timber was not so easily placed until towards the autumn, when the supply and favorable accounts from Great Britain caused this wood to be more and more appreciated until finally every stick passed out of the manufacturers' hands into those of the shippers. The local demand has been steady all season and is likely to continue.

The square wintering is less than last year by 1,714,260 feet, and contains the usual proportion of common and inferior wood unfit for shipment, culls, etc.

	Supply.	Export.	Stock.

Square	1,791,113	6,020,000	2,580,591
Waney	2,029,043	.....	1,226,900

Deals—Pine.—Have been in fair demand all season, though the advance in freights and scarcity of tonnage militated considerably against the export, which would otherwise have been much greater owing to the demand in Great Britain, especially towards the autumn. Our figures show only a small portion of the deal trade of Canada, the bulk of the Ottawa "cut" and other mills West being shipped from Montreal. Prices have been well maintained, the demand being stronger than usual for the lower qualities. Michigan deals have been received and shipped as heretofore, one cargo only being included in our wintering stock. The excitement now prevailing in Ottawa and elsewhere regarding lumber for the South American markets will likely lead to large transactions, in which case the manufacture of deals will be considerably curtailed.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The Timber Trades Journal as follows:

LONDON.

American Black Walnut.—In both logs and lumber we can hear of but little having been done this week. Prices are generally said to be firm, especially for better class stuff, of which description the stock is by no means excessive.

American Whitewood.—There has been more doing in logs lately, but lumber is greatly preferred at all times. Of neither planks nor boards is there much here at the present time; consequently holders of stock are likely to do well, as with a good demand no fall in prices need be feared, unless it be through unexpected large importations.

American Oak.—Logs continue quiet, but board stuff goes off pretty freely. We notice a fresh parcel of lumber is now being landed, which appears to be a very good lot.

At Glasgow there has been a large import of United States walnut this year; 3,745 logs against 2,731 logs for 1887, showing an increasing consumption.

LIVERPOOL.

American Black Walnutwood.—There is no change in the market from our last week's report, only eight logs being sold at auction, owing to the firm prices at which this wood is now held. Very little seems to be coming forward at present, and this is chiefly going into dealers' hands on private terms from the ship's side.

American Whitewood.—Just at present there seems to be but little movement in this wood, either in logs or planks, none being sold at the last public sale.

Pitch pine freights continue very high, and vessels are most difficult to obtain even for those in a distant position. Many of the vessels which are taking coal from Cardiff to Buenos Ayres and Monte Video prefer to return in ballast direct to this country to get the advantage of the high rates now being paid rather than proceed, as is the usual way, to Pensacola or other pitch pine shipping ports to load timber cargoes for this country. To this action the present disorganized state of the pitch pine freight market is greatly to be attributed.

What chartering has been done has been at about £6 2s. 6d. from the Gulf ports to the United Kingdom, and Mobile to the United Kingdom about £6 3s. 9d., whilst from Pensacola, for vessels of large tonnage, about £6 per standard may be taken as the current rate.

The stock of pitch pine here is getting reduced to very small dimensions, and, with no vessels in a forward position to replenish it, we shall see it down to a low mark if, as there is every probability will be the case, we have a continuance of the same steady demand in the New Year as we have at the close of the old one.

NAILS.—Buyers were in moderate attendance and showing no anxiety with the general condition of the market pretty dull. Suggestions of probable ability to more closely control the supply are again made, however, and there is evidently hope of better conditions after the turn into the new year. We quote at $1.80@1.90 per keg for car lots, and $1.95@2.00 do., from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Only a slow and unimportant movement reported and little or nothing of interest suggested during the interval since our last report. Accumulations in first hands are comfortably moderate and the reduction a natural one for the time of year, and generally operators are prepared to fill out stocks soon after the first of the month and be ready for the increase of demand calculated upon. Prices in all cases are quoted as before. Linseed Oil remains under very good control and steady at 56@57c. for Western and 58@59c. for City. Spirits Turpentine has remained under jobbing demand in the main and without essential change in value. We quote at 46½@47c. per gallon, according to quality, quantity, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—Practically no business at all has been done since our last and it is simply a nominally unchanged market throughout. The general run of supplies satisfies the call. We quote Pitch at $1.25@1.50 per bbl.; Tar at $2.00@2.20, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

The "Nightingale" Wood Block Tiling
GUARANTEED FOR A TERM OF YEARS.

Over 5,000,000 square feet laid. On ground, on fireproof, rough undressed boards and wooden joists or other floors. In any style, rough enough for a factory or artistic enough for a ball or drawing-room. Prevents malaria. Each block firmly keyed to substructure by metal keys dove-tailed into under sides of blocks, other extremities of keys embedded in damp-proof composition, which prevents dry-rot. Each block keyed independently of its neighbor to substructure. Composition is forced into groves traversing sides of blocks binding them to each other and foundation. Adopted extensively for many years in places where tiles, parquet, marble, etc., are often laid. Advantages being its thorough solidity, immovability, noiselessness and warmth.

DYCKERHOFF
PORTLAND CEMENT

Is superior to any other Portland Cement made. It is very finely ground, always uniform and reliable, and of such extraordinary strength that it will permit the addition of 25 per cent. more sand, etc., than other well-known brands, and produce the most durable work. It is therefore the most economical to use. 8,000 barrels have been used in the foundations of the Statue of Liberty. Architects and those interested in Portland Cement will please send for my pamphlet, which will be mailed free on application. It contains valuable directions for the employment of Portland Cement, a table of results of the strength of the Dyckerhoff Cement when mixed with sand and broken stone in various proportions, together with tests and testimonials of eminent Engineers, Architects and Consumers.

ALLEN & CO.,
GENERAL IRON WORKS,
And also Sole Manufacturers of the Patented
Metropolitan Iron Clothes Line Frame for Roofs.
Allen & Co., Sole Manuf'rs Williams' Patents, 1885-6

The above Cut Represents the Best, Cheapest and Only Fire-proof Frame in the Market.

We desire to call the attention of Architects, Builders and Owners to this Frame.

In construction it consists entirely of iron, whereby a light, strong, durable and fire-proof structure is obtained.

This Frame is approved by the insurance companies, and is strictly in compliance with the building laws.

A protection to the roofs of buildings from fire-works.

It was, from its imperishable nature, of great assistance to the tenants and firemen at the recent fire at the Morningside Flats, 128th St. and 9th Av.

It is now adopted by some of the first architects and builders, and its convenience is highly appreciated.

The lattice work is made in movable sections, whereby leaks in the roof can be easily repaired and the roofs kept clean, thereby preventing decay.

Estimates Furnished on Application.
All Orders Promptly Filled.

The attention of the Trade is hereby called to the above U. S. Letters Patent, 1885-6, and other patents applied for, protecting the said Clothes Line Frame. All Persons are hereby cautioned against infringing upon said Letters Patent, as such infringement will expose all persons committing the same to liability of suit for damage, profits and injunctions, fo the sole right to manufacture said Frames is vested n

HILL'S PATENT INSIDE SLIDING BLINDS.

These blinds require no hinges, all trimmings are supplied. They do not interfere with curtains or window ornaments, and are so constructed that light and air can be admitted from any part of the window. Being easily and rapidly operated they neither rattle nor get out of order. They economize space by doing away with pockets and the necessity of furring out, and can be removed and replaced instantly without even drawing a screw. They require no special frame as they can be attached with equal facility to any window. For workmanship or style these Blinds are not excelled by any in the market.

Call and see them or send for catalogue. Mention "Record and Guide."

Also Improved English and American "Venetian Blinds" in any desired wood beautifully finished

This number of THE RECORD AND GUIDE deserves the attention, not only of the thousands of non-subscribers to whom it will be mailed, but of its regular readers also. It contains, in addition to the usual matter, a review of the building material markets for the year past; Samuel Benner's forecast of business for 1889 and the following two years; the commencement of a series of architectural articles on recent changes in the construction of buildings; an illustrated supplement of the new "Times" building and the Progress Club; and a vast amount of valuable business information presented by our advertisers. Our readers should see that the supplement is furnished with each copy of the paper. For the information of those not already subscribers the annual subscription to THE RECORD AND GUIDE is $6; the office of publication, No. 191 Broadway.

The regular semi-annual Index to the Conveyances and Projected Buildings, published in THE RECORD AND GUIDE, will be ready on January 19*th. Subscribers desiring copies should send word to this office.*

We again present our annual report upon the conditions of the markets for structural material as existing during the preceding year, and extensive details will be found in another portion of this number. The salient features are to be found in a lessened local consumption and lower prices as compared with 1887, fully confirming the forecast of the record at that time. Operators as a rule have managed affairs conservatively, and while the margin for profit was by no means liberal the general condition of the trade appears to be sound, and hopeful feelings are entertained over the prospect for the incoming year.

Up to Friday morning, when the results of the president's meeting was announced, the stock market was a waiting one; then, it naturally took a turn upwards. An agreement has been reached, but it will take time to see if it is observed and what the effect of the raised rate will be on traffic returns. It is difficult to see how even a maintainance of rates is going to help railway lines which run through an unsettled country. The real difficulty is that the Burlington & Quincy, the Atchison, the Missouri Pacific, indeed most of the roads west of the Mississippi, have extended their lines through regions that are without inhabitants, and consequently without business or crops. Put the rates ever so high and maintain them ever so strictly, and in such localities, the trains must be run at a loss. Of course, the restoration of rates will help the revenues of the roads where there are inhabitants, business and crops; but the regions likely to yield the best results are those which have had a large corn and hay crop and very little railroad building. This is really the situation in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and a considerable part of Missouri. The restoration of rates ought to make a great deal of difference in what is known as the corn belt proper in the Middle and Western States. But speculators in Chicago, who understand the situation West better than we do East, are said to be short of the granger stocks, and will so continue in spite of the attempt to bulldoze the Western presidents into advancing and maintaining rates. The situation, however, generally looks favorable for the corn roads, coalers, Southern securities and the trunk lines. They ought to show handsome gains in the not distant future. One excellent symptom is the heavy buying of bonds by investors. This is generally an indication that good stocks will be in demand after a certain number of bonds have been absorbed. It is generally safe to buy junior securities when gilt-edge bonds and mortgages are in unusual demand.

Mayor Grant's message has been justly praised by the press of the city, the Tribune being the most eulogistic. We prefer, before making any criticisms, however, to wait until after the Mayor makes his appointments—indicates by his acts the way he intends to carry out his own suggestions. He is quite right as to the necessity of better pavements, a new Municipal building and finer docks for our great commerce. We cannot, however, indorse his views in regard to the new parks in the annexed district. His aim clearly is to make them unusable as places of recreation. We object most decidedly to putting the penitentiary, almshouse, the lunatic asylums and other charities, now on Blackwell's Island, on Pelham Bay Park. Yet we do not know but the time may come when it will be desirable to remove these penal and charitable institutions from their present situation. That locality will make a very useful public park when the opposite shores become densely populated, which will be the case in a few years from now. But we want all the park room and more provided for on the other side of the Harlem.

What Mayor Grant says about rapid transit is disappointing. He makes a call for plans and suggestions, so as to make up his mind as to the most feasible scheme. This request will make him the prey of every rapid transit and engineering crank in this section of the country, and may land him in the lunatic asylum. Our immediate need is some way to utilize to the utmost the facilities we already enjoy. Our elevated system might be so reorganized within two years' time as to permit the carriage of double the present number of passengers. By means of extra tracks on the Third and Sixth Avenues, the time between the Battery and Harlem River might be cut down to less than thirty minutes. Then another road might be built over the widened and extended Elm street, and one on the Boulevard connecting with the Ninth Avenue. The track should be extended to the principal ferries, and in time the river fronts might form part of the elevated systems. Any viaduct scheme would involve enormous cost and at least ten years of time. An underground road would be objectionable, as any one can understand who is forced to use the tunnel above 42d street. Perhaps an arrangement might be made between the Central Road and the Arcade people to build from the Battery to 42d street; but even that would take five years and a vast sum of money. There is no dodging this matter. The only relief possible for immediate necessities is the further utilization of the Manhattan system.

The resolution passed by Congress, warning foreign nations that they must not aid in the completion of the Panama Canal, is bravely worded, but it implies a threat of war; and are we yet in a position to take the field should even the weakest foreign power disregard our warnings? The only nation we could attack at present would be Great Britain, by invading Canada; but even that country has a mighty fleet and has, dotted all around our coasts, fortified islands connected by cables in such a way that all our sea-port cities would be attacked by an English fleet that could come without warning to try and capture Portland, Boston, New York, Baltimore —not to mention a score of less important places. Then her gunboats could pass up the St. Lawrence and menace Milwaukee, Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, in fact our whole water front on the lakes. Even China has us at its mercy. It possesses now a splendid fleet of gun-boats and could capture with the greatest ease San Francisco and all the exposed cities on the Pacific coast. We have not a ship to do our fighting on the Pacific and no way of getting one there in time to be of any service. China might very well object to any action on our part in interfering with direct trade between Europe and Asia.

The Prospect of the Future.

We give place to-day to a communication from the well-known financial prophet, Mr. Samuel Benner, of Ohio. His forecast is for three years. He expects to see a "boom" commence during the present year, which will last through the year 1890, and will be followed by a panic sometime during 1891. For those who are not aware of Mr. Benner's predictions it may be well to state that he has, on the whole, been remarkably successful in guessing out the future. Indeed, it is hardly fair to call his foreshadowings guesses, for they are based on experienced and observed data. Mr. Benner insists that there is a law of periodicity in prices. Thus, in from eighteen to twenty-one years we are certain to have a panic, as witness 1837, 1857, 1873, the next being due in 1890 or 1891. At intervals between we have periods of speculation and high prices, which also occur at regular intervals. Mr. Benner's work, published in 1875, made some very remarkable and accurate forecasts as to the future course of prices in the stock, grain and provision markets. According to him the price of iron and steel is the keynote to the industrial situation. When the price of that essential metal advances we may expect good times. When it declines prices of all other commodities fall.

In the communication from Mr. Benner, which we publish elsewhere, he lays stress upon other factors as affecting the situation. The election of a Republican President, and the certainty that if any change is made in the tariff it will be in the direction of higher imposts, gives us, he thinks, an assurance of good times. This may be so if the experience is applied only to the United States, but Great Britain has, at times, been exceptionally prosperous under a free trade policy. Mr. Benner writes also as if times had been bad during all of President Cleveland's administration, but surely this has not been so. We do not know how it has been in Ohio, but certainly we have had nothing to complain of here in the East, from the summer of 1885 to the summer of 1887. For two years our stock market was buoyant and the price of iron high. Our manufacturing industries have been prosperous and are so to-day, while excessive railroad construction in the extreme West fostered land speculation in all the centres of population.

Our Prophetic Department.

A BOOM AND A PANIC AHEAD OF US!

SAMUEL BENNER'S FORECASTS.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

My forecasts at present are not only for the year 1889, but also include 1890 and 1891.

It is a great desideratum to know when good times will commence, and it is also very important to know how long they will continue, and when we may expect the next panic and reaction in general business.

The business men of this country do not desire a boom of short duration so much as they do a steady advance in prices and in the developments of trade—continuing for a number of years.

However much they may desire this condition for future business, the records of commercial and financial history do not warrant us in making this kind of prophecy.

Since 1825 this country has not experienced a continuous advance in the price of iron beyond four years.

The resumption of specie payments by the government in 1879 was the occasion for the boom in business following that event.

Now we have a decision by the people that protection will continue to be the policy of the government, making the occasion for the turning of the tide from depression to activity in all business.

The depression in trade for 1888 was predicted thirteen years ago, and the prediction was also made at that time that the tide would turn, giving us an era of business activity during the years 1889, 1890 and 1891.

The persistence of the repetition of these trade cycles is becoming a commercial wonder, they ride triumphant over all events which have occurred during the past sixty years to oppose such regularity.

These cycles have been verifying themselves through the introduction of railroads, steamboats, the electric telegraph, the suspension of specie payments in 1837 and 1857, the panic of 1873, through the Mexican war, our civil war, through all of our Presidential terms since the administration of Jackson, and up to the present time override and defeat the aims of the present administration, while using the whole machinery of the government for re-election, with the avowed policy of a low tariff, which would depress our industries.

What else can a reasonable person ask to prevent their repetition? Better times and higher prices will prevail for the next three years, and no happening or opposition can prevent them.

The outcome of the Presidential election has laid a broad basis for a general recovery of confidence, an element that has been wanting for the past four years, which we have observed by the many idle furnaces, mills and factories, and the lowest prices for nails, steel rails and pig iron for a number of years.

The year 1889 opens with cheerful hopes. Our crops during the past year have been abundant; the prospects of an increased foreign demand for our surplus grain and provisions at advanced prices gives the farmers renewed energy. We must look forward to a hot and dry summer this year, as we are not yet beyond the period for a general drought, however, with fair early crops business and prices will show considerable improvement in the spring months.

We are at the beginning of a prosperous period, and the outlook is for a decided improvement and advance in the prices of iron, railroad stocks and in all manufactured commodities. Whenever our manufacturers are prosperous every industrial class is prosperous.

I predict that the price of iron will advance, and the average price for the year 1889 will be higher than the average for 1888; and I also predict that there will be a wonderful advance in prices for iron, stocks, and all products and commodities in the year 1890 all business will be prosperous, it will be a year of good crops and the boom year in this period of activity.

In the beginning of the year 1891 speculation will be at its height—a great business inflation—pig iron fifty dollars per ton in the markets of our country.

I predict that there will be a panic in the year 1891. The over trading and general inflation of business and expansion of credit and confidence will produce this result. The panic probably will be brought about by the effects of heavy rainfalls and floods, or by the collapse of some large financial business firm.

This panic will be a commercial and financial revulsion, and wil be followed by a long down sweep of prices.

DUNDAS, O., January 1, 1889. SAMUEL BENNER.

The Daily Times, in some recent articles, seems to view with favor Henry George's single land-tax scheme. This is significant, coming from so conservative and respectable a journal, and George expresses his delight in the Standard, his organ; and certainly, as a mere theory, the programme proposed looks plausible. Says George, substantially, why punish a capitalist who erects a store, a factory, a residence, or even a palace, by taxing him for a valuable improvement? Then, why favor the speculator who spends no money on his vacant land, but who waits while other people make it valuable by improving their property? The speculator gets this "unearned increment" which properly belongs to the community which called it into existence. Why not tax land as land, irrespective of the improvements? Of course this would in time confiscate the property of the speculative holder.

But Henry George's scheme of taxing the rental value of vacant land has never been tested in any part of the earth, and hence we have no means of knowing how it would work in practice. The most ideally perfect theories often fail lamentably when actually tested. The force of this fact is at length acknowledged by George and his followers, and they propose to concentrate their efforts on the State of New Jersey, so as to see if the citizens of that interesting commonwealth will try and prove to the world the truth or falsity of the single-tax proposition. This will make matters lively across the Hudson River for several years to come. Taking the country through there are tens of thousands of voters who really believe in Henry George's panacea for the ills of society; and they will contribute with money and sympathy to the missionary work of converting the people of New Jersey to their point of view. Of course this is a matter of intense interest to all real estate people, and they will watch the progress of the curious contest with the closest attention.

We doubt, however, if anything will come of the attempt to carry this matter in any State in the Union. Should the single tax idea get a foothold among a large body of voters, politicians would hit upon some device in the way of a compromise that would discredit the scheme. Experience teaches that this is usually the case. Take minority representation, for instance. It was first suggested by Thomas Hare and warmly indorsed by Mill. It was an ideally perfect scheme as outlined by these two authors. As manipulated by the lawmakers, however, it has been so bewitched as not to give general satisfaction. Yet probably a dozen different schemes have been tested. A variation of it was given a trial in electing Aldermen-at-Large in New York city, but the politicians so arranged matters that no candidate could be chosen outside of those put in the field by the two leading parties. In Illinois the law was so modified in practice that one party always had two and the other one representative; but the voters were forced to support the candidates of the political parties. Yet a just scheme of minority representation would be very useful in New York. In the lower part of the State Democrats preponderate so largely that the intelligent Republican opposition is practically without representation. This results in giving the worst wing of the Democracy absolute control; and hence the disgraceful character of the shysters and liquor dealers who represent that party in the Legislature year after year. Now, the able and honest Democrats who live in the northern and western parts of the State are also practically disfranchised, and the great Republican preponderance of voters throws the party machinery in the hands of corrupt politicians. We ought to have a minority representation law which would give a better representation to the Republicans at this end of the State, while at the same time securing a better show for the Democrats north of the Harlem River. Our Real Estate Exchange, by the way, has a very fair scheme of minority representation in its annual election of thirteen directors. So far it has worked no mischief and has prevented any one interest from getting absolute control of that institution.

Improvements in Building.

It is now sixteen or seventeen years since the first elevator buildings were erected on Manhattan Island. In the interval the aspect of the city has been completely transformed, and every new building erected below the City Hall contains at least twice the floor-area of that which it supplants. In some of the newer office buildings the accommodation is three times that which was afforded before on the same area.

The architectural results of this transformatian have been discussed in these columns as they appeared. The practical changes are less manifest, but they are scarcely less interesting. The eight, ten and twelve-story structures that are now the usual and standard office buildings are, as a rule, erected in less time than the four and five and six-story buildings they succeed. The pressure of owners on architects and builders for speed is intense. It is the rule that one building season shall see the beginning and the end of the new construction. The leases of the old building fall in on the first of May. By the first of the next May the new building must be ready for occupancy. No owner will consent to pay the enormous ground rent of vacant lots below the City Hall a day longer than is absolutely necessary.

Under these circumstances of haste and pressure it is most creditable to architects and builders that the new buildings, as a rule more than twice as heavy as those which they supersede, should show fewer signs of weak or hasty construction. In only one instance, since the period of elevator buildings began, has there been a notable failure arising from an inequality of settlement. For the most part no evidence of such inequality can be detected by the passer. This means great care and accuracy in planning as well as in construction. The layman is apt to imagine that all is secured when the foundations have been made very strong, not considering that a point which is less loaded than another must offer less resistance to its load in order to settle equally with it, so that an unequal settlement may be actually promoted by a foundation of great and uniform strength. The absence of any marks of disturbance in an eight-story front is a proof of careful planning and of good workmanship.

The Chicago and Boston fires occurred at about the beginning of our elevator period. The main lesson in building conveyed by them was that an unprotected vertical support of iron could not be trusted; hence arose the disappearance of iron posts from the fronts of costly buildings and the substitution of piers of masonry, and the incasing of the iron posts in the interior in brickwork or some other form of baked clay. At the same time, with the increase in height and consequently in weight, there arose an urgent demand for some lighter material than brickwork, equally incombustible, for use in ceilings and in subordinate partitions. After many experiments this need has been answered for both purposes by large and hollow blocks of terra cotta, forming flat arches turned between iron beams for the ceilings, and walls capable of sustaining their own weight for much more than the height of an ordinary story for use as partitions. A modern office building may therefore be described as a framework of brick walls, or of iron posts and girders, and of iron beams with a filling of terra cotta. The terra cotta blocks leave little to be desired in lightness, cheapness and simplicity, and the patterns can readily be accommodated to any special purpose. Architecturally one cannot help thinking that an improvement might be effected by showing the material of which the partitions are composed, and treating it so as to make it fit to show. They are now burned without regard to uniformity or agreeableness of tint, which could easily be supplied if there were a demand for it, and the channels that are now run as a key for the plastering might be replaced at proper intervals by moulded ornament. In West 51st street, near the river, there is an actual building of terra cotta blocks, which, though not in the least "architecturesque," indicates possibilities in the material. To finish corridors and stairways, at least, in this material would be an advance upon the art of the plasterer and his "hard finish."

Even the occupants of an office building do not often reflect what an organism it is or what an elaborate network of communication it incloses. The water supply, the sanitary arrangements, the ventilation, the supply of gas or electricity for lighting, the power for the elevators, the steam for heating, the different electric systems for telegraphs, telephones, bells and what not, all these things require to be taken into account in the design and construction of the building, and most of them are of modern creation and still in the course of development. In some of them notable improvements have lately been introduced. The expansion of the steam pipe that feeds the radiators has been especially troublesome, with the great extent this reaches in office buildings, and its tendency to disfigure in its movements the wall from which it emerges. This has lately been counteracted by a series of ingenious devices, the invention of a New York steam-fitter, that have completely obviated the difficulty.

With regard to all these systems of communication, it is desirable to have them, so far as possible, collected and easily accessible, but this requsite is very seldom fulfilled. Even in some of the newest buildings it is necessary to tear down a terra cotta partition and to spoil its plastering, if a pipe should be clogged or should leak. The most successful device thus far adopted is the collection of the pipes in a slot, the front of which is closed by heavy slates. In order to get at the pipes it is necessary merely to take out the screws that hold these slates. No office building can be said as yet to present a model disposition of all these systems, ingenious as many of the details of them are. But even this brief summary will show how large a field for thought, apart both from its architecture and from its general planning, a modern office building presents. Unless it is to be altered as soon as it is occupied, the architect must have time to think it all out, and the more time if the rush of active construction gives him no opportunity for revision. That is to say, the quicker a modern elevator building is to be built the more deliberately it should be designed.

Matthew Marshall, in the Sun, made the curious blunder last week of attributing to Edward Atkinson the series of articles written by David A. Welles in the Popular Science Monthly. However, the blunder was a natural one, as both those well-known statisticians agree in their general theories. They have both been guilty of collecting figures not to get at the truth, but to support foregone conclusions, more particularly on the silver question. Mr. Atkinson was sent abroad by the present administration, ostensibly to inquire into the moneyed situation in Europe, but really to discredit the silver coinage policy of his own country.

Matthew Marshall, by the way, while holding some just views as to the silver and gold problem, thinks it unlikely that the commercial nations will go back to bi-metallism. Indeed, he thinks that the trade of the world must hereafter be carried on with the gold unit of value. But he does not seem to understand that the vast mass of mankind use silver and comparatively few gold. All Asia, Africa, Mexico, Central and South America use silver exclusively, while it is only a portion of Europe which has the gold unit in force. But 900,000,000 of the earth's inhabitants know of no other coinage than silver, while the gold standard of value obtains under some 350,000,000. But even in gold countries silver is almost exclusively used in ordinary traffic. It is the coin of the common people all over the world. We are supposed to have $760,000,000 of gold against less than $400,000,000 of silver, yet who ever sees a gold coin? Apart from bills employed, our pockets are filled with silver pieces, from dimes to dollars.

The failure of the present French ministry to help De Lesseps is undoubtedly due to the attitude of the United States, but should Boulanger get into power, he announces his intention of helping the Panama Canal enterprise by the direction of the government. He could afford to run the risk, as the French navy is vastly superior to ours, and our sea-coast cities are exposed to the attacks of any foreign power that has an abundance of iron-clad ships of war. We haven't even begun to make the ordnance which is to defend our principal cities. We have, it is true, a few good ships, recently constructed, but France can bring twenty guns to bear against our one. Of course, we mean those in the cruisers, for on shore we have none at all. Notwithstanding the failure of the De Lesseps Company, we believe the Panama Canal will be completed before two years are over, and most probably by the direct help of the French government. When the time comes, instead of fighting, we will be forced to eat humble pie; but the occurrence will probably bring home to our people their folly in talking bravely at a time when they are defenseless against foreign nations.

Householders in the central and lower parts of the city complain of the growing scarcity of Croton water above the ground floors of their dwellings. They have been looking for some relief as the new aqueduct would be completed before the close of this year. But now comes to the front the president of the reconstructed aqueduct board, who announces that the supply of water will not be greatly enlarged until the Quaker Bridge Dam can be constructed—a work that will take five years at least to make available, and which wi cost a great deal of money. Yet the same official admits that the Sodom storage resevoirs will be finished at the same time with the new aqueduct, and that its capacity will be 25,000,000 gallons of water per day. This surely ought to be some help. But the president of the board strangely omits telling the public that for at least eight months in the year there is far more water wasted in the overflow of the Croton Dam than is brought to the city by the old aqueduct. Much of this now wasted water will be made available for the use of our citizens when the new aqueduct is completed. Now, while we ourselves favor the final construction of the Quaker Dam, we really need not be in any hurry to spend the money that costly improvement will call for. Let us see what the new aqueduct will do for us first. The great merit of the gentlemen appointed by Mayor Hewitt was that they were not politicians, but they seem quite as anxious as the latter to spend the public money when they have a chance to do so, and do not scruple to suppress vital facts in order to accomplish that object.

The "Times" Building.

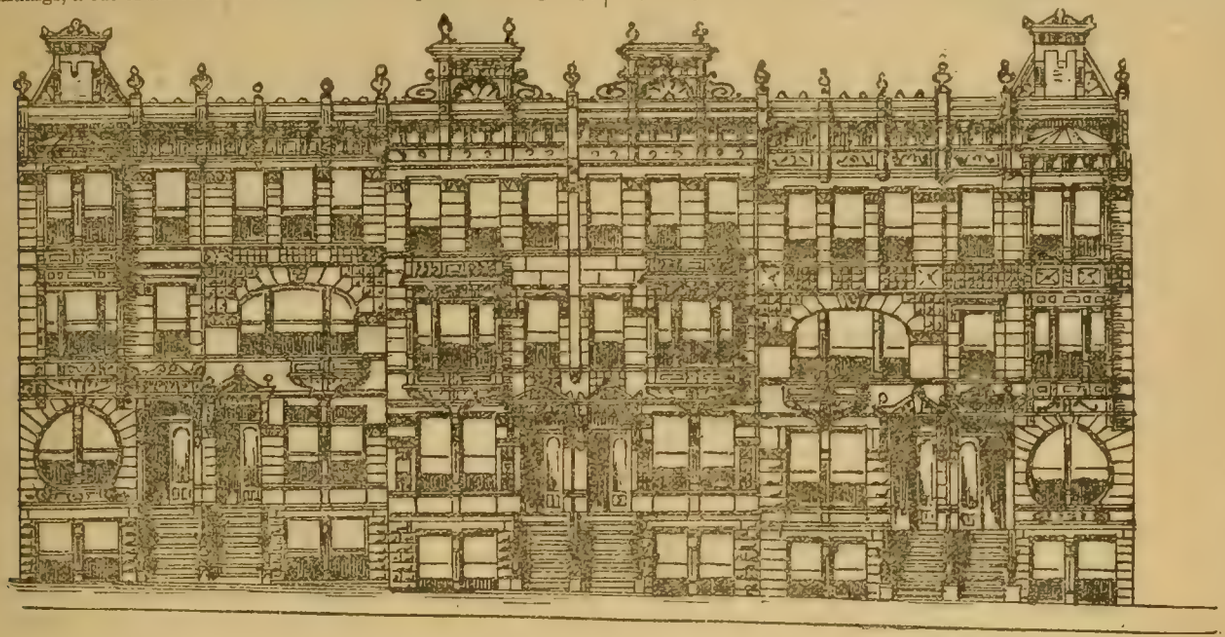
The new building of the Times newspaper has achieved a remarkable popular success, being generally esteemed the finest commercial building in New York. It owes this success in part to the advantages the designer enjoyed, and in still greater part to the skill with which he has turned them to account. He has been especially fortunate in his site, a trapezoid of nearly 100 feet on the converging sides and the same on the longer of the parallel sides, by some 65 feet on the shorter of these. Moreover, not merely is the building detached on three sides, while on the fourth it adjoins the Potter building, which has at least the qualification of throwing into the sharpest relief by contrast any architectural merit its neighbor may possess, but this detachment is so nearly an isolation that the north front of the building can be seen from a distance of some 700 or 800 feet, and the west front across the park from Broadway.

The drawbacks that are to be set off against these very rare advantages are merely the inevitable drawbacks of commercial elevator architecture. The necessity for the light in the lower stories forbids the architect to give his substructure the solidity that is needful to make it visibly adequate to bear a towering superstructure, and the multiplicity of stories tends, if they are similarly treated, to make each insignificant and the total result monotonous, or if variety of treatment be attempted, to make this variety seem forced and arbitrary and to deprive the building of the repose which is the first essential of architectural effect. To know how difficult it is in the treatment of a front of twelve stories to avoid monotony on the one hand and restlessness on the other, it is only necessary to look at the Potter building which adjoins the Times building on the south, and which the designer has contrived to make appear at once monotonous and uneasy.

The good old Aristotelian precept that a work of art must have a beginning, a middle and an end is applicable to no art more forcibly than to architecture, while it is particularly difficult to apply to a commercial building of many and virtually equal stories. The expedients to which designers resort in order to attain it may be reduced to the one of grouping several stories and treating the aggregation as an integral part of the building. In the Times building this is done by carrying the openings through several stories. The piers of the lower four stories on the north front and of the lower five on the Park row front are united by round arches, three on the narrower and three on the longer front. The two lower stories are of granite, but this is manifestly used as a matter of practical necessity and the difference of material, which gives little contrast of color between the pale gray of the basement and the buff limestone of which the superstructure is composed, is rather slurred than emphasized in treatment, being recognized only in the extreme plainness with which the more intractable material is treated, and in a light moulded string course that traverses the building above the second story. Architecturally the first five stories are the basement of the building. As has been said, the bays formed by the piers and the large arches extend through four stories on the north front. The fifth consists of three pairs of arches coupled over each of the large openings below. On the Park row front this arrangement is repeated in the narrow bay at the north end, while the three wider bays are continued through the fifth story.

The central division of the building includes six stories, and extends from the basement just described to the main cornice above the twelfth story, a continuous and emphatic belt, and the only horizontal line running through above the fifth story, where a moulded string course marks the summit of the substructure. This second division is again subdivided into a lower group of four stories and an upper of two. The lower group is on the north front composed of three bays, of which the piers, unbroken and aligned over those below, are connected by round arches. On the longer front these openings are doubled over the arches below, the base of each central pier coming directly over the crown of the lower arch. The openings of the upper group running through two stories are doubled on the north front, and on the west front are arranged by threes. A tall two-storied gabled dormer of two arched openings culminates the north front at its centre, and three similar dormers are ranged along the longer front. These two stories include a parapet-story and a roof-story. On each side of the central dormer on the north front a pair of small lintelled openings, with a shaft between, pierces the parapet, and over each in the roof is a small gabled dormer.

The most obviously questionable point in the design is the grouping of stories by the prolongation of the openings. It would be pedantic and even absurd to object to this upon the ground that it is deceptive, for the floor lines everywhere appear, and indeed are emphasized by heavy iron transoms, albeit these are withdrawn from the faces of the piers. The real architectural objection to this disposition is that it appears forced and arbitrary, and thus loses the attractiveness that comes of a straightforward and expressive treatment of the actual features of the structure. No doubt it is arbitrary, but there is no method of grouping the stories of a building all the apartments in which are similar in size and in use which is not open to the same objection. The neighbor of the Times—the Tribune building—is a skillful and straightforward design, though its attractiveness is impaired by the unfortunate use of color, and the design would be more readily apprehensible, as well as more effective, if it had been executed in monochrome. In the Tribune building each story is treated by itself, but the architect felt the necessity of a grouping which should include several stories, and effected this by the segmental arches that connect the principal piers above the fourth story. These answer their purpose, but as they are obviously superfluous structurally they are and appear as arbitrary as the colossal order which the Palladian architects applied to their buildings for the purpose of securing predominant features, or as the modern device of inclosing several stories under a single opening which is employed in the Times building. There is no question that, as Mr. Post has employed it here, this method does give very noble features. An arcade of three openings over 20 feet in span and twice that in height cannot fail to be impressive with only tolerable detail, or indeed with no detail at all. There is nothing in the commercial architecture of New York, and not much in the modern commercial architecture of any city that can surpass the effect of these great arches.



It is perhaps a just general criticism upon the design of the building that the horizontal lines are not strongly enough emphasized in comparison with the vertical. As has been pointed out, there are but two continuous horizontal lines over the granite basement, one above the fifth story and one above the eleventh. On the other hand the terminal piers are projected a few inches, and the three intermediate piers between the large arches on the longer fronts are likewise projected and continued through eleven stories, thus carrying the eye at all these points from the sidewalk to the roof and emphasizing the height of the building. Meanwhile there is nothing to bring out the lateral extent of the fronts except the lines already spoken of, and they are ineffectual against the stress thus laid upon the height. There is no danger that a thirteen-story building even of this area will not look tall enough, and it is to be regretted that these vertical strips have been applied. If they had been omitted, and the whole wall confined to the same plane, the piers, the whole breadth of which is none too great, would have gained in breadth and in apparent sufficiency of abutment for the arches, and this disposition could scarcely have failed to add to the dignity of the fronts. There might also have been introduced with advantage more important horizontal features than mere belt courses. One of these has been introduced on the north front in the single fifth story of coupled arches with emphatic string courses above and below, though the lower is stopped against the terminal piers, while the upper crosses them. This arrangement reappears in the narrow corner bay of the Park row front. If it had been continued it would have served as an effective frieze, so to speak, for the lower division, and it would have belted the building much more effectually than can be done by the mere prolongation of a moulded course. It would have had this additional advantage that, by providing a continuous wall for the supports of the upper stories, it would have avoided the extreme awkwardness of the present arrangement by which the heavy central mullions of the tall coupled arches above stand upon the crowns of the arches below, and this is the weakest point in the design as it has been executed. There need, we think, have been no fear that such a feature would cut the building into horizontal layers, but even if it had done so, that would have been preferable, in a front of these dimensions and proportions, to cutting it into vertical slices, which is the effect of prolonging and projecting the piers.

This application seems to be a reminiscence of the Renaissance in which Mr. Post has worked so long, and which he has so completely discarded in this building that it would not be identified as his by those who are most familiar with his other works—recalling, indeed, the work of Mr. Richardson rather than that of its author. If it is to be classified at all it would be as a Romanesque building, but it is more satisfactory and indeed more accurate to describe it simply as free architecture. Some details that were great favorites of Mr. Richardson's are conspicuously introduced here, such as the miniature balustrades in relief that fill the bases of the great openings in the third and sixth stories, and the decorated roll mouldings at the intrados of their arches. But the detail differs markedly from that of Mr. Richardson's work in the absence of that exaggeration of parts which the immense vigor of his designs enabled them to carry off successfully, but which in other hands becomes merely wild and crude. In scale and in adjustment the detail of the Times building is characterized by discreetness, moderation and propriety. The ornament throughout is extremely well studied and well applied. The gargoyles protruding obliquely from the corners of the cornice, though of course merely ornaments in a modern building, answer admirably their purpose of giving point and piquancy to the chief horizontal feature, while the comparatively solid parapet story serves to heighten the effect of the large and picturesque dormer that rises from its centre. The treatment of this part of the building is especially admirable, and is marred only by a mistake in the decoration of the gablets. The foot as well as the apex of each carries a foliated finial, and just below this protrudes a gargoyle. The designer has forgotten to allow for the violent foreshortening these ornaments would undergo, and while, no doubt, they would take their places if seen at or near a level, at their actual altitude the gargoyle and the finial are confused into an amorphous mass. But this is the sole miscalculation of the kind that the building presents. The mouldings of the cornice, the capitals of the upper columns, the carvings in the spandrils of the great arches are all apprehensible and sharply effective from the street. All the detail gains greatly by the background of rough-faced limestone. It is hard to believe that this is the same material that is used in the Mutual Life building and in the basement of the Cotton Exchange, so much softer and richer is the tint given by the texture of its roughened surface. The Times and its architect are to be congratulated upon a noble and dignified building, and New Yorkers upon an ornament to their street architecture that is also a showing, which is not likely to be wasted upon other designers, of what can be done with an elevator office building.

The daily newspapers are just announcing the fact foreshadowed in these columns on May 12th last, in an article on west side churches, namely: that the First Baptist Church have decided to sell their property on the northwest corner of Park avenue and 39th street and to move up town. They are said to have been in treaty for the purchase of lots on Manhattan square and also on 79th street and the Boulevard.

A Notable Block.

In our issue of November 17th we called the attention of our readers to the artistic group of private dwellings then in course of erection on the north side of 47th street, between 3d and Lexington avenues, and which now present so agreeable a contrast to the monotonous uniformity of the brown stone fronts of the other houses of that neighborhood. Feeling that any honest endeavor to give true artistic character and tone to the architecture of our city streets should meet with all encouragement, we have obtained, by the courtesy of Messrs. Schneider & Herter, the architects of these buildings, a cut of six of the thirteen houses comprised in this group, and invite the critical attention of our readers to the beauty of their design and the general effect produced by erecting rows of houses of the same general style, yet with individual variations. Here we have six dwellings all in the style of the modern Renaissance, with effective and graceful arches, some of which have a leaning toward the Moorish type, all grouped under one coping; and yet each house differs from its neighbor—some being built of Amherst stone with Berea stone trimmings, and others of Connecticut brown stone, while some have bay windows in the second and third stories, and others only in the second, and others again differ somewhat in the treatment of their entrances and windows, while all are enriched with carving of unique and artistic design.

NORTH SIDE OF 47TH STREET, between 3d and Lexington avenues. From designs by SCHNEIDER & HERTER.

It is greatly to be deplored that more of our large builders do not permit their architects to imprint a general architectural effect on certain streets, or at least individual blocks, instead of urging them, when, as rarely, they are willing to erect something better than the ordinary brown stone front, to design something startlingly original and as different as possible from the neighboring buildings. What a grand opportunity there was in Wall street to give unity of effect to that great thoroughfare, where so many millions of dollars have been spent in the erection of the most costly office buildings, and which might have been one of the most architecturally beautiful, as well as one of the most widely known streets of the world! But no; every fine building there is a feature in itself, and neither lends nor receives beauty from its neighbor, thus preventing the entire street from having any prevailing character.

The interior of the houses illustrated above are admirably arranged and plumbed and ventilated in accordance with the latest and most approved sanitary theories. They are handsomely finished in various hardwoods—two in hazelwood, two in oak and two in cherry—and almost all the rooms have ornamental open grates, with mantels, mirrors and fixtures corresponding in finish to the general style of the rooms. The architects, Messrs. Schneider & Herter, are two very genial gentlemen, who have been engaged for many years in the designing of dwellings, apartment houses and churches in this city and in various parts of the country. CRITIC.

The Progress Club Building.

The construction of this building, which promises to be one of the finest club houses of the city, is not sufficiently far advanced to warrant, in justice to the architects or ourselves, critical consideration. For the present we reserve judgment, but in order to give color to the illustration of the building published in this number a short description will be of interest.

The building overlooks Central Park, and is situated on the north corner of 5th avenue and 63d street. It fronts 100 feet on the avenue and 92 feet on the street, the lot being 100x100, permitting a passageway 8 feet wide from the street to the rear, for light, ventilation, the delivery of stores, etc. The building will consist of a cellar, basement, three principal stories and two mezzanine floors at the second and third stories. The style of architecture adopted is the Italian Renaissance in vogue in Florence during the 15th century. Great care has been given to the choice of material. For the facades a specially made fawn-colored brick, terra cotta of a deeper shade and Belleville gray rock will be used. Judging by what is already in place the combination seems to be an excellent one. The balcony railings, the window guards, etc., will be of highly ornamental wrought iron.

The interior arrangement of the building is said to deserve strong commendation, all the requirements of the club having been amply provided for and some of them in a most original and effective manner. In the cellar—well lighted by means of deep areas and bulkhead windows—there will be on the 5th avenue side bowling alleys reached by a broad flight of stairs from the basement main hall, and on the 63d street side as well as in the rear will be storage rooms and wine cellars and rooms for the engines, boilers, dynamos, etc. The basement, which is to be very handsomely fitted, will contain a large billiard room and café connected by hat and cloak rooms, the rest of the space being occupied by the steward's receiving rooms, larders and sculleries, all of which have separate entrances from the alleyway.

The main hall on the first floor is to be of magnificent proportions. In width it will be 22 feet. On the 5th avenue side of this floor will be the drawing rooms, ladies' parlors and library, and on the opposte side reception and committee rooms, the smaller dining-room and the office.

The second floor will be given up to the banquet hall, which is expected to be one of the noblest apartments in the country. It will be 88 feet long, 55 feet wide and 24 feet high. The remainder of the floor will be devoted to serving rooms and four card rooms. In the mezzanine story, interposed between this and the third floor, the ladies retiring rooms will be situated, as well as smoking and chess rooms.

The ballroom, with connecting parlors and wide lobbies, will occupy the third floor. The dimensions of this room will be 88x65x34 high, and the lobby, which is treated so as to form practically a part of this room, is 60 feet long, and is of breadth sufficient to easily accommodate all those that may not be dancing. Toilet and dressing rooms are also to be on this floor.

A prominent feature of the interior plan is the great staircase, extending from basement to lobby. Above the second floor it is 35x60 feet, entirely open, and crowned with a large dome light.

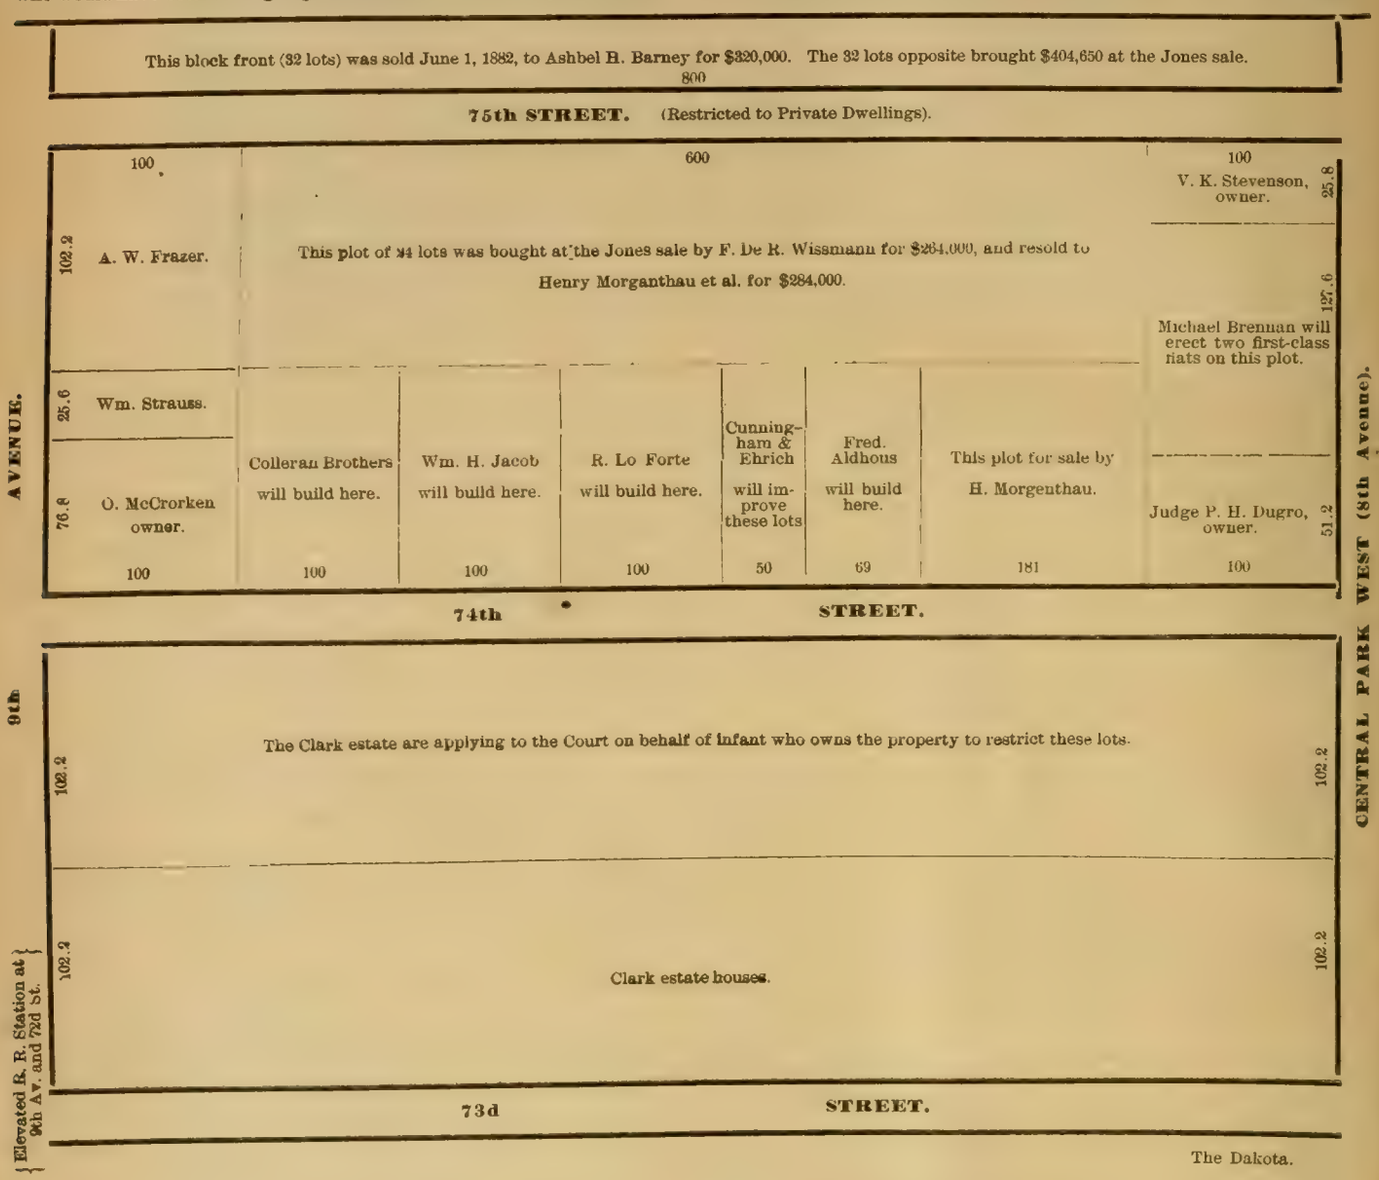
The completion of this building is looked forward to, not only by the members of the club, but by architects and all who are interested in architecture. When the construction is further advanced we shall speak of it more critically.

A Fire-Proof Hall of Records.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE has frequently urged upon the authorities the necessity of erecting a fire-proof Hall of Records. The daily press is now taking up the matter, and the following extract from a leading editorial in the Herald is worth quoting in this connection:

"The Hall of Records contains a priceless treasure and its destruction would put us to infinite trouble and perhaps subject us to litigations innumerable.

"It holds the records which give title to $2,000,000,000 worth of real estate. Stowed under its clumsy roof are more than 2,000 books of deeds, over 200 volumes of mortgages. These records, some of them, go back as far as 1654.



"Suppose the building should get ablaze. Every property-owner in the city is interested in that chance. * * * That ramshackle structure ought to come down. In its place should be erected a building perfectly fire-proof and sufficiently commodious to satisfy the growing needs of the hour."

The records of conveyances and other deeds would not, of course, be entirely lost to the city in case the present Hall of Records should be destroyed by fire. The deeds recorded since March, 1868—and these cover probably four-fifths of the property on Manhattan Island—would be obtainable from the files of THE RECORD AND GUIDE. Besides, the Title Guarantee and Trust Company has a complete record in duplicate of the city conveyances and mortgages commencing with the first recorded deed, including the annexed portion of Westchester County, But while it is satisfactory to know that there is a copy of every conveyance, mortgage and other instrument affecting real estate in the possession of that company—and New York is at least as well off in this respect as Chicago was at the time of her great conflagration—the city should not take any chances, and it is imperative that a fire-proof Hall of Records should be built.

The Jones Estate Block.

Never did an auction sale of New York city property create greater interest than the recent sale, on the Real Estate Exchange, of the realty belonging to the estate of the late Joshua Jones. Never was such a sight seen in the annals of real estate as the eager, hustling, excited crowd that thronged to overpouring the Liberty street salesroom on November 22d last.

The Jones estate sale will always be a red letter day in the history of great public sales of realty in this city. It was not alone that the sales aggregated nearly $2,000,000, and that the properties were auctioned off in less than two hours' time. People also came to see what would happen to prices when a perfect shoal of vacant lots were thrown on the market at one stroke. Friends of the deceased millionaire wanted to see what figures would be reached for lots which were originally purchased for a mere trifle. Brokers, agents, merchants, clerks, bankers, and capitalists of every description elbowed each other for nearly two hours, and watched with "bated breath" while a crowd of nervy bidders were seeking to get a parcel of the two blocks which had lain dormant for so many years, while the mason's trowel had reared row after row of buildings all around them, to the right, left and front. The market stood the test as few had expected it would. Not a lot was left unsold, and there were buyers on the Exchange who would have been willing to purchase more still had they been offered.

But let us take a search into what has been done with some of the vacant properties since, and what is likely to become of them in the way of improvement.

The first lot resold was disposed by Judge P. H. Dugro to Michael Giblin, the builder, for $32,150, an advance of $2,150, a few day after the sale. This lot is situated on the northwest corner of 9th avenue and 74th street, and is to be improved by the erection of a very handsome apartment house. Almost simultaneously the twenty-four lots purchased by Broker F. De R. Wissmann were resold to Messrs. Henry Morgenthau, Wm. J. Ehrich, Charles Weinberg and Alfred T. Leward for $284,000, an advance of $20,000. This, with the 600 feet comprising the 74th street front purchased by Messrs. Morgenthau & Ehrich and R. A. Cunningham at the sale for $283,200, brought the holdings of Mr. Morgenthau and his friends up to forty-eight lots, costing $567,200. Purchases of this character and by such a shrewd judge of real estate as that gentleman is known to be, show that the property is going to have an important future before it. And, as if to bear out this view, the news reaches me that there is not the least doubt about the report as to the restriction of this property. I am able to state on the very best authority that not only the northern front of 74th street, but also both sides of 75th street, will be restricted to private residences. Besides, as though to give an additional guarantee to the selectness of the location hereafter, the entire northern front of the latter street is now held by the well-known property-owner, Mr. Charles T. Barney. It has also been arranged upon that the residences to be built on 75th street are to be set back 8 feet beyond the house line instead of only 5 feet, as is usual where such restrictions are made.

The character of the property is already determining itself. Beginning at a point 100 feet east of 9th avenue on the north side of 74th street, no less than 475 feet, or eighteen lots, have already been purchased for improvement. The first 100 feet will be improved by Messrs. Colleran and Brother, the next by Wm. H. Jacob, and the four lots adjoining by Mr. R. Le Forte, a gentleman distinguished in decorative art circles, who only recently returned to this city after several years sojourn in Europe, and who selected these four lots for the investment of his capital. The 50 feet adjoining will be improved by Messrs. Cunningham and Ehrich, while the plot of 69 feet further east will be built upon by Mr. F. Aldhous. All this property will be improved with private houses of a first-class character. Between them and the lot purchased at the sale by Judge Dugro there is a vacuum of 181 feet, and this, too, will no doubt soon be sold and improved with private residences. Michael Brennan, the well-known builder, will improve five lots on the Central Park West front with handsome apartment houses which will be an ornament and not a detriment to the block. Mr. Vernon K. Stevenson still owns the southwest corner on that avenue and 75th street, and Judge Dugro two lots on the corner of 74th street.

The diagram given below shows, at a glance, names of the owners on and near the block, the improvements contemplated, and other information that will be of interest to those who own property in the neighborhood. The 600 feet owned by Mr. Morgenthau on the south side of 75th street, between the Central Park West and 9th avenue fronts, are not yet disposed of for improvement, but they are to be offered for sale to builders or investors, in large and small parcels, who will contract to cover the property with first-class residences that will give tone and character to the block.

I learn that the Clark estate have made application to the Court on behalf of a minor who owns the property on the south front of 74th street, to restrict it in a similar manner to the front in the rear on the north side of 73d street, which is covered with such a row of fine residences—the pioneer row of the west side. This application, if granted—as it no doubt will be—will greatly benefit the Morganthau block and place the final seal upon the character of the neighborhood which, in a year or two hence, will have become one of the finest and most select on the west side.

OBSERVER.

A meeting of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association will take place on Saturday, the 12th inst., at 8 P. M., at the new Mount St. Vincent Hotel, 10th avenue and 148th street. The Committee on Constitution and By-Laws and on Nomination of Officers will submit its report for confirmation, and it is expected that the society will be definitely organized. Mr. M. Van Rensselaer is the temprorary chairman.

Good People to Know.

HOWARD FLEMING.

The importation of Portland Cement and Enameled Bricks is increasing annually and a large share of the business is secured by Howard Fleming, of No. 23 Liberty street, who for over twelve years has been furnishing the trade, and from his thorough knowledge of the business buyers can depend upon the quality of his importations. He is the sole agent for Gibbs' and Black Cross Portland Cements, which are largely used by U. S. Government engineers and contractors, as they make the strongest concrete. The foundations of the Congressional Library building, Washington, have been put in with these brands in preference to any other. Ingham's Enameled Brick are the standard for quality and finish, and for the Bank of America, Commercial Union Insurance Company and other large contracts these bricks were selected. We take this opportunity to call attention to English Duresco, a valuable material for preventing damp walls and preserving brick and stone. The Quarantine buildings on Hoffman Island and the Jerome Park Association buildings, in addition to the great Ponce De Leon Hotel at St. Augustine, Fla., may be mentioned as references.

E. A. CRUIKSHANK & CO.

In the very front rank of real estate firms in this country stands that of Messrs. E. A. Cruikshank & Co. They have a wide reputation for square dealing and personal industry in behalf of their clients. The three brothers who are members of this firm are amongst the most active and industrious in real estate circles—conditions made imperative, indeed, by the vast amount of business transacted by them. They have entire charge of many well-known estates and have a large list of properties of every description for sale and rent in all parts of the city. The head of the firm, Mr. E. A. Cruikshank, enjoys the distinction of having been twice elected to the presidency of the Real Estate Exchange. This office was established in 1794, and will therefore celebrate its centenary five years hence.

RICHARD V. HARNETT & CO.

This well-known firm has for many years enjoyed the reputation of being unsurpassed amongst real estate auctioneers. The name is known in every State of the Union, and is associated with industry, ability and integrity. Mr. Richard V. Harnett, the head of the firm, is considered one of the best judges of realty in the city. His evidence as an expert has been admitted as final in numerous cases in our courts of law, and is deferred to by many of the best firms and corporations in and out of the Metropolis. He has conducted a large part of the important auctions of property held on the Real Estate Exchange for a decade or more, and his total sales since he first appeared on the stand must amount to hundreds of millions of dollars. His private sales are also numerous and frequent, and many properties are intrusted to his charge for sale, rent and management. His office continues at No. 73 Liberty street, near the Real Estate Exchange, of which he is a prominent director.

GEO. R. READ.

Mr. Read's office has achieved the distinction of being one of the first amongst the real estate offices down town. He has carried through many important transactions, and his business is increasing each year. He was recently elected a director in the Real Estate Exchange, and an evidence of his fitness for executive position is seen in the fact that he was elected treasurer of that important institution immediately upon his election, for the first time, to the directorate; a very high compliment. Mr. Read's office is in the Astor building, No. 9 Pine street, for which he is the agent.

A. VAN DOLSEN & SON.

To be established for thirty-five years, to have done first-class work on an almost countless list of buildings of every possible description, and to have earned the respect and confidence of every one by whom they have been employed as builders, is the enviable reputation of this well-known firm. Both father and son are men in whom great reliance is placed. They take the entire contracts for all masonry work in buildings, and invariably acquit themselves satisfactorily. They have built some of the most important houses, office buildings and other structures in New York, and amongst the recent contracts awarded them is that for the new Progress Club, of which an illustration is published with this issue of THE RECORD AND GUIDE. Their offices are at Nos. 407 and 409 Broadway.

SMYTH & RYAN.

This down-town firm of energetic brokers and agents have increased their business and clientage every year since they entered the real estate business on their own account. They are members of the Real Estate Exchange, and have a large number of properties of every description on their books for sale and rent. They have made numerous sales of property, and have given considerable satisfaction to their clients in the management of their real estate. Their office will continue to be at No. 70 Liberty street, near Broadway. Telephone, John 835.

THE GERMAN-AMERICAN TITLE GUARANTEE COMPANY.

The organization of the title guarantee companies was a step of the utmost importance to the real estate world. By abolishing the old uncertainty and delay which formerly attended the transfer of real property they made a city lot with residence thereon, or an acre of land, almost as quickly marketable as any other commodity. Among the companies who have greatly helped to effect this change is the German-American Real Estate Title Guarantee Company, of No. 34 Nassau street. The financial condition of this corporation is of the highest order, and its policy is most liberal. Its guarantees are unquestioned everywhere, and the company itself make time loans on its own titles. It does a very large business among our German-American citizens. Hon. Noah Davis is the consulting counsel, and Hon. A. P. Fitch associate counsel of this company.

THE WORTHINGTON PUMPS.

The fact that the Worthington Pumps are the best in the market is perhaps as incontestable as a fact can be. It is attested by an absolutely world-wide use, by governments, admiralties, municipalities and great manufacturing concerns. Referring merely to one class of pump, that intended for waterworks, engines with a total pumping capacity of over 1,635,000,000 gallons in twenty-four hours are now in use in different cities in this country, as well as in Berlin, London, Paris, St. Petersburg, Odessa, Astrakhan (Russia), Guadalajara (Mexico), Bradford (England), Parana (Argentine Republic), Sydney (Australia), and elsewhere. These pumps, moreover, are to be used in the Paris Exposition this year, and it will be remembered that during the Soudan War the Worthington Pump was selected by the British government for the water line into the desert from Suakim. The firm, Henry R. Worthington, whose offices are at Nos. 86 and 88 Liberty street, makes pumps for all purposes and of all sizes, and a good example of a pump suitable for buildings is in use in the Equitable building. Our readers should send for their catalogue and for the history of the development of one of the most widely-used engines in the world by Henry R. Worthington.

GILLIS & GEOGHEGAN.

We republish in this issue the advertisement of this well-known and highly-esteemed firm, which appeared in one of the very first numbers of THE RECORD AND GUIDE, now twenty-one years ago. The growth of this concern has been of the most solid character, and is directly due to straightforward dealing, first-class workmanship and enterprise of the sterling kind. The Gillis & Geoghegan steam and hot water heating plants are undoubtedly unsurpassed by none in the market, and perhaps this fact may be emphasized better than in any other way by the statement that they are to be used in the great office buildings of the New York Life Insurance Co. in Kansas City (119x158x120 high, 516 radiators; McKim, Mead & White, architects), and St. Paul, Minn. (100x100x110, 332 radiators; Babb, Cook & Willard, architects), and are now in operation in the Potter building in this city, the Broadway Theatre, Aldrich Court, St. Patrick's Cathedral, Mr. Ogden Goelet's private house, the Sloan Maternity Hospital, the residences of Levi P. Morton and Eugene Kelly, the New York Stock Exchange, the City Hall, etc. Architects and others should send for estimates to Messrs. Gillis & Geoghegan, Nos. 116 to 122 Wooster street, before giving their orders.

KIRTLAND, ANDREWS & CO. (LIM.)

Among the beautiful salerooms of this city, few are so artistic and attractive as those of the well-known firm of Kirtland, Andrews & Co., at 46 and 48 Union square. The walls are lined with a large assortment of grates and open fire-places of the most ornamental designs, with polished and antique brasses, oxidized or finished in gold, and decorated with tiling of varied and artistic designs and combinations of color. The firm makes a specialty of taking measurements in private houses and designing fire-places, side-boards and book-cases, and every description of interior furniture, and their work may be seen in many of the most elegant residences in the country. A sufficient guarantee of the high standing of this firm and the quality of their work is that they are to furnish all the slate work to be used in the Times building, illustrated in this number. Among the out-of-town private dwellings in which their designs may be seen may be mentioned those of Dr. Grant in Saratoga, E. H. Apar and J. C. Besson of Jersey City, John Reynolds and Henry Dougherty of Paterson, Edward Lister and G. M. Douglas of Newark, S. J. Benedict of Montclair, and a host of others.

S. F. JAYNE & CO.

The two very courteous members of this firm are a strong illustration of the old saying that "the true gentleman always succeeds in business." Messrs. Jayne & Co. have for many years conducted a quiet and genteel business on 23d street, near 8th avenue, and no real estate office is better known on the lower west side. They control a good deal of property in their immediate neighborhood, and many of the merchants, bank officers, tradesmen and residents on the avenues and streets around their vicinity always speak in terms of highest praise of this firm. Mr. S. F. Jayne takes an active interest in the welfare of the Real Estate Exchange, and it is an open secret that but for his modest backwardness he might now have been a very prominent officer of that institution. Mr A. M. Cudner, his partner, has taken no inconsiderable part in building up the firm, and is an able manager. Messrs. Jayne & Co. make a specialty of taking charge of estates, renting, collecting, etc. Their down-town office is in the Real Estate Exchange building.

H. H. CAMMANN & CO.

The name which stands at the head of this notice is one of the best known amongst real estate houses in the city. Mr. Cammann, the head of the firm, has made a first-class reputation for his office during the many years it has been in existence and his influence, from a social as well as a business point of view, has made the firm one of the most respected in the community. Mr. Cammann has a very able and courteous associate in his partner, Mr. Newbold T. Lawrence, who possesses all the ability necessary to lend strength to the important real estate firm of which he is a member. Mr. Cammann, as a director in the Real Estate Exchange, retains as much interest in that institution as when he was president. The firm continues at No. 51 Liberty street.

THOMAS & ECKERSON.

The members of this firm are both well and favorably known to many property-owners in this city, and especially to those who own real estate on the line of Broadway, anywhere between 14th and 59th streets. Their quarters in Palmer's (late Wallack's) Theatre building is known as one of the handsomest and most artistic amongst the real estate offices in and around New York. They have charge of numerous estates, and negotiate a great many sales and rentals every year. They have a large collection and renting business, and have an extensive list of properties of every description on their books for sale and to rent. The members of the firm are both able and experienced agents and brokers.

MOODY & BRACKEN.

This reliable firm of plumbers have turned out excellent work in many of our important buildings and private residences. They have received the contracts for numerous structures of every description all over the city, and amongst the most recent of these the following may be selected: The New York Club, All Saints' Church Rectory, the Broadway Theatre, the Barclay Street and Fourteenth Street Ferry Houses, the handsome Montague apartment house, Brooklyn, and the residences of Edward M. Field, Gramercy Park; Joseph Goulding, 11 East 54th street; E. P. Dutton, 24 West 51st street, and many others in and out of New York State. They have also been successful in obtaining contracts for plumbing for the Young Women's Christian Association and for two Y. M. C. A. buildings. They also did the work on the remodeling of the City Hall. Their place of business is at No. 939 6th avenue, near 53d street.

THE NEW YORK & ROSENDALE CEMENT.

The market for this cement, so well-known as the "Snyder Brand," is growing larger every year. It has stood some extraordinary tests. One of these extended over a period of ten months, and was made by Mr. C. C. Martin, the principal assistant engineer of the Brooklyn Bridge, in the mason work of which over 100,000 barrels was used. These tests were pronounced to be "uniformly satisfactory." Mr. G. Lindenthal, chief engineer of the Monongahela Bridge, writes: "It has been used for concrete in foundations under water, and in the concrete filling of the large piers, with entire success. Especially commendable is its reliable, even quality, which, we found, distinguishes it favorably in that respect from other cements used in the same work." This cement is made of the natural stone, and is especially adapted for work where tensile and compressive tests are required. Some 40,000 barrels have been used in the new bridge over the Harlem. The brand is named after the genial secretary, Mr. Hiram Snyder, a well-known and prominent member of the Building Material Exchange, from whom catalogues, etc., can be obtained at the office of the New York & Rosendale Cement Company, No. 229 Broadway.

S. DE WALLTEARSS.

Mr. De Walltearss has long been known as a capable real estate auctioneer, appraiser, broker and agent. He has done considerable business in every one of these capacities and his opinion on the values of property are considered sound and conservative. He makes a point of attending to loans on mortgage and transacts a general real estate business. His office is in the Benedict building, No. 171 Broadway. Mr. De Walltearss is also a member of the Real Estate Exchange.

L. J. CARPENTER.

Little can be said in these columns to enhance the reputation of this name, which is one of the first and most reputable amongst real estate firms. It is also one of the best equipped and ably managed. Some of the principal properties in the city are in the charge of Mr. Carpenter and his excellent staff of assistants, and an extensive list of properties of every description can be had at his office No. 41 Liberty street. He has a branch at No. 1181 3d avenue, near 67th street.

F. R. HOUGHTON.

There are few people in real estate circles who have not heard of "Houghton's Real Estate Reference," which contains a record for upwards of twenty years, classified and indexed, of real estate conveyances, mortgages, leases, leasehold conveyances, new and altered buildings, names of owners and fluctuations in prices of all properties on New York Island. This is kept up to date and can be seen for reference at Mr. Houghton's office, No. 145 Broadway. The labor involved in its compilation was immense and of many years' duration. Mr. Houghton is also an appraiser, and transacts a general real estate business. He refers, by permission, to the ex-President of the Real Estate Exchange, W. E. D. Stokes, W. S. Patten, A. P. Man and others, amongst whom are the President of the Northern Railroad of New Jersey, and the cashier of the Chatham National Bank. He has a branch office at the corner of 9th avenue and 72d street. It should be added that Mr. Houghton's reference system is an intelligent and elaborate storehouse of valuable information on every parcel of real estate for nearly a generation past and it is possessed by no other broker in the city.

WALBRIDGE BROS. & COOK.

The business of this well-known Brooklyn firm of manufacturers of wood mantels has not only greatly increased during the past year, but has extended in a very flattering way in this city. ERSKINE W. FISHER.

The sharp competition between the English and the German manufacturers of Portland cement has led to excellent results in the production of very high grades of cement by the manufacturers of both countries. For many years the imported cements used in this country were largely the English brands; but of late, owing to the great improvements made by the German manufacturers, the leading experts and principal artificial stone producers are also using the German Portland cements. Some of the best of these brands, both German and English, are sold and represented by Erskine W. Fisher, so long and favorably known to the building material trade of this and other cities. Mr. Fisher also deals in enameled bricks, soapstone, and drain and sewer piping. He makes a specialty of the Stettin "Anchor" brand, Keene's and other cements. EDGAR TUCKER.

Some of the largest transactions of last season were carried through by this well-known and experienced broker. Mr. Tucker has made some large exchanges of city for country property, a specialty which is of considerable importance, owing to the many out-of-town properties which are endeavored to be exchanged for city real estate. He has also negotiated many large mortgage loans, which he has special sources for placing, and his books contain a long list of first-class investment properties. His offices are at No. 79 and 81 Cedar street.

HENRY STEEGER.

Among the specialties which have sprung up in recent years, and which builders, property-owners and others have come to regard as one of the distinct branches of the many required in private houses and other buildings, is the manufacture of boilers, bath tubs, showers, sinks, etc. These are essentials in the completeness of a house, which require adept knowledge and long experience, and Henry Steeger has devoted his business career towards perfecting their manufacture. His copper boilers have a wide reputation, and amongst the other articles of household use and personal comfort manufactured by him are his special closet pans and foot and seat tubs. His factory is at Nos. 143 and 145 East 31st street, where estimates on every class of work of this kind can be obtained from him.

His office is on Madison avenue, near 59th street, in the well-known apartment house last named, where a full list of properties of every description, especially in this vicinity, can be obtained for rent and sale, including many well-located private houses.

THE "TIMES" BUILDING.

This magnificent office building, an illustration of which is given in this number, is now nearing completion. The exterior construction was finished some weeks ago, the scaffolding has all been removed, and the paviors have nearly completed their work around the structure. In the interior the carpentry and plastering is well under way, the staircases are nearly finished, and little remains to be done but the decoration. The building will probably be completed about March 1st, and in their advertisement in another column of this number the proprietors guarantee possession by May 1st. There is no doubt that the building will soon be filled with tenants, for it possesses unusual advantages apart from its splendid location. It is strictly fire-proof, and, being open to the air on three sides is remarkably well lighted and ventilated. The greater part of each floor is to be left unpartitioned and without interior walls, so that the space may be divided as tenants require. The building is to be kept open night and day from one year's end to the other, and of the three fast elevators specially constructed by the well-known firm of Otis Bros. & Co., one will be kept running without cessation. Electric light and steam heat are, of course, used with all the modern appliances for ventilation, sanitation, etc.; and it is the intention of the owners to make no extra charge for light, heat, or janitor's services.

He understands the real estate business thoroughly in all its branches and takes entire charge of estates, renting, collecting insurance, etc. He has an extensive list of store, house and flat property on his books for rent and sale.

J. B. & J. M. CORNELL.

The use of wrought and cast-iron work in buildings is increasing, not only in interior but exterior construction—in oriels and bays, balconies, doorways and windows. Among the manufacturers supplying this kind of work, who have received a large patronage from our leading builders and architects is the old-established, reliable firm of J. B. & J. M. Cornell, Nos. 139 to 143 Centre street, who furnished the iron work used in the Times building. Their card appears in another column. They have splendid facilities for the production of fine work at the lowest cost, and our readers will find it to their interest to consult them.

E. M. PRITCHARD.

New designs in mouldings in wood and interior trimmings are continually being originated, and the growing demand for more grace and beauty in the furnishing of our homes has led to a vast improvement in the finish and design of hand railings and balustrades and mantels, with their attendant decorations. Mr. E. M. Pritchard, of 138th street and Mott avenue, is engaged in the manufacture of wood mouldings and window frames and mantels of every description, and, as will be seen by his advertisement in this issue, is prepared to estimate on work in any desired style.

PERTH AMBOY TERRA COTTA COMPANY.

The use of terra cotta in the decoration and even the construction of buildings is not a new thing, but the general use of it in large masses and in decorative details in the way it is employed in modern architectural practice is something of an innovation. There is no doubt that in the hands of our designers it is a most effective material, and has done much to beautify and enrich our buildings. The highest class of terra cotta work is, in the opinion of many of our leading architects, that of the Perth Amboy Terra Cotta Company, whose offices are at Nos. 16–20 Cortlandt street. They certainly have done some very fine work, notably on the Produce Exchange and the new Progress Club, the designs for which are unusually handsome and unusually well executed.

THE JAMES–PRAGUE–POWER INVESTMENTS.

This syndicate of capitalists has created one of the handsomest private residence quarters in the city. It consists of Mr. D. Willis James, Architect J. G. Prague and Broker T. E. D. Power. They have turned 86th and 87th streets, between 9th and 10th avenues, especially the former street, into one of the most delightful locations, both from an architectural and ornamental point of view. They have built on these streets some sixty-three houses, as well as five flats on 9th avenue. These investments, in the cost of buildings and ground, have aggregated over $3,500,000. Out of the twenty-eight houses built by them on 86th street, only three remain in the market, and they offer these with several on 87th street for sale. They range from 17.6 to 23 feet in frontage, and are all handsome and first-class residences in every way. They can be seen on application to Mr. T. E. D. Power on the premises, or at No. 1512 Broadway.

SETON & WISSMANN.

The advance of this firm into the front rank of real estate brokers has been due to the energy and enterprise of the two gentlemen who compose it, Alfred Seton, Jr., and F. De Ruyter Wissmann. Their office is at No 79 Cedar street, but recently their increasing up-town business necessitated the opening of a branch office at No. 1142 Broadway, between 26th and 27th streets. They make a specialty of Tuxedo Park property, but do an all round real estate business of a first-class character. It will be remembered that Mr. Wissmann made $20,000 on the 75th street front which he purchased at the Jones sale. The judgment of the firm in real estate matters is excellent, as their numerous clients attest.

V. J. HEDDEN & SONS.

This important and widely-known firm are very large building contractors, and have erected some of the very finest buildings, public and private, which are to be seen in New York city. They are also builders of docks and bridges, and have, besides, large factories at Newark, where they carry on the manufacture of all manner of woodwork pertaining to building construction, such as sashes, blinds, doors and stairwork of every description. The entire contract for the erection of the New York Produce Exchange was taken by this firm, as also that of the Times building, illustrated in this number of THE RECORD AND GUIDE, besides the Tribune building and that of the New York Mercantile Exchange. The elegant residence of Wm. K. Vanderbilt is also of their construction, with many others. These facts speak for themselves, and nothing can be said to add to the reputation of so large and responsible a concern.

HOFFMAN BROS.

The gentlemen who comprise this firm have distinguished themselves by the numerous sales of importance made by them during the past few years. They have an extensive list of first-class investment properties on their books, and transact a considerable and increasing real estate business. They make loans on bond and mortgage and have a large amount of trust funds to offer for this purpose. Their office continues at Nos. 4 and 6 Warren street.

SCOTT & MYERS.

The offices of this well-known firm are at No. 146 Broadway. The business done by them is of a first-class character, and both the members of the firm are active, energetic and reliable men. They give special attention to real estate in the 23d and 24th Wards, and always have some of the choicest and most desirable property in that section on their books. They are auctioneers as well as agents and appraisers. Mr. Scott is a director of the Real Estate Exchange.

Mr. Elliott is one of the live and energetic down-town brokers who have done considerable business recently. Amongst the sales negotiated by him during the past four weeks are the dwellings at No. 413 5th avenue and No. 85 West 71st street, the first of which he sold to Mr. George Lewis, Jr., for $122,500. His office is at No. 146 Broadway and he is a member of the Real Estate Exchange.

W. P. SEYMOUR.

Mr. Seymour advertises a valuable list of properties for sale in another column. His specialty continues to be high-class residences, to which he has paid particular attention for many years, and of which he has one of the best lists in the city. His sole office is at No. 171 Broadway, where he conducts a real estate business in all its branches.

BYRNE & TUCKER.

Chief Inspector John C. Collins, of the Health Department, recently stated to a representative of THE RECORD AND GUIDE that one of the severest tests ever made of plumbing work in this city was that effected by his inspectors in the new Times building. Over 177 feet of pipe was tested, and the water test, one of the severest of its kind, was applied, showing a pressure of 76.8 pounds to the square inch, and not a leak was found anywhere after the most diligent scrutiny. This is one of the most extraordinary, as well as successful tests ever made, enormous pressure being necessary owing to the great height of the building. This firm has done the plumbing contracts on hundreds of buildings, amongst them being the New York, St. Vincent's and St. Catharine's Hospitals, the Mills, Post and Schermerhorn and Cotton Exchange buildings, and the residences of Edward Cooper, Oswald Ottendorfer, Jacob Ruppert, etc. They are experts in plumbing, sewerage and gas fitting, and are also consulting engineers. Their office is at No. 253 4th avenue.

THOMAS C. SMITH.

Among the younger members of the Real Estate Exchange who figure prominently in the transaction in realty the name of Thomas C. Smith is prominent. Mr. Smith is one of those courteous and genial gentlemen who, other things being equal, are always sure of success, but he is, as well, a good judge of real estate, and has made a specialty of the negotiation of mortgage loans. His office is in the Trinity building at No. 111 Broadway. Mr. Smith is also an auctioneer.

UP-TOWN FLATS FOR SALE.

Homer J. Beaudet, the owner of a whole block of new and improved flats situated on 7th avenue, between 118th and 119th streets, offers these buildings for sale, singly or in lots, to suit the purchaser. As will be seen by his advertisement in another column these buildings are near the elevated road station at 116th street, where there is a passenger elevator, and the flats fully rented and proving a profitable investment. The owner may be seen on the premises.

I. SERVEN.

So much artistic talent is now employed in the construction of fire-places grates and fenders, with their attendant tile work and ornamental mantels, that the salesrooms where these goods are exhibited are always interesting and beautiful. Mr. I. Serven, whose store is to be found at No. 1479 Broadway, has a very attractive assortment of tiling and brass goods and our readers are invited to inspect his stock before purchasing elsewhere.

THE HOME INSURANCE CO.

The seventy-first semi-annual statement of this well-known company, just issued, deserves the attention of all persons interested in fire insurance and in knowing which of the numerous corporations at present competing for business are working on a solid, substantial basis. The cash capital of the Home Company, whose offices are at No. 119 Broadway, is $3,000,000 and the assets $8,961,657, with a net surplus of $1,502,462.61. Their assets, which are given in detail in the statement, are of the most solid kind—U. S. currency bonds, United States of 1907, New York city bonds and the "gilt edge" securities of the leading railroads, banks and trust companies of the country.

HENRY MAURER & SON.

Few firms are so well and favorably known in the fire-proof building material market as that of Henry Maurer & Son, whose offices are at No. 420 East 23d street, and whose works have given the name to the town of Maurers on the line of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. A sufficient guarantee of the quality of the work furnished by this firm is the fact that they have supplied all of the fire-proofing material used in the new Times building, an illustration of which is one of the features of this issue of THE RECORD AND GUIDE.

THE TUCKER ELECTRICAL CONSTRUCTION CO.

The rapidly growing popularity of the electric light, and the great increase in the use of electric bells and alarms in all parts of the land, is something phenomenal. The Tucker Electrical Construction Co., whose offices are at No. 35 Broadway, are engaged in supplying private residences and public offices with electric plants of every description, and their work may be seen in many of our finest buildings, as, for instance, in the new Consolidated Stock and Petroleum Exchange, and Central Turn Verein, and the handsome residences of Archibald Rogers, at Hyde Park, N. Y., and J. H. Whittemore, at Naugatuck, Conn. The New Progress Club, illustrated in this number, will be supplied by them with an electrical outfit.

TH. ENGELHARDT.

Among the names of those who have been identified with many of Brooklyn's best and largest building enterprises the name of Th. Engelhardt stands prominent. Many of the finer private dwellings and larger buildings for business purposes which are to be found, particularly in the Eastern District of that city, owe their beauty of design to this genial architect, who may be seen at his offices at No. 905 Broadway, corner of Wall street, Brooklyn. Several large breweries, among them that of Leibinger & Oehm, which is one of the best in the country, and Louis Bossert's private residence on Bushwick avenue, are a few selected from many of his construction.

JAMES MONTGOMERY.

Among the dealers in real estate, lying in the 23d and 24th Wards and in the neighboring districts of the city, few names are more favorably known than that of James Montgomery, to whose advertisement in another column the attention of our readers is invited. Mr. Montgomery gives his personal attention to the property intrusted to him for management or sale, and may be seen at his office on 135th street, just east of 3d avenue. He advertises in this issue several desirable plots of four or more building lots for sale on easy terms with mortgage. He also offers several water fronts and factory sites.

J. THOMAS STEARNS.

Among the real estate dealers who devote especial attention to property in the outlying districts of the city and to the division and sale of large tracts of country property, as well as to the handling of city property, J. Thomas Stearns, of 59 Liberty street, has for many years held a position of prominence. Mr. Stearns gives his personal attention to property intrusted to him, and to all auction sales either on the floor of the Exchange or on the premises. This firm has a branch office in the Atheneum building, at Tremont, N. Y., from which much of their suburban business is conducted.

STEWART & CO.

It is many years since THE RECORD AND GUIDE first presented to its readers the advertising card of W. D. Stewart, who, in the year 1868, was an established manufacturer of vitrified drain and sewer pipe and all kinds of flue pipe and fire brick. The great increase in the use of terra cotta and in the various kinds of piping manufactured by this house, now Stewart & Co., and the excellence of the quality of goods made by them, have brought this firm into the very front place of houses in their line of manufacture. The large "Manhattan Pottery" owned by this firm is situated at the foot of West 18th and 19th streets, while their offices are at No. 312 Pearl street, in this city.

OFFICES ON BROADWAY.

On or about the 15th inst., Mr. Ferdinand Fish, of No. 149 Broadway, will publish the first of his usual semi-monthly lists, which will contain notices of an exceptional fine lot of offices on Broadway and other streets, the leases of which will expire on the 1st of May. These lists will be mailed on application, and anyone intending to move into other quarters would do well to call upon Mr. Fish, who is one of the most widely known and popular members of the real estate circles of this city.

SIDEWALKS AND PAVEMENTS.

We live in an age of progression, and it is a fact that the authorities of our prominent cities and towns are now bending their energies towards the adoption of pavements for roadways and sidewalks which will thoroughly embrace the following qualities: 1st. Substantiability to repel heavy traffic; 2d. A roadway that is comparatively noiseless; 3d. One that is clean and waterproof—if a pavement is waterproof it is not liable to be affected by frost nor is the foundation likely to be undermined by water; 4th. A pavement that is reasonable in cost and cheap to repair. Attention is called to the cuts of the MacKnight Flintic Stone Company displayed on page xvi. of this issue. The sidewalks and curbs laid by this company are certified to by many of our best architects and builders as superior to any other sidewalk or curb now in use. The handsome sidewalk with moulded curb laid around Wm. Noble's new and handsome buildings covering the block front on Central Park West, between 84th and 85th streets, in flags reaching from coping to curb 19.6 long x 12.6 wide, is a convincing demonstration of the excellence of the sidewalk and curb manufactured by this company. The important list of prominent architects, builders and property-owners who have attested to its superiority will be seen in the advertisement. The cost of their production is a large percentage less than the natural stone, and such a perfect imitation that old and experienced builders were slow to be convinced that it was not taken from the quarry, the finish and color being a close imitation of a cut blue stone. This company makes a flintic stone fire-proof roof which will bear the closest test as well as a fire-proofing to be used between beams, etc. Their Flintic Stone Sidewalks have been specified to be used in front of the Progress Club, a picture of which is presented with this issue of THE RECORD AND GUIDE. Amongst the numerous buildings where their sidewalks can be seen are the Metropolitan Opera House, Thomas MacKellar's residence on the northwest corner of 6th avenue and 119th street, the Dakota and other Clark estate property, the Plaza Hotel and many other important buildings and residences. Their office is at No. 150 Broadway and their factory at Nos. 517 and 519 West 55th street.

DUFF & CONGER.

This firm, composed of Alexander D. Duff and George H. Conger, is one of the most widely known and highly esteemed of up-town real estate brokers. It has been established now for more than twenty years, and was among the first subscribers to THE RECORD AND GUIDE. Their knowledge of up-town property is unexcelled, and they number among their clients most of the leading corporations and business men dealing in real estate in that part of the island. The new address of the firm is No. 1474 3d avenue, near 84th street. They take entire charge of property and guarantee satisfaction.

WILLIAM H. JACKSON & CO.

The display of open fire-places, grates, fenders, and novelties for the fireside at the showrooms of this well-known firm, No. 31 East 17th street, Union square, is one of the finest exhibitions of artistic handiwork to be seen in the city. All the latest designs in brass, ebonized and oxidized iron, onyx, valuable woods, tiles, etc., are arranged there in position, greatly facilitating the choice of buyers. This is the only concern of the kind having their own factory, and their goods are all sold at factory prices.

E. A. HOYT & CO.

This centrally located firm is increasing its business month by month. The members are certainly able and industrious brokers and agents, and have negotiated some important sales recently. Amongst these may be mentioned two of the splendid residences built by B. S. Levy on 77th street, opposite Manhattan Park, one of which they sold to Mrs. Theodosia Hatch for $90,000, and the other to Mrs. Samuel C. Thompson, widow of the late President of the Chase National Bank, for a similar amount. They make a specialty of taking entire charge of estates, loan money on bond and mortgage. They are also special agents for the Niagara Fire and Phœnix Insurance Companies. Their office is at No. 21 East 42d street, on the corner of Madison avenue.

VENETIAN BLIND CO.

The name of the firm which heads these lines is known all over the country as that of one of the largest manufacturers of the beautiful Venetian blinds which decorate the windows of many of our most elegant homes. These blinds may be constructed of any desired wood and style of finish, and are so arranged that, while they serve their purpose as blinds, they need be no obstruction to free passage of light or air. Among the many residences in which the work of the Venetian Blind Co. has been placed during the past year may be mentioned those of U. S. Grant, Jr., J. A. Bailey, on 150th street and St. Nicholas place, J. W. Decker, from 161st street to 163d street and Caldwell avenue, McAuliffe & Gabay, 80th street and Park avenue, and the Rhinelander estate, 89th street and Lexington avenue.

BRUDI & BETTY.

Among the real estate brokers who are sure to secure a fair share of the business to be done in the up-town district along 3d avenue should be mentioned the firm of Brudi & Betty, which is composed of two capable and enterprising young men, one of whom has figured in many real estate transactions lately. This firm makes a specialty of the management of property, the collection of rents and the negotiation of loans, and they have offices at No. 1216 3d avenue, near 70th street. They are also the up-town agents for the Guardian Assurance Co. of London.

JOHN R. FOLEY & SON.

This well-known down-town firm of brokers and agents are just now making a stronger mark for themselves than ever. The numerous sales made by them, reported in the "Gossip" column of this paper last week, and aggregating about $400,000, show that their success in carrying through sales of realty has not lessened. They make a specialty of builders' loans, and of the management of estates, and pay particular attention to renting, collecting and insurance. Both father and son are able and industrious agents and brokers, and a large list of real estate of every description for sale, rent and exchange is to be seen on their books. Mr. Foley, Sr., is a member of the Real Estate Exchange, and their office is at No. 153 Broadway. They also have an office at Heiskell & McLeran's, 1008 F street, N. W. Washington, D. C.

W. J. ROOME.

This is one of the oldest established real estate offices in the city, dating back to 1852, a period of some thirty-seven years. Mr. Roome, like the President of the Real Estate Exchange, has followed in the footsteps of his father, who carried on the business for many years. Both father and son have been known to almost every resident around 6th avenue and 23d street for a generation past. Mr. Roome's office at No. 410 6th avenue, about a block distance from his old quarters, is patronized by a more numerous clientage than ever. He is a member of the Real Estate Exchange and he is one of the most prominent agents and brokers on the west side.

HERMAN SCHMIDT.

One of the most pushing and enterprising of the young real estate brokers along the line of 3d avenue is Mr. Herman Schmidt, whose advertisement will be seen in another column. Mr. Schmidt has moved from his former location on the corner of Madison avenue and 63d street, and is now to be found at No. 1136 3d avenue, between 66th and 67th streets. In addition to his real estate business, Mr. Schmidt is the agent for Kapp's patent bath-tub covers, in which he has done quite a business, and to which he invites the attention of the readers of THE RECORD AND GUIDE.

DORE LYON'S RESIDENCE AND INVESTMENT PROPERTIES.

The large and important list of up-town houses and flats which this enterprising builder and property-owner offers for sale will be seen in an advertisement elsewhere, which is well worth perusal by those seeking houses on reasonable terms and by brokers anxious to meet the demands of their customers. Mr. Lyon has been very successful in disposing of his houses on 91st and 92d streets, of which only ten remain unsold out of thirty-six built. He has also disposed of ten out of the sixteen dwellings built by him on 112th and 113th streets, between 8th and New avenues. He can be communicated with at his office, No. 321 West 136th street.

CROFT BROTHERS.

Among the east side manufacturers who do a large business in the production of carpets, floor-cloths and window shades in all their various grades the well-known and reliable firm of Croft Brothers deserves especial mention. Their factories and offices will be found on the corner of 3d avenue and 118th street, where a large assortment of their goods may be seen, and builders, to whom special prices are offered, will find it to their interest to inspect their stock.

LESPINASSE & FRIEDMAN.

No firm is better known down town than this. Its reputation gained most by its agency of the great Navarro apartment houses on 7th avenue, 58th and 59th streets. Some large transactions in vacant and improved property have been negotiated by them. This office recently suffered a great loss in the decease of its junior member, Mr. Leopold Friedman. The firm name remains the same, however, and, under the management of so able an agent and broker as Mr. Lespinasse, will certainly continue to do as large a business as heretofore. The office is at No. 181 Broadway.

JOHN J. BOWES.

One of the earliest advertisers in THE RECORD AND GUIDE was the firm of Jno. J. Bowes & Brother, who in 1868 were widely known as manufacturers of plain and ornamental iron railing and of all kinds of builders' ironwork, including columns, beams and girders. The firm, now under the style of Jno. J. Bowes, continues the business at the same location at Nos. 227 and 229 West 29th street, between 7th and 8th avenues, and is still engaged in the manufacture of ironwork for buildings, having built for themselves an enviable reputation by reason of the high character of their work. Attention is called to their advertisement which appears in another column.

MACLAY, DAVIES & CO.

Messrs. Maclay, Davies & Co., of No. 120 Broadway, have made quite a reputation during the last few years, their specialties being the sales of lots to builders with loans, and exchanges of improved for unimproved properties. During the past two years the transactions effected by them have reached large figures, among which the following may be enumerated: the three Pinkney blocks, between 7th and 8th avenues, 137th and 140th streets, purchased for the Equitable Life Assurance Company, $1,500,000; 40–44 East 51st street, for P. & J. F. McManus, $180,000; 11–15 Vandewater street and 17–23 Rose street, for Charles Craske, $400,000; 33–37 Bleecker street, $160,000; 102 and 104 Waverley place, for John Glass, $150,000; Bloomfield and Little West 12th street, opposite new market, for John Glass, $450,000; Hamilton Apartment House, for McCafferty & Buckley, $500,000, and 57 West 10th street, for W. S. Maddock, $112,500. These eight sales alone aggregate nearly $3,500,000. They have also conducted numerous smaller operations, and the sale of various plots of lots to builders with loans.

SKINNER & NELLIS.

No firm on the west side has a better equipped office than this. Messrs Skinner & Nellis are able and intelligent brokers and agents, and they have charge of many properties all over the city. Amongst their recent sales are the lots purchased through them by Messrs. Colleran & Brother, and Mr. W. H. Jacob on the Jones estate block, of which a diagram appears on another page. They have also sold several west side residences lately, the most recent being that of No. 103 West 72d street, one of the Buek houses, to Dr. E. V. Silver for $40,500. The firm is composed of Mr. R. Skinner, and Mr. E. J. Nellis, who was formerly in partnership with Mr. T. Judson Kilpatrick at the "Hoffman Arms." Their office is at No. 1169 9th avenue, near 72d street, where they have a full list of west side properties for sale, rent and exchange.

Real Estate Department.

This has been rather a quiet week in real estate circles. The reports from the brokers' offices are not so numerous as the week before, and in all quarters it is acknowledged that business is less active than was expected. The tone of the market, however, is healthy, and the reports in our "Gossip" column show that some of the brokers have been successful in closing important sales. Business at the Exchange has been moderately active, but the results of the offerings were not altogether satisfactory. The sales announced for the next few weeks are both numerous and important.

There was only one sale held at the Exchange on Monday and the plaintiff became the purchaser.

Tuesday was a busy day on 'Change. The attendance was large and the sales were numerous, vacant lots predominating. For the westerly front on 7th avenue, between 141st and 142d streets, which was sold in three parcels, a total of $57,000 was bid, and three of the inside lots were not actually disposed of. The building loan dealers Ottinger Brothers and Hirsh Brothers, were the buyers of the others. These figures are much below what the lots have been held at. A triangular plot, bounded by 7th and St. Nicholas avenues and 117th street, was also offered, but as the figure bid, viz. $28,000, was not satisfactory, it was not sold. Several lots on Audubon avenue, corner of 166th street and north of 170th street, were offered under foreclosure. The prices realized show a large falling off compared with those obtained at the Jumel sale last March for lots close by. For the four-story dwelling No. 1 East 62d street $55,300 was bid by the plaintiff against about $51,500 due thereon on the mortgage foreclosed.

There was not much done at the Salesroom on Wednesday. The sales were few in number, consisting entirely of foreclosures. Owing to the storm the attendance was small.

The Exchange was well attended on Thursday, and numerous sales were held. Many of the parcels offered were by order of Court in foreclosure proceedings, and in such cases the plaintiffs generally became the buyers for sums about equal to the encumbrances. A total of $262,999 was realized for the eighteen pieces offered. Of this amount $127,374 was obtained for eight pieces sold under foreclosure and $135,625 for ten other parcels. Six of the latter, for which $66,550 was bid, are not likely to change hands, as the figures bid were not satisfactory to the sellers. Five lots on the southeast corner of 77th street and 9th avenue, on which over $100,000 is due, were withdrawn from sale. A plot of ten lots on Barry avenue and Burnett place, in the 23d Ward, was withdrawn on a bid of $3,900. The same plot has been offered several times within the last year.

There was only one sale held at the Exchange yesterday. George F. Johnson was the highest bidder, and secured No. 177 West 126th street for $17,253.

Fairchild & Yoran will sell part of the Wm. Hyatt farm at Woodlawn on Tuesday, January 15th. There are 260 lots, and the sale will be held a the Real Estate Exchange pursuant to Court orders in partition.

On Tuesday next, the 15th inst., Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell some desirable properties on Vanderbilt, Alexander and St. Ann's avenues, and Vanderbilt place; 61st and 167th streets, East; West 41st street and Waverley place. On Thursday the 17th inst., ten lots on 146th, 148th and 162d streets, West. On Monday, the 21st inst. No. 91 Henry and No. 141 Mott street.

On Tuesday, January 15th, A. H. Muller & Son will sell, by order of the executors of the late Isaac N. Phelps, the valuable business properties situated on the northwest corner of Church and Duane streets, No. 78 Warren and No. 155 Duane streets. This is choice and valuable real estate, and will be sold under partition orders.

On Tuesday, the 22d inst., A. H. Muller & Co. will sell thirty choice and valuable lots, comprising the entire block bounded by Riverside Drive, the Grand Boulevard, 107th and 108th streets. The property commands a splendid view of the Palisades and the Hudson, and the sale will create lively interest in real estate circles. The block is to be sold by order of the executor.

On Tuesday, January 22d, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the following valuable down-town properties belonging to the Sidney Smith estate: The warehouse at No. 6 Bridge street and No. 9 Pearl street; the office buildings at Nos. 118 and 120 Maiden lane and 192 Pearl street, and some old structures on the northwest corner of Cherry and Roosevelt streets; also four up-town lots on 109th and 110th streets, near 4th avenue. This will be a Supreme Court partition sale.

On Thursday, the 24th inst., Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell two valuable building lots on 66th street, near Central Park West, a large gore on Morningside avenue, between 115th and 116th streets, and the valuable store and apartment property on the southeast corner of 3d avenue and 88th street.

Among the important sales to be held during February is that of the Lynch estate lots, situated in the vicinity of 8th avenue and 155th street. There are about 600 lots in all, and about 300 will be offered under the hammer by A. H. Muller & Son.

Out Among the Builders.

We learn that ground will be broken in February or the early part of March for a store building, which Ehrich Bros. of 8th avenue are going to build on the west side of 6th avenue, 100 feet on the avenue with an L on 23d street. The plans were drawn by Alfred Zucker and Co., and filed in the Building Department some time ago.

D. Willis James and J. G. Prague will shortly commence the erection of nine handsome four-story residences on the north side of 86th street, commencing about 265 feet east of 10th avenue, and covering 205 feet frontage. Four will be built for the former, 22.6x56, with 20-foot three-story extensions, and five for the latter, 23x60, with similar extensions. They will cost about $250,000, and will each be of different design, with the material, workmanship and improvements similar to those adjoining, and running eastward to the corner of 9th avenue. This will cover, with the new church to be built on the 10th avenue corner, the entire north side of the street between the two avenues. The plans are being prepared by Mr. Prague.

Richard Deeves is about to build three first-class four-story dwellings on the north side of 81st street, 375 feet east of 9th avenue. They will each be 25 feet wide.

Stern will build at a cost of about $50,000. The apartments will be arranged for four families on each floor and the building is to be fitted with all the modern improvements.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

We have concluded to omit the usual detail market report this week, owing to the facts that our columns are already overcrowded and that there is really very little change to advise on any commodity. The single exception is to be found in brick, which, in view of the light current consumption and the remarkable conditions of the weather permitting steady arrivals, have accumulated into something of an excess of stock and brought about the rather unusual occurrence of a weakening on value in midwinter, with $7.25 probably all that could at the moment be depended upon. Lath are steady at $2.10@2.20, with Lime and Cement firmly held. Lumber has been quiet on the distributive outlet, and first hand business restricted for want of fresh offering, though only really choice stock would meet with attention. At primary points the lumber markets are generally quiet and without much news, though the following from columns of a Western contemporary is not without interest:

The hearts of the lumbermen and loggers were made happy last week by the arrival of the first real snow of the season, snow having fallen to the depth of about six inches in upper Wisconsin and Michigan, thus enabling them to rush matters in the woods, and teams and men are going to the woods by the score to commence the work of hauling. In Wisconsin there are on the skids fully two-thirds of the contracts, and with the necessary amount of snow the work can be accomplished to much better advantage than in past years.

Yearly Building Material Market.

REVIEW OF ALL THE LEADING ARTICLES FOR THE YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31ST, 1888.

Upon nearly every article embraced in the annexed review the reports show either a diminution of business or a shrinkage in value as compared with 1887, and, in the majority of cases, both features are prominent, with no positive recovery up to the close of the season. The result, however, is nowise a surprise to those who carefully scanned the shadow of coming events as cast more than twelve months ago, and that the Trade as a whole have come through the unpropitious period without any serious misfortune, and in many instances with a fair living margin, may be attributed to the fact that they had sufficient warning to shape their methods accordingly. The excessive construction of buildings during the three years ending with 1887, especially dwelling houses, and to which this journal was particular in calling attention, became manifest to the most skeptical soon after the year now under review opened up for business, and, of course, is the prime cause of the unsatisfactory conditions found on the market for structural material; but additional disturbing elements were found in the influence of the National Election and the radical position of the opposing parties upon the tariff question, as a change in duty would affect many leading articles. Some of the members of the Trade, too, have always contended that the March blizzard nipped in the bud quite a number of operations about ready to start, and subsequently abandoned after such a rough setback, but we doubt if general results were seriously impaired through that influence, as the storm, though terribly severe while it prevailed, embodied as a peculiar feature the rapid manner in which it disappeared. It is likely that lumber has suffered about as severely as any class of material, as dwellings were where the reduction in work stood out prominently; while stone, brick, cement and lime have been saved from corresponding prostration by the liberal amounts required in the construction of large structures to which the improvement of real estate was so generally confined. The production of supplies was not adjusted as closely to the wants of the market as they might have been had manufacturers scanned the prospects with greater care, and this was another depressing factor, yet happily a conservative careful spirit has prevailed and proven of much benefit in bringing the season through without serious disaster to the local line of operators. At the close of last year there was some apprehension felt over the labor question, and indeed a number of operators, both as dealers in material and contractors, allowed themselves to become worried upon this subject. Their fears were groundless, however, as the relations between employer and employé have been harmonious throughout, a dull year affording no chance for the demagogism of the trade union and walking delegate to assert itself. With the conditions under which they were contending some dealers have put in smaller winter stocks than usual, but this tendency was not general enough to make any actual scarcity, and there seems to be a feeling that a goodly portion of what is on hand will be wanted before new production becomes available. The excess of houses is gradually commencing to disappear on a growing demand; the sale of property, both in this city and "across the bridge" has been better within a couple of months, and if all plans are carried out there is good chance for a revival of building operations that will give standard structural material a better position, though the recovery will hardly restore matters to the conditions existing previous to the last three months of 1887, when the boom first began to wane.

The following shows, in condensed form, the export movement of the leading articles of Building Materials from the port of New York during the years named:

BRICKS.—Probably the most noticeable feature of the market for Common Hards during the year was the absence of fluctuation in value and the monotonous character of business after matters had settled into working order for the new make. Of course, during the late winter and early spring months the usual uncertainty prevailed and such stock as could be worked through from Jersey, Staten Island and Long Island found a market according to momentary influences. In January trade was almost at a standstill, with $7.50 @7.75 about the asking rate, but when an attempt to realize was made sellers found themselves at a great disadvantage, and forced business took place as low as $7.00 per M for Long Islands. Subsequently, with a little more direct call, there was a stiffer feeling and as high as $8.00 per M secured for finest stock, with a range from that down to $6.50 for more ordinary quality. Thus matters stood during February and March, the blizzard period as a matter of fact making very little difference to either buyer or seller, as whatever check to the moving forward of supplies may have resulted was fully balanced by the prostration of consumption under the influence of the mighty storm. Early in April a schooner load made the first arrival from the River and sold at $8.00, but a tow of twelve barges immediately thereafter broke the price to $7.50 and the first tow from Up River about the middle of the month sold at $7.00 for that grade. During the next two months the business was confined principally to working off of old stock at a cost ranging from $7.50 downward, with an occasional 25c. per M more for choice quality. As soon as the weather would permit operations on the new productions were commenced, a few Jerseys getting here early in May, but Hudson River makers were retarded in their work and were unable to get many forward until June from any point. When the stock did commence to show up the average quality proved simply miserable, as the month of May was pretty much all rain, and even with the best of care it was impossible to prevent a large percentage of washed brick. This, in conjunction with very pronounced evidence of indifference and independence on the part of buyers, made a poor and unsatisfactory market against which receivers struggled as best they could until toward the end of June when, succumbing to the inevitable, a perpendicular drop of $1.00 per M was made, and finally another little shading, the latter resulting in one of the biggest single deals on record, a local concern taking in one lump some seven million brick generally believed at a cost for a few of $6.25, but mostly at $6.00 down to $4.50 per M, according to quality, the purchase being merely against contracts already in hand and having no speculative significance. With the decline just mentioned the new season fairly opened and operations were thereafter conducted upon just about one plane of valuations for months, very fine cargoes occasionally touching $6.25 per M, but buyers being practically masters of the situation and making $6.00 the average top and doing as much better on the faulty goods as they could with frequent success in picking up considerable cheaper stock, especially when a heavy accumulation of arrivals temporarily increased advantages. So strong was the determination not to exceed $6.00 per M that for a long while the best qualities were the most difficult to sell and something a trifle less attractive found greatest favor at the difference in cost, though during the latter portion of the season the general condition of the output improved materially and buyers did not consider that they sacrificed much by their action. On the range of prices obtained, however, it does not look as though the manufacturing end of the market could have found much cause for congratulation as compared with the preceding year, and indeed it is difficult to discover where there was any margin at all in many cases. Possibly some of the older concerns, owners of the property upon which they worked and with ability to keep expenses down to a minimum, may have pulled through fairly well, but on leasehold localities the chances for profit appear very slim. It is calculated that the rent of leased yards were equal to a cost of $1.12½@1.25 per M; freights, handling and other incidental expenses as much more, and cost of making $3.75@4.00 per M, which with proper allowance for interest and 10 per cent. loss in culls brings matters down to a point of interrogation when considering the matter of profitable margin. Possibly results would been somewhat better under a smaller actual supply, but with an actual increase in the productive capacity at work, and about 40 per cent. addition to the means of transportation available, with more or less necessity for keeping the latter employed, it was practically impossible to so control the offering as to bring any really beneficial results. Jersey has been a fair contributor when the situation seemed to warrant, but was at all times careful not to overdo matters. The Aqueduct took considerable stock early in the season on contract but has afforded less fresh demand, and the outlet therefore has proven largely of a "regular" character, the local line of building operations fortunately proving of such a nature as to consume brick quite liberally, while adjacent cities making up the harbor trade, were all good customers. There has also been a great deal of piling out where room was available as no one considered stock dear at the current line of cost and the accumulations in this immediate locality is unquestionably greater than last year. Within the past month value has hardened up some 50@75c. per M, but this turn is of only a natural seasonable character and probably not as great as it would have been with sharper weather and a general close of river navigation. Aside from the natural defects growing out of unfavorable weather influences and against which no provision can be made, the tendency has been to maintain a high general average of quality, and in this respect the "Up River" manufacturers were in many cases particularly successful with some brands now having a reputation that gives them a value well up to Haverstraw brick, and especially among buyers who operate on the natural merits of goods rather than upon the mere sentiment of name.

Pale Bricks wobbled around in price to a considerable extent during the early portion of the season, but finally took the downward dip in common with other descriptions and ruled pretty low on the bulk of business done in this year's production. During the late spring, summer, fall and early winter $8.00 was too exceptional a rate for a regular quotation, most reports mentioning $2.25@2.50 or $2.75 per M, according to quantity, delivery, quality, etc., and while recent tone has strengthened in a measure the recovery is by no means radical nor has the inquiry expanded into positively direct form. As usual the major portion of the consumption of Pales is outside the city limits proper, else there would have been practically no market at all. That the sale has not been fuller and quicker is by some attributed to closer attention to duty on the part of building inspectors, but the plentiful supply and low cost of hard brick may be accepted as an important factor in the situation.

Fronts as a rule have felt the influence of diminished demand, and the necessity for an easier line of valuation. All the average make of the North River factories shaded off to a greater or less extent as circumstances seemed to dictate, but the manufacturers of Croton Points have not changed quotations and report a sale of product about in the usual proportion of their capacity, making special mention of the shipping demand which has included orders from Montreal in one direction and St. Paul, Minnesota, on the Western line. Philadelphia and Trentons went fairly early in the season on the execution of contracts and for a while found very fair subsequent demand, but buyers gradually became less plenty and could not be recovered even with quite a shading on value offered, the result of which was that production stopped six weeks to two months sooner than last year, and with this curtailment of the season there is a corresponding shortage in the amount of stocks carried over in first hands, and dealers are not supposed to have many. This will prove a strengthening factor should spring trade gain in force, as some hope that it will. Baltimore Fronts have sold mainly on special orders and had no regular market worthy of note.

The figures of production and stock we have endeavored to prepare with our usual care, and feel warranted in claiming very closely approximating accuracy in the statement of accumulation on hand at the end of the year. In the matter of production, however, while our figures are not far out of the way, there may be a little shortage, as great difficulty was experienced in obtaining positive statements from some sources. There is scarcely a doubt that quite an increase in the make took place on the east side of the Hudson, but the early date at which many of the yards quit work all along the river cut down the general production. According to the figures as given the actual consumption during 1887 was 903,500,000 bricks. Not much of the present supply is under contract.

CEMENT—As one of the most universally used commodities in the line of structural material, cement has probably found a movement nearly or quite equal to the preceding year, but in other respects the compar ison is not quite so favorable. In the Rosendale dis. trict all the producers have been at work, and some of them at least made a larger output than last year, yet in the face of that and the fact that demand always appeared close enough to prevent accumulation, the rate has been low and unsatisfactory, probably not averaging better than $1.00 per bbl. delivered here, the entire range running from 90c. up to $1.10 and exceptionally $1.15, and since the close of the season, which was later than common, the price has been, as usual, marked up somewhat higher. With the results attained in the matter of business, many of the trade are now rather inclined to believe that had they listened to the advice of a few of the leading operators at the commencement of the season and shown a little more stamina in making a solid and determined stand, they might just as well have obtained a more remunerative return, but too many seemed to be possessed with a nervous dread that some sort of terrible competition was about to develop, and the only way to offset was to keep the line of cost down to starvation point, or at least so narrow a margin as to create much general dissatisfaction. The Ohio product was being used in this vicinity again to be sure, but on the same old contract, and beyond the line of which no custom could be found, and though the Pennsylvania cements are becoming more plenty and imported goods were coming in with a rush at times, the Ulster County productions did not appear to lose favor, and there is hardly a doubt but that first-class and popular brands have really ruled cheap throughout the greater portion of the season. One of the most beneficial features of the situation was the excellence of the shipping trade, against which manufacturers were very frequently behind with their orders, and the movement continued good up to the very end of the season, the outlet being principally to the Eastward and Southward, both these sources of demand having developed unexpected wants. Some trade has also been done with the West, but not quite to the extent hoped for last year, as buyers, while finding no fault with quality, but rather commending it if anything, appear hardly ready to pay rates that would warrant shipping, and also claim that they cannot obtain deliveries quite so promptly as from localities nearer at home. In addition to the shipping trade, however, there has all in all been a pretty good exhaust in this vicinity, the class of city work doing requiring large amounts, while neighboring cities were all good customers, beside the special jobs that have required attention, among which may be enumerated the Poughkeepsie bridge, the bridge across the Harlem River, further deliveries on the Aqueduct and its connections, and the extensive improvements in widening and sinking railway tracks, first by the New York, New Haven & Hartford, and closely followed by the Harlem, the latter about all within the city limits of the annexed district. In the matter of production and transportation there has been no great or radical differences, labor, while making no further important demand, keeping pretty high, and material for packages affording manufacturers very little if any better terms. Fair amounts are on hand at the mills for winter trade by rail, should there be a call, and there is a reasonable accumulation here in one way or another, though some of the operators seem to think the amount is no more than will be wanted between now and the opening of next season and may prove a little scant should the spring trade happen to fill out as liberally as some of the more sanguine calculate.

American Portland has to some extent reflected the prevailing features on other grades. That is, while making no general reduction on cost, manufacturers have been alive to the necessities of the period and allowed no desirable customer to go away unsatisfied if reasonable favor would secure orders, and the result has been most satisfactory. Indeed from the commencement to the end of the season work has been steady and full at the points of manufacture and opportunities presented where additional productive capacity would not have been amiss. The area of distribution, too, has been spreading somewhat, and not only is this description of stock now in use on work for which almost any other description of cement is adapted, but with many consumers is said to have the preference. It is expected that increased facilities for production and delivery will be available by the commencement of another season.

Foreign Portland has had another big year, in fact the largest importation yet attained is shown, making an increase of nearly 100,000 bbls. over 1887 and turning the 900,000 bbls. mark for this port. In view of the general condition of trade, such a result does not appear altogether in keeping, nor is it likely that it would have shown could the flow of stock in this direction have received a check when a shrinkage of arrivals was plainly the only salvation of the market. The difficulty was, however, that the stuff came under contract and had to be taken, placing the market under a clear case of over-importation throughout pretty much the entire year, and frequently requiring considerable force to expand an outlet that would absorb the supply. It seemed to be a clear case of miscalculation, first in assuming that consumption would keep along in the same ratio of increase shown in former seasons, and second in entering upon engagements in such a manner as to prevent an honorable cancellation or modification when events seemed to demand that course. The fact is that the majority of importers tried to play a little shrewd, thought they had accomplished it, and in the end found they were victims, for when the foreign markets looked uppish during the past winter, the heavy contracts were made for both cement and transportation on terms at that time apparently cheap and kept very secret, each operator congratulating himself that he had the best of his competitors. Arrivals here, however, and results as stated already very soon brought conviction that an error had been committed, and the question of profit was exchanged for one of getting out with as small a loss as possible, leading, of course, to considerable pressure at times and some pretty cheap lots of stock to those who were ready to take them. Some scattering business was done as low as $2.00 per bbl. ex ship, but $2.05 was about inside for standard quality and from that up to anything that could be obtained, though it was not until about 60 or 90 days ago that the strengthening became sufficient to recover values to $2.15@$2.20 per bbl., and then only because contracts had been filled and arrivals fell away, enabling importers to make a respectable clearing up and close the year without serious surplus on hand in any position. A great many cargoes during the early part of the year were delivered under engagement to some of the big jobs in this vicinity, and, of course, a great deal of natural new demand could be found at almost any time, but considerable stock went through to the West and is there accumulated. That does not, however, seem to create any great amount of worry, as it is claimed to be in strong hands and owners willing to hold it on calculations for an advance in the spring. Indeed, there is a more hopeful feeling extant regarding the future, and the prospects for the incoming year are considered very fair. It is naturally expected that a greater degree of caution will be exercised in making engagements, and that no attempts will be made to flood this market with stock outside of what may be ordered and handled through regular channels. Cost, too, is somewhat fuller, which must help stock here, latest advices to the end of the year showing 10c. and 15c., per bbl. higher f. o. b. from both London and the Continent. The productive capacity has increased somewhat, but the output, it is claimed, can be well managed and prevented from becoming in any way burdensome. Manufacturers, too, are feeling a little independent toward demand from this country, and claim to seek no more than our average trade, owing in part to a good home call and also to an excellent business doing with South America and Australia, the two latter outlets understood to afford exceedingly remunerative rates. Fancy cements were again without regular market, and sold only on special orders.

DOORS, SASH, BLINDS, ETC.—The conditions of trade have not been quite so full and satisfactory as in preceding years, and leading manufacturers are frank to admit some falling off in business. Of course this is most marked on local account, but has been felt to some extent in the general distributive trade, especially among custom located in the larger cities where consumption seems to have made a slight shrinkage; yet, on the other hand, many of the smaller towns have really handled a larger quantity of stock and preserved a fair average outlet. Indeed, taking into consideration the general condition of all kinds of business, and especially in the building line, the specialties now under notice have probably obtained their full proportionate share of attention, and as an evidence that there is no particular feeling of discouragement over the situation, it may be noted that one of our largest concerns is erecting additional factory room. There seems to be nothing new in the matter of varieties of product, etc., about everything necessary having been previously embodied in the line of goods kept in stock or made available on special orders, and the industry is fully up with the requirements of the times. Early in the season a revision and reduction in the line of valuation was made as expected, but, having fairly met the situation, manufacturers afterward remained steady during balance of the season and found no objection from buyers. Whether any further changes will be made this coming spring is as yet somewhat doubtful, but probably little if any advance unless material increases in cost, a possibility considered somewhat remote. Our local manufacturers have not allied themselves with the attempt made to form an association of Eastern makers similar to that existing at the West, and membership in the combination, if perfected, will consist principally of operators located at interior cities and towns of this State and to the Eastward. The figures of exports of doors show up materially larger than during the preceding year, but we find that this does not stand fully to the credit of our local trade. Dealers have, to be sure, done fairly well in securing some very good orders from abroad, but, as a matter of fact, their foreign trade made a slight shrinkage, and the expansion of the movement, as shown by our record, is due to through shipments from the West and Canada via this port, where desirable freight accommodation could best be obtained.

FIRE AND ENAMELED BRICK. — Of Fire Brick the consumption on the whole has lessened somewhat, but in many cases business resulted quite favorably. Especially was this latter feature to be found among makers of first-class domestic stock, who have gained considerable through the lessened importation of the general run of foreign and won further attention by a more careful preservation of the standard of quality, creating a confidence among consumers that naturally brings good return in one way or another. We still hear complaint regarding some of the production in this vicinity, more particularly in New Jersey, but they have sold at a price in accord with their merits and for ordinary work, so that there was no notable interference with first-class goods. Moderate variation in cost has at times occurred, yet the average undertone ruled pretty steady, and at the close current figures are quite as full as one year ago. The area of distribution has not increased to any extent, as new plants are coming into existence where circumstances seem to warrant it, and many localities heretofore dependent upon this point now find a source of supply nearer home, except possibly where a higher quality is required than new works would be likely to turn out.

Foreign Fire Brick of ordinary quality has found lessened sale, more especially during the latter portion of the year. This is not due to any change of feeling toward them on the part of buyers, so far as quality, etc., may be concerned, but simply to the impossibility of laying the stock down here at a price that would induce investment. Importers, in fact, were handicapped by extreme cost of transportation, the freight charges at times becoming almost restrictive, and no larger amount of stock was brought ought than seemed to be absolutely necessary. Of late the promises seem to be that some relief will be found before a great while, but that does not ease up on current cost, and closing rates here are considerably above last year. So far as business has been obtained during the season, sellers found scarcely anything in the way of large bills, the demand running mainly to small orders as required for repairs, etc., but a great many more of these could have been obtained had not the difficulties in the matter of cost existed as already explained. Of the better qualities of foreign, however, there has been a somewhat fuller sale, the silica brick having about all the call. Of these the Lee-Moor were the most difficult to obtain, owing to constant scarcity of vessels at point of shipment and consequent expensive transportation charges which, notwithstanding an advance in price of brick here, so narrowed margins that there was little profit in the importation. Dinas, on the contrary, have sold very well and somewhat beyond former average, as indicated by the importation, a result reached through favorable contracts for importation and the ability to keep terms reasonably attractive throughout the season. As with other descriptions of stock the sale of Dinas was rarely in large blocks, as the consumption ran principally to parcels required for repairs, and the custom came, in the main, from steel makers and glass manufacturers, the latter generally insisting upon having the finest quality even at a considerable difference in cost. The advices from abroad at the close lead to the belief that somewhat more favorable freight contracts can be calculated upon within a short time.

Enameled Brick have undergone no changes of a radical character, though where there was anything noticable it seemed to be in the way of improvement. Domestic stock in particular is claimed to show considerable progress toward a still higher standard than heretofore attained. Manufacturers alive to the wants of trade and quick to adopt and utilize any suggested addition within their power, showing a disposition to keep abreast of the times. This course brings its natural return and retains a good full proportion of the current demand, with consumers finding no grounds of complaint when they deal with first-class makers. The start made by foreign stock during 1887, however, has been well maintained also, and indeed, for that matter, there is really a further gain in business, the principal agents reporting a gain in the amount of importation and some little advance in value, the latter mainly to cover addition to transportation charges. There does not appear to have been anything new introduced in the way of varieties, etc., and in the line of distribution about former outlets was found, embracing, in the main, the finest line of building operations of the principal cities. At the close importers are somewhat agitated over the provisions of the Senate tariff bill, which, it is understood, proposes to change the present duty on fire brick 20 per cent. ad valorem, equal to about $2.50 per M, and make it $1.25 per ton, or equal to $3.12 per M, while on enameled brick, now paying 20 per cent. ad valorem, it is proposed to raise the rate to 45 per cent., which is practically prohibitive, as even now the high cost of goods is a drawback to a more expensive trade. Strenuous efforts will be made to induce some modification of the rates proposed.

In the matter of roofing tiles some disappointment has been experienced by importers in the matter of new business, and while the receipts were fair a considerable portion came in on last year's contracts. At the best it does not appear to have been much of a market.

GLASS.—So far as the local line of trade has been concerned, a review of affairs for the year would reflect simply a dull, dragging market for cylinder or window glass, consumption having fallen off materially. During the earlier portion of the year there was quite a full delivery in part on previous contract, and in part to finish up on buildings that had been allowed to remain at a standstill during the winter, but all subsequent new demand was of a limited, cautious order, and neither the customer or the small dealer would handle stock until absolutely compelled to, and rarely appeared under any great compulsion. In the meanwhile, however, the run of orders from outside sources was making a respectable showing, at times even creating quite a touch of animation, and has, on the whole, moved enough stock to reasonably well balance the deficiency in the local deal and afford a measure of consolation to importers. Indeed, prominent operators tell us that in comparison with 1887 their business has been very fair, and taking into consideration the general conditions prevailing in mercantile circles during the year they have no solid reason to complain. Prices underwent some moderate fluctuations under natural, legitimate influences, but never gave the seller any wide margin, and as as a matter of fact have been distinguished for a reasonable uniformity quite as much as any other feature. Such a result was attained through the medium of an organization of importers that at the time of its formation was howled about by the sensational press as a "trust," but which in reality amounted to nothing more than a simple protective association to guard against useless and suicidal competition and cutting of values. It pooled no profits, restricted no importation, and dictated no distribution, but only sought to maintain a line of prices that would afford a living profit, and in that has been successful without detriment to the consumer. There has been nothing unusual in the form of distribution, the selection covering about the usual variety in the matter of sizes, and the close finds no great accumulation of stock on hand. For American made stock most accounts agree that a fair demand has prevailed on the average, and probably it has held its own as well as could be expected. It has not improved much if any in quality, and the sale in this locality was in consequence quite restricted, as most consumers want a thoroughly good article, and whether their prejudices are well founded or not insist that the domestic article is hardly up to their standard. Manufacturers, however, seem to get along very well with the trade they find in other directions, and aside from the stoppages made at the usual season have kept most productive capacity in use. Prices have, however, been somewhat unsettled all the season owing to absence of uniformity of action, and while an association of manufacturers exists, it does not include all, and the outsiders have lately been making matters a little lively on the rate cutting action, it is understood. It is, however, reported also that efforts are being made to perfect a general organization, through which results of a more satisfactory character can be attained. Plate glass has probably gone into consumption in the same relative proportion to cylinder as in former years, yet most of the first-class operators claim that it was an unprofitable business with them. Regular, natural competition was quite keen, but other influences are mentioned as serious detrimental factors. Among these is the buying up of second-hand plates through which various causes become available, and also the breakage that falls under control of the insurance companies, all of which makes considerable stock to compete with offerings from first hands. There is also complaint that instead of carefully culling out plates with imperfections at the furnaces, a geat deal of second and even third quality stock is now allowed to come farward and take its chances. Sometimes it fails to pass, and then must be trimmed down here to rid it of faults, and frequently it works into use where buyers are not sufficiently expert to promptly detect the difference between it and perfect quality, or where defects may be concealed until work is accepted and paid for. Prices remain easy at the close.

HAIR.—Operations in Plasterers' Hair have been of a somewhat irregular character and more or less complaint may be heard regarding the general result for the year, though dealers are willing to admit they have probably secured quite as full a proportion of business as can be found for other materia'. The shrinkage in trade was most marked on local account, buyers not only taking a smaller quantity of stock but dragging along with their orders in a slow indifferent manner that was annoying and at times a little discouraging. From outside sources, however, demand proved comparatively full and satisfactory, so much so that at times the distribution nearly or quite balanced the deficit at this point and kept the average sales for many weeks well proportioned. Of cattle hair the quantity handled has been particularly small, as it is not much in favor and confined mainly to ordinary and cheap work, the preference of dealers and builders being given to the better quality reached in goat hair as affording an article that will take a good and lasting bind upon lath even in the ordinary size. Nearly all the extreme long hair is monopolized by a demand from manufacturers for mixing purposes and the sale has proven quicker within a month or two, owing to the increased cost of wool with which it is largely used. During the early portion of the season the offering was somewhat irregular, but subsequently became pretty full, especially of short goat, owing to better market for skins leading to an increased production. This, in conjunction with the ruling conditions of trade, tipped the advantage in favor of the buyer and led to a shading on cost all around. Subsequently the feeling steadied and at the close of the year there seems to be a healthier undertone with an inclination toward recovery in value on the more desirable goods and the general outlook considered promising. Some importations has taken place, but that is not as a rule looked upon as a profitable measure.

HARDWARE.—At no time during the season do we remember of finding the market in generally active condition. Business has, of course, fluctuated and now and then reached pretty full proportions at periods when the condition of transportation facilities suggested a comparatively free movement of supplies to interior points, but manufacturers, agents and jobbers rarely found themselves seriously crowded and deliveries were prompt because there was nothing to occasion delay. This is in full verification of the indications suggested at the close of last year and no worse than expected by many who even at that period were willing to admit that some shrinkage of business must come, though, notwithstanding the disappointments felt upon the selling side, the market, as a whole, will compare favorably with many others representing staple commodities. For builders' hardware proper the deal has been quite irregular, some country sections wanting almost their full average quota, while in others it was almost impossible to place a bill beyond small odd selections for stock, and locally the exhaust shows quite a decided shrinkage of all kinds of stock, though fancy stuff for private dwellings has probably suffered most, owing to the diminution of that kind of work and previous preparation for such jobs as were completed during the early portion of the season. It required some pretty nice calculation to manage the production so as to prevent an over-supply. Yet the effort was undoubtedly reasonably successful and no serious crowding of stock took place at any time, and the amount carried over into the new year is claimed to show proportions fairly well adjusted to the uncertainties of the market. That is simply enough for any ordinary demand, yet not so much but that it can be taken care of if not wanted immediately. As a natural sequence of other conditions prices have ruled easy pretty much throughout the entire year, and now and then the downward dip was quite decided through the various methods by which advantage can be thrown in buyers' favor. There was nothing particularly vicious in the cutting of rates, but it came in the majority of cases as a sort of necessity of the situation and has led to the breaking up of some of the manufacturers' combinations and the practical abandonment of the association lists and discounts under which they had been working.

LABOR.—As simply a commercial commodity we, as usual, deal with labor in this review. Compared with 1887 the conditions of the general market have been less favorable for the workmen, not so much in the range of wages which are claimed to be practically unchanged, but in the lessened opportunities for employment of even the most skilled artisans. This has had a very salutary effect in keeping matters quiet between employers and employee and while once or twice some little trouble developed on a few of the larger jobs it was speedily settled without detriment to contractors. Indeed, the "walking delegate" has found it necessary to do a great many days of hard work during the past year and that is of itself a good evidence of the slow condition of affairs. It may also be added that mechanics really appear to be getting more sensible in their actions and whether it be the outcome of necessity for keeping a grip upon all the employment possible or an honest effort to depart from former methods, there is certainly less tendency to start up a strike on every frivilous pretext, and there has also been fewer attempts to bulldoze impecunious builders by asking an advance in wages at just the juncture when it is necessary to push work rapidly in order to obtain loans. Another little point, too, carrying a great deal of effect is the fact that a large number of contracts are now made with a "subject to strikes" clause which places contractors in an independent position regarding the unexpected stoppage of work, and makes the workmen pretty cautious about venturing upon any determined action in seeking redress for real or imaginary wrongs. As already noted the rates have generally been considered as unchanged but some shading is thought to have taken place under special agreement and there is an idea that just at the moment a great many good workmen would be willing to accept modified terms as employment is scarce and uncertain.

The following is a comparison of wages per day on the 1st of January of the years named:

LATH.—Nothing in the way of a fancy price has been shown, nor has an extraordinary low figure been touched during the year, but it was just a good comfortable market, with sufficient fluctuation to make matters interesting at times. On the extremes of price much the same rates have been shown for a top as last year, say $2.40@2.50, but this was in the early spring, while in the other direction the range was lower, with $1.90 accepted on first-class standard stock. About $2.00@2.10 per M, however, seemed to be the average, and buyers rarely found fault with these figures, the greater advantages they from time to time secured generally being the result of an overstock, and a desire or necessity to realize. As promised last winter the offering of round wood stock underwent a serious shrinkage, as compared with 1887, and while most of the cargoes of this grade sold low they were out of the way early, and beyond some offerings now and then of thin cut, short count, etc., the general run of quality was fair. Northern lath made their appearance to some extent, and were worked off at about the usual difference in valuation, but there did not appear to be attraction sufficient to continue the shipments, and one of the principal interior operators is reported to have failed. The quantity of State stock received in all has not been fully ascertained, but it was very decidedly less than last year. The general line of demand does not vary to any extent. In the city proper consumption has unquestionably been materially lessened, but the annexed wards, the neighboring cities, and points up the river, as well as to the Southward, have offered fair opportunities to exhaust the supply, and receivers frequently found it a necessity to resort to these outside points to work off surplus cargoes. Taken altogether the market has been fortunate enough to remain clear of thoroughly disagreeable features to either buyer or seller, certainly none of a lasting character, and dealers have not hesitated to lay some of the cargoes one side in expectation that they will be wanted next spring, if not before. The close of the year did not bring quite the full reaction on value usually expected, owing in part to open weather inducing buyers to believe that arrivals might continue pretty fair, but as a matter of fact not many lots were afloat, and consignees were asking on cargoes en route 5@10c. per M above the ruling spot rates. As will be noted in table annexed, the importation of stock from British Provinces shows quite a little increase (about 14,000,000) over last season, and our record of receipts from Maine indicates 108,060,000 or something over five and one-half million in excess of 1887. Upon the latter point, however, we are of the opinion that the increase is not quite so great as it appears, as the experience of former seasons has enabled us to secure almost a perfect record during 1888, while heretofore as we have always taken pains to state, details of numerous arrivals were frequently missing. With the figures actually in hand and making a very light allowance for parcels unaccounted for, including the State product, it may be considered a minimum estimate to place the business in lath for the past year at 245,000,000 at this port, including, of course, all trading in cargoes, both for delivery at other dependent points as well as for local consumption.

LIME.—On Eastern stock it has been a less active, a less profitable, and, for the last six or seven months, a less exciting market than during 1887, though at one period there was a promise of some pretty lively times, out of which the buyer had a fair chance of reaping all the advantage. On the start of the year very much the usual conditions were shown, scarcely any arrivals coming to hand and the market really ruling, to a considerable extent, nominal. Along about the last of February and the first of March there came an attempt to stiffen the market, and "asking" rates were quoted up to $1.10@1 25 and $1.30@1.50 per bbl. for the two grades respectively, but it did not work as a stimulant for demand, and when, on the 10th of March, it became known that about all the kilns had started up, buyers assumed a still more indifferent tone, demand really growing worse instead of better, and by the end of March it required a great deal of coaxing to secure customers. The blizzard which had in the meanwhile occurred, was justly blamed for putting a stop to a great deal of work, but receivers gradually commenced to discover that the more potent influence of an actual shrinkage in general consumptive wants had to be met, and when the first little fleet of vessels came in there was found to be a surplus of cargoes and the slaughter commenced. At 85c. for common and $1 for finishing some trade was caught, but 5@10c. per bbl. less were in some cases accepted in the apparent determination to secure custom at any figure. This liberal allowance on cost, however, did not hurry buyers to any extent, and while a temporary slight reaction of tone was secured another break followed, and through April and up into early May 80@85 and 90@95c. per bbl. respectively for the two grades were all that could be depended upon. Manufacturers had in the meanwhile, been growing pretty tired sending forward stock and making a loss on it, and after investigation finding that demand was giving no promise of becoming competitive, which, under the circumstances, made competition on the selling side simply suicidal, resolved to take heroic measures to meet the difficulty. This resulted in the formation or renewal of the old combination to fix rates and control shipments, and after binding our receivers to the compact the rates early in May were peremptorily fixed at $1.00 and $1.30 per bbl., and have been "officially quoted" upon that basis ever since. When this action of manufacturers had finally been determined upon and perfected, dealers made quite a rumpus and managed to stand off for several weeks until they worked up the accumulated supply in hand, but finding their action balanced by a shutting down of kilns finally submitted, especially as it was shown that the rates fixed upon barely gave a margin, and that no serious competition from other limes was to be expected. It may be well, however, to make the record complete, to add that while rates have been "quoted" unchanged since established by the syndicate, the cost to many dealers has really not been so great as indicated by the figures publicly named, owing to secret evasion of the terms of compact with manufacturers. Exactly how and to what extent this was practiced we have no means of knowing, but it was common talk in the trade for a long while that one receiver was constantly making allowances, and afterward the more prominent receivers had the credit of doing something in the same line; indeed, one of them admitted that a quiet cut on the price of lump was at times an absolute necessity in order to secure custom. The formation of the Eastern combination, however, was on the whole beneficial and justifiable, as under existing conditions of trade unchecked competition from the selling side could hardly have failed in leading to disastrous results. The manufacturers were still standing together and maintaining values very well up to the close of the year, but no plans had been decided upon for the next season so far as could be learned. One of the factors of depression early in the season was the serious apprehension entertained by the Rockland people regarding the competition from other quarters, and especially St. John, N. B., but producers at the latter point were not ready to improve the excellent opportunity they had just after the combination rates were fixed, and while dealers here were ready to favor any new source of supply. Nor has the offering of St. John lime since been particularly free, rather less than last year in fact, and receivers say it is because Boston has proved a better and more profitable customer. State lime makers after starting up in the spring blew out again when prices became so depressed, but in due time renewed work once more in a cautious manner and so as to prevent a surplus offering at any time, while of the Jointa there was at intervals a scarcity. Cost has naturally followed fluctuations of other grades and left only a small margin to the seller, but at the close of the season the movement was free, and agents have reported considerable business on contracts for delivery during winter season by rail.

LUMBER.—The falling off in trade noticeable upon our local lumber market toward the close of 1887 was simply the forerunner of one of the slowest and most unsatisfactory seasons experienced in many a year. From beginning to end the year just closed has found the selling side at a disadvantage, and there is unquestionably a material curtailment in the volume of stuff handled. Building grades probably suffered to the greatest extent, so far as city trade at least was concerned, as the curtailment of improvements was most marked in the class of structures consuming the largest amount of lumber. The manufacturing interest, however, has also been much slower, and with the export trade pretty well tied up through various influences, the distributive sellers met anything but a pleasant experience, especially as a modification in the plane of valuation fully proportioned to the differences in trade failed entirely as an incentive to demand. Consumption simply did not want a supply and could not be forced. The conditions as mentioned have naturally reflected themselves upon first hand offerings in every form, and receivers and agents were constantly contending against adverse influences. We do not think that dealers made any special or direct effort to bear the market, but have only accepted such advantages as appeared to come to them naturally under the legitimate influences of supply constantly exceeding demand, and up to a certain point sellers quite anxious to assist trade by making every allowance that could reasonably be expected. The local market has again been freely drummed by representatives of the interior interest, at the extreme West, midway, and this State, even Albany, finding that to keep up with the procession it was necessary to do more canvassing than formerly, and had there been no other chance except in this city the depression would have shown even greater. Fortunately for sellers, however, Brooklyn proved a good customer for many months in just such building grades as were difficult to place here, besides which a fair call has come from portions of Westchester County, from points up the Hudson River, from Jersey City, and from Newark, Elizabeth, Patterson, etc., forming a safety vent that was beneficial, though not making a basis upon which reaction in value could be secured, even the usual upward flurry upon the approach of winter failing to materialize this year. A great many salesmen have freely acknowledged the market to be overcanvassed, and this naturally brings with it a complaint of excess of competition, which leads to either a cutting down of price to unprofitable margin or offering corresponding advantages in some other way, such as giving a better grade than ordinarily allowed, assenting to credits a little beyond the average, or possibly promising unusually prompt delivery, which can only be accomplished at additional expense to the seller. There has not, however, been any serious demoralization in values during the season, and well-informed operators are inclined to believe that if selling at a loss actually took place it was under wholly exceptional conditions. It has been estimated that something over one-half the business in first hand goods is done upon a cash basis, and the balance upon sixty and ninety days' time. Very few extensions have been asked on the latter, and this, taken in conjunction with the fact that dealers themselves have not obtained very full or prompt settlements with customers, may be accepted as an evidence of the healthy condition of the trade as a body. Indeed, taking into consideration all the adverse influences, there is reason for congratulation that matters are no worse, and not a few we find are inclined to calculate upon a noticeable improvement before the incoming year shall have become very old. Should a quickening demand develop during the early spring, and when additions to the supply are costly and difficult, it may act as quite a stimulus, as the extreme caution of the majority of dealers has made a full accumulation of stock the exception instead of the rule, and neither assortment or quantity would satisfy any extensive call. As usual, just at this juncture, valuations in a large majority of cases are somewhat nominal in character.

Eastern Spruce, on a purely local market, has shown most decidedly dull and unattractive conditions and afforded the seller very little satisfaction on the bulk of business transacted. The year opened with something of a flurry and rather peculiar conditions that were almost unprecedented, inasmuch as narrow stuff not only found a demand far in excess of the call for wide, but actually for a time 6 to 9 inch sold at the same rate as 10 to 12 inch, exceptionally brought 50c. @ $1.00 per M more, and on a guarantee of prompt shipment manufacturers could get almost anything they thought fit to ask on specials of small sizes. About $14.00@16.00 per M all around, became the line of valuation on an inside range while that condition of affairs lasted, but the demand, which came mainly from Brooklyn, subsided after a short period, and very soon values commenced to work back in their natural relative positions, and by April short and narrow stuff was available at $13.00 per M without much difficulty, and some cargoes under a little pressure went as low as $12.00@12.50 per M, though sellers claimed this business was only in very poor stuff and should not be counted as fairly representing the general market. During May there was an inclination to firmness again, owing to floods at the East of such severity as to check all work at the mills, but buyers did not respond to the enhanced views suggested by receivers, as consumptive wants at that time were moderate and the rise in the streams, while temporarily checking production, brought down an ample supply of logs to work upon when the saws were again set in motion, and that was a culmination of not very distant realization. In fact, after the 1st of June dealers practically became masters of the situation, and while subsequent minor fluctuations occurred, according to the quantity of stock available, the great bulk of the negotiation had to be conducted by receivers, and the average cost has been considerably less than in 1887, say 50c.@$1.00 per M lower on all but the most difficult schedules. One advantage found by local buyers was in the size of a great many of the cargoes, which, proving altogether too large for the average out-of-town custom, had no independent outlet, and after being hawked about for a while were of necessity sold here at comparatively low rates. It is, however, claimed that some of the manufacturing concerns having, after a little trial, realized the conditions and prospects have turned their attention to other markets, southwest, along the Sound, and eastward, and have obtained sufficiently favorable results to partially neutralize the poor returns from this city, as already noted, a few indeed claiming to have made a very good year where they were not caught on extreme transportation charges. There is no doubt, however, that the New York city trade and a great deal of the business in immediately adjoining localities has been of a disappointing and unsatisfactory character, and especially so as the conditions were such as to shut off a large per centage of competing grades, and give sellers every chance except the very necessary one of a free and open demand. This, of course, it is understood, is not the result of any disfavor into which Spruce may have fallen, but simply a natural reflection of the condition of the building trade probably more likely to be shown on this class of lumber than any other of the standard grades, and while the end of the season brought the usual and natural recuperation on the line of value, it was really due more to the restricted offerings than to any actual increase of demand. In the matter of accumulated stocks there is evidently a fair reflection of the undetermined feeling of dealers, some of them having an unusually small quantity on hand, while others have piled away quite as full an amount as usual, and in a few instances really overrun, claiming that in any event there can be no danger in carrying stock at the comparatively low cost, and there may be a chance for quite a snug turn over before the new cut becomes available. The idea of a very fair and possibly good winter trade, to be followed by a brisk spring demand, is certainly growing a little, and it naturally stiffens the views of holders who may have really desirable supplies in hand, for they calculate that should even their own regular custom not keep quite up with the procession, scantly stocked neighbors may be willing or even anxious to purchase here in preference to awaiting tardy communication with primary points. Should demand open up in any way general it would soon develop a great scarcity of 25-foot timber, a large number of dealers having absolutely none at all and the chances are much against making good the deficiency. Even if in full working order and with an ample supply of logs available, the mills would object to cutting such stuff exclusively or in liberal proportion except at very exorbitant rates, for by doing so other schedules would be ruined and salable only at a slaughter. One of the principal features of interest at the Eastward during the season was the very pronounced effort made to break up the wholesale system of evading the custom duties, as practiced on the river forming the boundary line between Maine and New Brunswick. To do away with this method of smuggling, and in which some of the largest concerns were either engaged directly or giving secret aid, was considered almost an impossible task, yet so well have government agents performed the duties to which they were specially assigned, that at the end of the season illicit lumber on the border was a much less plentiful article than in former years. As to work in the woods, probable log crop, etc., there is the usual list of conflicting reports and as yet a little too early in the season to draw any really solid conclusions. According to the records of arrivals the receipts for 1888 at this port are, after all, nearly as full as during the preceding year, the footing showing 165,000,000 feet, of which 57,000,000 came from the Provinces and 108,000,000 from Maine, comparing with 79,000,000 from Provinces and 91,000,000 from Maine; total, 170,000,000 feet in 1887.

Northern Spruce did not do as well as during the preceding year by any means. Of course the universal shrinkage in demand for all kinds of lumber may, to some extent, be saddled with the difficulty sellers have encountered, but low prices have brought other descriptions of stock into competition to which buyers gave the preference, and the result upon State Spruce was unfavorable. Through the early portion of the year, and indeed during summer, pretty well on towards fall, an appearance at least of light enough offerings to fairly balance the outlet was maintained, but subsequently the evidences pointed to a gradual accumulation in first hands with a belief expressed that the amount carried over at primary points at the close of the regular season was larger than for many years. Manufacturers, in some instances at least, are known to have calculated upon quite an increase of demand, and having plenty of logs available cut with freedom, but, in common with the rest of the trade, made the discovery that buyers generally could and would carry their indifference to the very end. It may be noted, however, that pretty much the old representative custom has continued to handle the stuff, and about former selections were made, which is accepted as an assurance that if business in lumber revives Northern Spruce will get its proportion.

Hemlock has not lost caste at all, and those who used it a year ago are quite as willing to use it now as an article good enough and desirable for almost any kind of work to which rough lumber is adapted. There has been a great deal lost in the volume of trade, however, leading dealers estimating from 25 to 33 per cent. smaller movement than in 1887. State stock has been particularly slow, and toward the end of the season it became so neglected that the offering consisted very largely of odd lots picked up as a venture by shippers who were forwarding other descriptions of stuff, but neither these lots or larger invoices were wanted, notwithstanding there could always be found an easy tone on values. The actual selling prices were always more or less erratic, and it is difficult to decide as to how great advantage accrued to buyers, but probably on the average 50c. per M less than the preceding year would be a fair suggestion. It is understood that there was a considerable cutting down of production by manufacturers whose prophetic vision led them to see what might be expected before the wind-up of the year. Pennsylvania Hemlock was the greatest favorite again, because it is made better and handled better in the majority of cases, yet the actual movement after the first flush of spring trade did not prove very full again at any time during the season, and frequently it was a pretty dull market. Tho light business and disappointment of operators has led to an erratic tone on values, with now and then almost a certainty that very much lower rates were accepted than made public, especially when manufacturers got into keen competitive humor over some opportunity to bring about a good-sized sale. Latterly, however, there has been a steadier feeling and fair recovery on price, manufacturers not urging matters, though it is understood they have a good accumulation on hand. During the year an absurd story was started and frequently brought up claiming that a gigantic Trust had been formed in the Hemlock trade, yet notwithstanding the almost insurmountable difficulties in the way of perfecting such a scheme, the story obtained considerable credit when started, and has a few believers yet. What was formed proved to be simply an association to overcome some of the previous wildcat methods, and handle the products of the mill upon a business basis. This, in brief, amounted to a better and more uniform grading under the inspection of the best talent obtainable, and a uniformity of valuation so far as was possible with a storing of surplus stock when necessary. As some of the leading manufacturers did not come in at all, it was, of course, not a Trust, and any firm or individual in the Trade could join by conforming to rules or withdraw if so desiring, though none availed themselves of the latter privilege. Some of our Western exchanges not long ago spoke of growing interest in Hemlock in that direction and promising more general use when consumers and workmen shall gradually overcome their prejudices against it.

White Pine has rarley been commented upon in cheerful, promising form, but a very common experience has been to find operators grumbling and fault-finding over the condition of trade. Consumption has fallen away, undoubtedly through the same influence that have subjected all other descriptions of lumber to a reduced call, but another year's trial has shown that poplar and to a considerable extent Carolina pine are competitors that cannot be ignored or considered of no importance, to say nothing of the large quantity of hardwoods used for finish where White Pine used to hold supreme sway. In view of these features, therefore, it was not in any way remarkable that dealers were, from the outset, modest and indifferent investors with their caution much increased by the agitation of the tariff question up to the period of election, though even when it became practically certain that no change of duty would be made on any supply that could be handled during the season, there was no noticeable variation in the temper of buyers; nor was there any special occasion for hurry, as, in addition to those who had their regular mills or interior dealers to draw upon and found all the accommodation in the way of supplies desired, our market was constantly visited by a brigade of traveling salesmen largely from the West with ample offerings, and in natural sequence close competition to the advantage of buyers. Not one-half the stuff offered to city dealers has been placed, but some pretty good trading was done "across the bridge" at times, and the old hands who had been here before when they found how matters were working quietly slipped out of the city and, drumming up all the country trade and the orders from Eastern markets, etc., managed to do reasonably well, leaving the less experienced to contend against the disagreeable local conditions. Toward fall there was some improvement in the demand, and, as usual, just about the period of canal closing quite a little rush of arrivals took place; but the movement has been very much heavier at the corresponding period in former years, and the majority of dealers came into the winter with an accumulation below their average and inclined to run largely to coarse grades. Outside of a few of the principal operations there has also been a noticeable indisposition to handle supplies in large blocks, but rather to pick up a little here and a little there with a probability that on close investigation this would be shown in a somewhat mottled condition of quality. The one exceptional grade of White Pine moving promptly and about as freely as available supplies would admit was to be found in box boards; indeed these have been scarce from the commencement to the end of the year, and an offering generally found buyers about as ready to open negotiations as sellers, which of course insured a pretty steady range of value. Although not openly reported there is scarcely a doubt that a few operators have managed to pick up some good inch box at a shading from $15, yet the latter figure was the average inside quotation, especially toward the end of the season, and there are many operators who look for quite a pronounced advance during the incoming year. Other descriptions have shown continuous irregularity with an inclination toward depression on value, and uppers, as in the preceding year, the most unsatisfactory grade to handle on the list, with first-class generally understood to have frequently sold at a shading from $45 per M. Shippers of all kinds, too, have been slow and uncertain, the export trade having been considerably curtailed, partly owing to the extreme cost of freight, and it was not often during the season that a really good, solid foreign order could be booked. During December, however, more promising evidences were developed on both South American and West Indian account, and we find rather more enthusiastic suggestions regarding what is likely to be done before spring. Indeed, as a matter of fact, just at this season, when supplies are not openly pressing and there seems a prospect for more demand, it is natural that sellers should brace up somewhat, but a few of the more cautious do not overlook the fact that experience is commencing to have its influence upon interior operators, particularly in this State, and instead of closing the season with the canals they will be on the lookout for any chance that may arise to place orders for rail shipment. There has been for some time an effort making to form a combination of the export operators—not a trust, but simply an association to prevent unprofitable competition—and, as the story goes, all but one dealer expressed a willingness to enter into an agreement of that kind. The operator who stands out, it is understood, has no objection to such a compact if it be strictly adhered to but with memories of former breaches of faith, now insists that a heavy forfeiture penalty be a pronounced feature of the agreement, and the others not being ready to meet that condition the movement makes no progress at the moment. The increase of 50 per cent. in export duty on logs from Canada into the United States, and called by the politicians a retaliatory measure, naturally excited some attention and comment, but a little figuring over the subject did appear to show that any serious influence would be felt this side of the line. Indeed a writer in Ottawa shows that the average shipment of pine logs to the United States for fifteen or sixteen years were less than three million feet, and the loss of such a supply would prove of little consequence.

Yellow Pine has maintained its reputation for running slightly contrary to the general market. In former seasons, when other kinds of lumber were working satisfactorily and bringing a very good return, Yellow Pine was more or less in the dumps so far as prices were concerned, but this year it has really worked to a higher and firmer level and found a very good sale, as shown by the comparison of receipts with the preceding year, and the figures would have looked better still had it not been for the temporary break in the movement during the yellow fever period. Two natural influences have contributed to bring about the results as suggested, and may be briefly stated as the continuation of an open, direct demand, and a still further improvement in the management of supplies at all points. The various outlets offered for Yellow Pine have been too often enumerated to require repetition at this time, and with a vast number of dealers and consumers making it a prime favorite for the uses to which it seems to be peculiarly adapted, there was no difficulty experienced in finding custom. The most satisfactory feature, however, was to be found in the evident more rapid overcoming of the strained competitive struggle that has for such a long period been going on between all classes of operators. Locally, the confederation existing between dealers has been so closely adhered to that it proved no longer worth the effort to pit one against the other, even on pretty good orders, and gradually but surely the long-talked-of understanding between manufacturers approaches consummation, indeed, is considered as practically accomplished, in view of the fact that Atlantic coast representation of nearly five hundred million feet has already come to an agreement and the small balance expected to join soon. The two organizations are already working in harmony and with mutual benefit that seems to offset and contradict the expressions of unbelief made by the usual few who can always be found in opposition to anything in the way of a change, and the promoters of the scheme are quite jubilant over what they consider the full success attained. Heretofore the ruling conditions have been such that the buyer dictated pretty much everything on negotiations under way, but with the new order of things the seller will have considerable more to say and find an excellent backing to support him in any stand he may make against a reduction in the plane of valuation fixed by the associations. It is a great wonder that some story about a "great lumber trust" has not by this time been started by the sensationalists, but possible that common sense for once prevails as the deal is wholly and simply a protective measure against ruinous prices and methods, and claiming no authority or desire to force undue valuations. Indeed, as we understand it, the individual members use their own judgment on an advancing scale, and the associations hold the peg against a decline below a certain point. Only coastwise lumber is thus far affected, but if the results prove as favorable as expected it is likely the influence will be extended over much broader ground. It is somewhat difficult, of course, to make even an approximating guess of the quantity of stock on hand, but consultation with disinterested operators leads us to the opinion that the accumulation is no larger than last year, if as large, and many dealers are said to be particularly short on desirable parcels of boards. Some few contracts of very good size have been made during the season for railway consumption, but this line of trade is changing somewhat and is now transacted largely direct for rail shipment. Directly and indirectly the erection of the Poughkeepsie bridge made quite an addition to the consumptive outlet. During the early portion of the season, and for that matter during a greater portion of it, the export trade was erratic and unsatisfactory, with however a general inclination to run dull and sluggish on most outlets, partly owing to extreme transportation charges. Within a month or two, however, the position has improved materially, owing in a measure to the more pressing character of wants at the foreign ports, and also to some extent influenced by the prospective results of the new associations as tending to show that standing out for easy rates was no longer a profitable action. On the first change for the better, and when shippers commenced to purchase, it is said that a few manufacturers were caught napping on some pretty low cost and freight offers, but have since gained a firmer position, and f. o. b. orders on latest reports were claimed to show a fair living margin. Most of the business thus far has been with South American and West Indian custom, but English buyers manifest a greater degree of interest and are contracting whenever they can find the freight room to suit them. Investment in Southern Pine lands is still considered sure and safe, and large tracts have been secured during the year by shrewd lumbermen, some of whom have no idea of cutting for the present, but the feeling seems to be that with the expanding outlet for this class of stock at the West, as again shown in comparison with the preceding year and the safeguards thrown around production, there is no danger of an excessive supply.

Carolina Pine timber has simply verified our suggestions of a year ago, and made another failure to establish itself as a permanent article upon the market. It had no mission to fill, in fact. The supply and cost of Spruce were of a character to satisfy most consumers without difficulty and upon satisfactory terms, but it is really doubtful if the Carolina product possessed merit sufficient to hold its own in any case. Its heavy and undesirable working qualities were alone a great drawback, besides which the only way to carry it free from stain was under water, and as few dealers had facilities for the latter method, it became popular to let the wood alone. In the meanwhile the kiln-dried and dressed stock has been gaining in favor, and may now be considered as having undergone sufficient trial to place it among the regular lines of supply coming upon the market and also extending the area of distribution. Indeed the latter point has been quite noticeable, as in view of the slack conditions of our local trade manufacturers, through their agents, have been canvassing a more extended territory, and boast of having established the reputation and sale of their production in localities where it was never handled until this year. There is considerable doubt about much money having been made in the business however, owing to pretty keen competition at all times and frequently to somewhat costly transportation charges. New concerns have sprung up in the business quite extensively, and naturally all felt anxious to promptly secure a footing, and, as a most effective method for reaching that end, held out the bait of a reduced cost. This naturally compelled the older houses to follow suit or risk the loss of regular custom, so that throughout buyers have had something to tempt them besides the now admitted attractions possessed by this class of wood when properly prepared for market. The great trouble has been much the same as in the preceding year—a careless and, in some instances, an apparent reckless disregard of the necessity for a thorough seasoning and careful manufacture of all supplies sent into market. Some of this trouble has come from the new manufacturers and a little of it from the older ones, but the latter, having learned from experience the necessity for preserving a high standard, make a more general effort to do so, and it is reasonable to expect similar tendencies will suggest themselves to those who have recently tried the market. This city may be a pretty good place to dump all kinds of lumber, but buyers are learning more about quality every year, and if they consent to handle poor stuff it must be at a price in accord with its merit. One result of the carelessness of the Southern millmen is that a great many local dealers with planing-mill facilities have taken upon themselves to dress their stock as it may be wanted, and claim much satisfaction with the result, especially in the matter of flooring and ceiling. There was at one time during the year quite an effort made to introduce Carolina Pine to box-makers, but with poor success, notwithstanding very tempting offers in the way of cost were tendered. Dealers, however, say they are not discouraged, especially as the stuff has been successfully used for boxes in neighboring cities, and while there is certainly no chance now, think that if White Pine boxing advances next season as threatened, there will be a good opening for a substitute.

Hardwoods have occasionally shown moderate throbs of animation, but the pulse of trade beats slow and sluggish during the greater portion of the year, and operators who claim an excess of business over 1887 are few and far between. The variety of uses to which many kinds of hardwood are adapted might reasonably have been calculated upon to give their division of the lumber market a basis for animation somewhat independent of the influence of reduced building operations, but manufacturing of all descriptions seems to have run in narrower channels, and it was only those dealers fortunate enough to control special lines of distribution who have not at some time complained over the absence of desirable custom, and frequently the conditions were protracted. Of course a record of absolute consumption for house trimming and cabinet work would show a good round figure for this city and dependent points, yet the shrinkage as compared with former seasons and the greater number of operators depending upon that business are what tend to produce the tame features. One point frequently suggested was the tendency to much closer selection in the matter of quality, and throughout it has been an easier matter to sell high grade stock than the poorer and cheaper descriptions. All the elements prevailing upon the distributive market have found reflection in wholesale operations to some extent, though selling from first hands was really the most difficult portion of the business. This may be attributed in part to the fact that some sanguine dealers contracted at interior points early in the season and repented thereof at their leisure. Nearly all the leading houses, as well as some of the largest consumers, now do their trading direct with the mills. Consigned lots were frequent and pressing, and as an additional source of supply, some of the yard dealers have been sellers of car lots, etc., at just about as good terms as could be offered from first hands. At one time it was claimed that a full supply was piled up here and tending to increase, an assertion that will hold good in some instances, yet there are a great many dealers who undoubtedly prefer an opposite method in the absence of brilliant trade prospects. This is the result in part of the yearly improving facilities for reaching additions when wanted, which would warrant some risk in postponing investment until necessity became pressing, and in part may be attributed to a very natural business suggestion that money can be used to greater advantage than locked up in an excess of stock on an unpromising market. The general export trade has been good, and for a time was very full, running far in excess of last year, but the freedom of the movement made shippers somewhat careless, and they allowed the quality of the consignments to deteriorate greatly. Repeated warnings from abroad did not at first have a very salutary influence, but when returns commenced to be received, the error became a cold fact that could well be understood, and of late the selection has proven more careful, though quantity ran off somewhat. There is little doubt that American hardwoods are gaining favor abroad, both in Great Britain and on the Continent, but buyers are too critical as yet to willingly handle any but the best of stock, and a maintenance of a high average order of shipments would naturally appear to be the only course calculated to expand the foreign trade. Most advices received from primary sources are clothed in the language of confidence and firmness, though that does not altogether coincide with efforts made to sell upon this market right along up to the holiday shut-off for winding up the year's accounts.

As the same general influences have affected all leading hardwoods, any extended detailed reference to the various descriptions would be useless, though a few passing words may be noted. Walnut has followed the tendency of the preceding year and retired still further into obscurity, so far as the home trade is concerned. High cost has had something to do with this result, but a change in taste and fashion a great deal more, the lighter woods now finding much favor, while for dark shades mahogany has been a prominent and successful competitor in a great many ways. The stock now is light as it requires much capital to carry any great accumulation of desirable stuff. Not a few of the trade, however, are of the opinion that walnut will ultimately regain its popularity, in part at least, as it is an excellent working wood, and one that gains instead of losing in appearance by age. Cherry, too, seems to have lost favor somewhat, indeed has really been much slower than during the preceding year. Some have attributed this to dissatisfaction with its wearing quality where a test of several years use has been obtained, but probably a more potent reason can be found in the extreme cost prevailing for anything really desirable. There has been plenty of medium and common grades on which selling was difficult, even under pressure, but really first-class stock was difficult to find at all times, and fortunate possessors of such with a full appreciation of its value never hesitated to insist upon extreme price. A fair quantity is controlled by leading dealers, but no excess. Poplar has found an irregular and confusing market throughout, and a succession of contradictory reports greeted every search after information throughout the entire year. Complaints over the manufacture, grading and methods of shipment have been constant and bitter, and have been reciprocated from primary points regarding the manner in which stuff was handled and disposed of here, so that it has been a sort of general wrangle all around. Manufacturers mindful of their interests, however, are endeavoring to overcome many of the difficulties, and conventions looking to that end have already been held. The consumption of poplar has undoubtedly been fuller than of any other hardwood, and average cost somewhat lower than during the preceding season, though really fine stock was scarce enough to occasionally permit some pretty good rates. Plain sawed Oak, in ordinary commercial parlance, has been plenty, dull and easy. Some export demand has been found, a little went to the home trade from month to month, but the outlet never seemed adequate to the supply, and it was rarely a satisfactory wood to handle. Quarter-sawed Oak, too, has come down several pegs in price during the year, not through any special loss of favor among consumers, for we think it has retained quite its usual proportionate share in the general movement, but mainly on account of over production, and a determined effort about July last to get rid of the surplus. Under the pressure came the inevitable drop in from which there has since been no satisfactory recovery, though owners of really fine stock are rather inclined to carry than to accept slaughter rates, as they consider the stock good property. Ash has found a somewhat erratic trade, at times meeting with positive neglect, and then finding quite a little flurry of demand, but never working up to a point of genuine activity, and in common with most other woods has ruled lower in cost than last year, a feature increased by the fact that many mill men have been forced to realize for the sake of prompt cash. Chestnut, Hickory and Elm have found spasmodic sale at irregular rates, but in a general way developed no specially noteworthy features. Maple was also a slow selling uncertain article, but secured some favor from furniture men, and had a certain outlet for flooring on special work. Basswood, Cottonwood and Gum have all found friends, and it is claimed in somewhat increased proportions as consumers became more used to the varieties. Sycamore found no special favor at any time, its principal consumption being in tobacco boxes, and for that purpose is generally placed at stated intervals on contract. Cypress at times found some favor for building purposes, but finds its best custom as usual among tank builders, and is claimed to have secured pretty nearly an average sale. Redwood seems to have done very well during the year, indeed an actual improvement is claimed, and the gentlemen who have confidently and persistently labored to secure a place for this wood on its merits appear to be at last obtaining some recompense. Ash, Cherry, Oak, and Walnut balusters have secured fair attention, but in diminished volume in accord with house building. The demand, however, wanted only perfect quality, square-sawed stock, and anything else would not sell for enough to pay the freight. Mahogany has retained the position reached in 1887, and really seems to have proved about as satisfactory to handle as any wood on the market. Consumption in the aggregate was undoubtedly less than during the preceding year, yet there is no doubt that Mahogany has been a successful competitor against domestic growths in a great many instances, not only locally but on a wider area of distribution in the interior. For a month or two Western demand has been rather less active. The popularity of Mahogany is unquestionably due largely to its natural attractive merits, but the market has been materially assisted by a large well-assorted supply of cheap logs, the benefit of which was secured to the consumer, through the careful and liberal management of our local manufacturers, both in the matter of production and in fixing prices, our city probably never having shown a better assortment of low priced stuff. Logs of Walnut, Cherry, Poplar, Ash, and Oak have, in an irregular way, found reasonably good sale, but dependence had to be placed largely upon the foreign outlet. During the summer and fall the markets abroad were overstocked, but recent advices indicate a reduction in accumulations, and there is a chance for revival of trade. Stock to sell readily, however, must be perfectly sound and the larger in size the better.

* All exports of Cedar, Walnut, Cabinet and Oak have been placed under the regular exports of hardwood, lumber, etc., as the bulk, if not all, are without doubt of domestic growth.

Shingles have probably done as well in the volume of business as during the preceding year, indeed, some operators think the aggregate of distribution rather larger, but aside from that the comparison is less favorable. Of course, locally there has been no consumption at all, and that other domestic outlets would have taken the quantity of stock they did without the assistance of a little gentle pressure, and now and then even some force, is an open question. Especially have sellers appeared anxious to get rid of pine shingles, and constant crowding gradually and surely worked down cost until something like 75c. per M decline from what could have been made at the commencement of the season was shown. There is a steadier holding now, but no demand. Other kinds of shingles have also shaded off in value, but to a smaller average extent, and met with a fair natural demand. The supply of cedar stock has, as usual, come principally from the South, but it is understood that Oregon shippers who have been laboring for some time to overcome difficulties in the way of a profitable connection with this market are at last successful, and propose to compete for the trade, which, if carried out, must result beneficially to buyers. The export trade has shown no new features and made about the usual record, both here and on f. o. b. orders at Southern ports.

The exports of Shingles from the port of New York for the years named are as follows:

	Number.	Value.		Number.	Value.
1879	5,427,700	$27,875	1884	3,778,700	$17,049
1880	6,450,590	35,525	1885	3,217,000	16,826

1883	2,591,800	12,072	1888	2,156,000	11,366

Piling has, on the whole, done very well. Soon after the commencement of the year evidences of pretty full consumptive wants were shown, which soon materialized into the booking of considerable orders and every prospect of more to follow, and a stiffening of rates, with sellers holding the advantage very well for the first six months, and might have retained it fully in all probability under ordinary sources of supply. Two influences, however, operated adversely: first, a little fuller receipt by vessel than expected, and second, the successful trip of the big raft bringing to hand an immense addition to the supply literally all in a bunch. This raft stock, to be sure, was not thrown upon the market as some feared; indeed, was broken out of bulk slowly over a period of two or three months, and held by the receiver presumably against expected work of his own, though many of the Trade have been of the opinion that fair bids would reach a portion of the supply. The fact that some 25,000 pieces or more thus situated naturally acted as a sort of menace, and unquestionably aided buyers in a measure, yet at the close of the season there was not much stock in chains, and some of the leading receivers were well cleaned out of all sizes, while on price there had been a fair recovery. Consumption, in fact, has really proven good, a considerable amount of harbor dock building, quite a large quantity taken for work at Communipaw; numerous sewer jobs in annexed districts, together with a nice order for the new railroad cut; further wants on the Harlem River improvement and occasional sales of 5,000 to 10,000 pieces to points up the Hudson, altogether making an exhaust of no mean proportions. Everyone interested is familiar with the history of the voyage of the timber raft from Nova Scotia to this port, and, as that was the second successful attempt out of three made, it is to be accepted as an established fact that under proper conditions bulky bodies of timber may be towed along the coast. "It is reported" that another raft may be tried during the coming season, but, between an inclination of the Canadian authorities to introduce some prohibitive measure, and a guess that the last venture did not pan out enough profit to pay for the trouble, a number of shrewd operators are a little skeptical about further shipments except in regular form.

METALS.—Following our usual custom we must abstain from giving anything more than a brief glance at the condition of the general metal market, leaving the voluminous details to special trade journals. Taken all in all, the trade has been a fairly successful one, and in few instances are operators winding up the season with any great measure of complaint. Margins have frequently been narrow, and the volume of trade somewhat reduced, but these were business elements of the times and accepted as a matter of course, the diminution in the consumption being neutralized to a considerable extent by a judicious curtailment in the production and importation. After the first few months of the year the tariff question gradually ceased to be much of a factor, as it became evident that no measure would be passed before election, and after the decision of the ballot had been made a change in duty was considered a still more remote possibility. Domestic Pig Iron fluctuated slightly at the start, and then settled off somewhat, after which came a monotonous uniformity that kept quotations unchanged, frequently for weeks, and then the variation would be only fractional. Scotch Pig also shaded, but afterward went up on foreign influences, with about the usual average sale made. Steel rails, in view of the heavy deliveries of the preceding year and the contracts coming over, did not find very extensive custom for a while, and gradually fell away in value, but a revival of demand within a few months has invigorated the market again and recovered values from the low point touched. Lead has gone through the experience of a bull movement and an attempted corner, but the individual who tried the deal found it too weighty, and the result was disaster to himself and a general breaking down of values again. Tin has met with moderate speculative manipulation throughout, leading to no violent disturbance of values, and permitting consumers to come in on a fair basis. Plates met with lessened consumptive demand, especially for roofing purposes, and generally the inclination of values was downward. Copper was retained under perfect control of the syndicate that inaugurated the boom in 1887 and brought it over into the next year, and throughout the season the seller named the price with no time wasted in opposition, though demand has been kept close to actual wants on all oulets. The production of copper by mines outside the combination has been urged as much as possible, and made an increase, but hardly enough as yet to have any decided influence. The shipments of refined copper from Lake Superior mines during the season of navigation were 59,574,066 pounds. The production from the same mines during the entire year is placed at about 81,000,000 pounds, against 75,472,000 pounds in 1887 and 79,329,000 pounds in 1886. Up to the close of the year the contracts made for pig iron, 1889 delivery, were somewhat uncertain, but understood to be pretty large, and generally upon a basis of about $18.00 per No. 1 X Foundry. The Pennsylvania product to a fair extent holds its own against other outputs where quality is fine, but Southern irons have become a recognized factor of great importance in feeding the general wants of the country, and acting as a balance against overstrained values. In substantiation of the above the monthly furnace statement prepared by the American Manufacturer shows that there were in blast December 1st in Alabama, Tennessee and the Virginias a total of twenty-nine furnaces with a weekly capacity of about 17,000 tons using coke fuel, and twenty-four furnaces with nearly 8,000 tons capacity using charcoal.

According to the report of the American Iron and Steel Association the total production of pig iron during the year is estimated at 6,000,000 tons, and of Bessemer steel rails at 1,350,000 tons. The production of bar iron and plate and sheet iron did not vary much from that of 1886, while the production of structural iron and steel has been greater during 1888 than in 1886 or 1887. The consumption of iron and steel during this year has fallen below that of the two preceding years. The total importations are estimated at 950,000 gross tons. It is believed that the consumption of pig iron has fallen off about 600,000 tons, as compared with 1887, and the consumption of steel rails about 800,000 tons.

NAILS.—A slow, uneventful sort of market has prevailed during the greater portion of the season, and week after week reports have been made without the introduction of a new idea or a change in the general line of valuation. As a matter of course, a great many nails have been sold on all natural outlets, as the consumption is of too universal character to prevent the stagnation that might occur in many other commodities, but the chances are that very little stock has been taken beyond actual consumption requirements, as dealers moved with moderation and caution. A great many of them, in fact, commenced the year with quite an accumulation in hand at a cost they were never able to obtain a profit upon, and on the average were probably compelled to sell out at a loss, which, in conjunction with the apparent absence of any danger of positive advantage going to the selling side, has simply kept the buyer in an indifferent mood and practically master of the situation. During the first two or three months a faint surface appearance of steadiness was preserved, and "quotations" were unchanged, but constant rumors of cutting on price gradually developed into certainty, and by the end of April $2.00 was admitted top price, with large parcels obtainable still lower, and there has since been a further shading, with sales of car lots down to $1.75, though the latter was the exception, and latterly a better range has been current. It is, however, doubtful as to how much stamina the market really contains, and a portion of the trade frankly confess to the absence of any very cheerful views over the immediate future. The cost of material continues reasonably low; the general stock of nails is full as compared with any indicated outlet, and it is thought to be quite unlikely that any permanent co-operation among manufacturers can be obtained, especially as regards the Eastern and Western divisions of the trade. There has been no territory encroachment of an important character on the part of operators from the two localities named, yet an indirect competition has been maintained throughout, and with "outside" lots continually turning up when least expected, manufacturers find it difficult to assert a position of determination as yet. A hopeful feeling is expressed regarding the incoming year, however, as it is believed that even should consumption fail to increase, the efforts making to control and regulate production will be crowned with success. The distribution during the year has embraced about the usual run of custom, domestic and foreign, with no new outlets opened worthy of note. Steel and wire nails have done very well comparatively, though the bulk of demand favors iron goods, especially among a certain class of interior consumers, where anything in the way of an innovation is looked upon with suspicion and distrust, even when after a trial the merits of new goods seem to be fully established. The production of iron nails east of the Allegheny Mountains during the year is estimated at 2,250,000 kegs, against 2,727,734 kegs in 1887.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—A detailed review of the various articles covered by the caption of this report would occupy almost too much space, and indeed is hardly a necessity, as in all general particulars they have shown much the same features. Business has fluctuated to a considerable extent, at times reaching a point of very fair animation and again dropping into quite positive dullness, partly under seasonable influences and in a large measure due to the more or less independent position of buyers through which they have been enabled to operate according to their own convenience. Taken as a whole, however, the quantity of stock handled has not been as meagre as might have been supposed, indeed many manufacturers, importers and jobbers assert that their footings for the entire year reach really good proportions, and express themselves as satisfied. They have secured an equitable measure of the current volume of general trade and possibly a little surplus so far as specialties connected with the building line are concerned. Locally new work in building does not require a vast amount of paint, especially in these days when hardwood finish is so universal; but alterations, repairs and a general brushing up of old buildings as the outcome of economic methods upon the part of owners, affords a larger field for consumption than might be supposed, especially for the average run of standard goods. There is a great deal of coarse work done here, too, that uses up a liberal quantity of stuff, new coats nearly every trip for the fleet of iron steamers coming into port from all localities, besides the constant requirements upon the structures of the elevated railroads. Against the outlet there has nearly always been sufficient stock, sometimes a little surplus and again a temporary deficiency, but importation and production were reasonably managed and rarely did holders find themselves in a position that seemed to require forced realizing. The range of value was in consequence reasonably uniform, though upon a comparatively narrow margin, as the condition of trade created closer calculation to retain custom, and just so much added to the benefit of buyers. The greatest disturbance was upon leads, but this arose through the speculative manipulations of material and not due to any influencing element in the corroded article. Linseed Oil has sold along fairly from week to week and month to month without any particularly noteworthy feature until the latter half of the year, when prices took a hardening tendency and lifted the range of cost somewhat, owing to better control obtained over supplies. Spirits Turpentine has found a market occasionally inclined to a little excitement, as the speculative element endeavored to get in its fine work, but no violent disturbances occurred and consumers rarely allowed themselves to be flurried. Operators generally claim to have the market well in hand at the close and talk firmly on valuation.

PLASTER PARIS.—Calcined has found quite as large a movement in the aggregate as during the preceding twelvemonth, and, all in all, it was a fairly satisfactory market throughout. City demand fell off somewhat, but hardly as much as might have been expected, while from other sources the call upon manufacturers was fuller and steady, and at no time during the regular period of production were any of the mills idle for want of orders, indeed they were frequently behind in their deliveries. The domestic shipments have been of a very general character, covering all the ordinary sources of distribution, as well as a fair addition of custom from new points, and the export trade was also quite encouraging, footing up the largest amount of which we have any record. The foreign business embraced orders from West Indies, South America and Australia. On prices the fluctuation was moderate, so much so that it was rarely necessary to revise the general range of quotations, though under special circumstances buyers have occasionally secured fractional advantages. The uniformity was due mainly to the narrow margins existing, but in part to absence of any serious attempts at competition on the basis of cost, the experience of former years, and especially during 1887, having shown the folly of trying to fight against large and thoroughly equipped mills working all modern improvements and run by owners always ready to meet all cuts and then go one better when forced to, yet rarely if ever assuming the aggressive. At the close of the year, however, the increase in the cost of stone has acted as a stimulus, and rates are marked up 10c. per bbl. all around, with a feeling of considerable firmness extant, and even a further advance talked of. Eastern made stock has come in to some extent, but mainly to a regular trade for shipment, and did not act as much of a factor. While it lasted the excitement of the tariff question was quite pronounced, as the removal of duty meant a practical annihilation of the manufacturing of calcined plaster in the United States. Referring to this subject a writer in Nova Scotia said: "It is to be regretted that there is not in this province an establishment similar to that at Hillsboro, in New Brunswick, capable of meeting our requirements for ground and manufactured plaster. The removal of the duty imposed on the manufactured article imported into the United States would permit the establishment of an important industry here, which would represent many times the value of the crude article exported." But the duty was not removed, and the Canadians must still be content with selling us the crude rock

As will be noted by statistics appended the importations of Lump Plaster are considerably in excess of last year and even run ahead of 1886, but all was wanted, and, indeed, for that matter the year is closing upon what manufacturers consider an inadequate supply. Upon the winding up of last season the amount in accumulation was by no means large, and during the early portion of the year now under review the shipments from primary causes were slow and moderate, so that with ordinary consumptive wants alone the exhaust of supply would have been quite as full as the situation seemed to warrant. With the spring, however, came a verification of predictions in the matter of demand for fertilizing purposes, which was large and anxious, causing still more rapid inroads upon the held-over stock, and aiding in providing a waiting outlet for current arrivals. It was not until May that fresh receipts commenced to make any showing at all, but after that period they increased with considerable rapidity, as the fortunate circumstance of the construction of a number of large schooners expressly designed for this trade permitted the forwarding of cargoes of much greater magnitude than usual, and up to midsummer there was no special difficulty experienced in getting sufficient rock for the mills. About the 1st of September, however, manufacturers were confronted with a demand for higher freight charges, the rates asked being $2.00@2.25 per ton, against $1.40@1.50, but thinking this would be only a temporary affair they quite generally refused to meet the conditions; indeed, took quite a decided stand in opposition. This step was fatal, for it very soon became evident that the tonnage upon which they most depended had an excellent market elsewhere, and all the large English vessels were chartered for long voyages in the South American trade, from which they cannot return until next season, and as a means of transportation manufacturers have for many weeks found it necessary to pick up such accommodation as they could find among the ordinary coasters, and must apparently depend upon this source for a long time to come. The result is that with the smaller accumulation on hand to start with, the liberal exhaust for land plaster, and about the average quantity calcined, the increased importation has all been needed, and the close finds first hand stocks of meagre proportion again, with considerable worry about the chances for obtaining relief, as even the payment of extreme freight rates cannot be depended upon to insure the full transportation facilities desired. Naturally the influence is very strengthening upon the entire market, especially as the promises are in favor of good consumption of stone right along, including a fresh exhaust of no mean volume, in the amount required for the production of plaster cement, a newly-invented and apparently useful addition to the line of structural materials.

SLATE.—So far as our immediate local consumption of Roofing Slate is concerned there is very little to be said. As for many years past the amounts handled are exceedingly small, mainly on special contract, and not enough to make any regular market, but in what they have accomplished during the past season, sellers retained most of the advantage and secured full prices. On the regular wholesale market, however, as represented by the distribution of supplies from the quarries through the various exhausting channels, the year has in many respects been even a better one than 1887. Some grounds of complaint have been found with the home trade, such as a rather cautious demand from the railway corporations, and less than the usual business with the larger cities, but a good balance was obtained in a fuller call from smaller towns, with a larger number of them represented, so that the general country trade has probably made very little shrinkage if any at all. Another excellent feature of the situation and a pleasing contrast with former years has been found in the absence of competitive fighting for trade in such a manner as to cut off margins for profit and create ill-will and bitterness between manufacturers. On the contrary, there has been no more than the natural and pleasant friction in the Pennsylvania district, with values well sustained, and finally, on the legitimate force of a healthy business, attaining a somewhat higher plane without in any way checking the natural run of trade. Much the same condition of affairs prevailed also in Vermont, where an association of producers has been successful in keeping matters in such trim that business generally was much more satisfactory and the consumer suffered nothing. This combination was called a "Trust" by scribblers who used that term indiscriminately during a year when anything was appropriated for political effect, but, as a matter of fact, it was simply composed of the manufacturers of sea green slate, organized solely for mutual protection against over-production and kindred evils, and the moderate advance in price of 5@10c. per square on standard sizes amounted to simply a readjustment of the lines of values to the proper relative positions from whence they had been forced. The great point of the year, however, has been in the expansion of the foreign trade, which has more than realized the expectations entertained last January, when the premonitory symptoms had already become well marked. Indeed, in the demand there has scarcely been a lull from the commencement of the year up to the close, and the occasional temporary breaks in shipments were due solely to want of available freight room, a difficulty still existing to some extent. A few South American and West India orders were filled, but amounted to practically nothing in comparison with the sales to Australia and adjacent islands, from whence again came the principal volume of inquiry. It certainly speaks well for our domestic product that it is thus enabled to so thoroughly assert itself in competing with England in one of her own Provinces, and probably fair to assume that both quality and price are the attractions. Occasionally during the season reports have come from buyers of ability to pick up something at what appeared to be a low price, but investigation generally revealed the fact that quality was in proportion to the cost, and that no really sound good stock at any time weakened. Indeed, on the contrary, the tendency has been of a gradually hardening character, and as against $4.00 per square f. o. b. at New York one year ago, it would now probably be difficult to enter upon fresh contracts for less than $5.00 per square, with very little offering from first hands, the stock of black slate in the Bangor and Pen Argyl district being estimated at 6,000 to 7,000 squares as a maximum, against 70,000 squares at same time last season. As may be found in our appended statement, the 2,303,000 pieces exported in 1887 is overshadowed by the 4,125,000 pieces of the past year, and to the latter should be added 1,082,416 pieces shipped via Boston, simply because quick dispatch could not be obtained here, making a total in the odd hundreds in round numbers of 5,208,000 pieces. Nor does this really show the full business on foreign account, as several bunches of stock already sold are awaiting loading and clearance, which will come in the new year. So far as can be judged from present appearances, there is every reason to calculate upon a continuation of the demand, and the close finds a generally cheerful hopeful feeling extant. Of the miscellaneous product of slate, the output has been about up to the average, and generally good prices were obtained without apparent difficulty. School slate have not differed in any essential particular from 1887. There is some increase in the export trade, but that finds a balance in the shrinkage on home account, and altogether the volume of business is about the same, with prices steadily maintained throughout. At the close, indeed, the feeling is the strongest, and scarcely a doubt that prices will so go up on the stimulus of scant supplies of stock at the quarries and increased charges by producers. Supplies in merchantable order are fair in quantity and assortment, but not extensive enough to meet any general call.

STONE.—It would be pleasing to rehearse all the stories to be heard about the various descriptions of stone used for structural purposes in this city, but such course is hardly within the scope of a mere market report. Furthermore, we find the usual experience of having each individual operator or agent claiming something a little superior in the particular grade of stock he offers, and it would be an exceedingly difficult matter to properly discriminate were an attempt made to indicate the most popular description. The evidences are, however, that pretty much every variety heretofore considered in anyway staple has received about the usual proportionate attention, the rivalry of architects in seeking striking designs and contrasts as well as popular taste opposing adherence to two or three kinds of stone, making a general offering much more marketable, though experience leads to the rejection of anything of inferior quality. In the matter of immediate local consumption there is enough difference of opinion over the quantity used during the past year to render a decision difficult in making a comparison. There is no doubt that a smaller amount was used for dwellings, and some of the trade think this may have been nearly or wholly balanced by the liberal exhaust provided in some of the larger edifices erected, but on the whole we are inclined to favor the belief that the consumption in the city proper is somewhat behind 1887, with more or less compensation found, however, in sales made by agents here for delivery at other localities, an experience common with many other lines of structural material. Values have been somewhat irregular, for while a certain sort of set line of quotations was retained in most cases competition and the natural tendency of the times have combined to give buyers some advantages, and opportunities to secure good contracts have not been allowed to pass by where reasonable concessions would insure a successful issue of negotiations. For Blue Stone the principal operators have no hesitation in admitting a considerable curtailment of trade as against the movement of the preceding season, attributing the shrinkage solely to natural and unavoidable causes. Upon a money basis the falling away is estimated to be equal to about $250,000, with a very considerable portion of the loss made within our city boundaries, where the restricted building operations were just of a character to affect this kind of stock, while the absence of large and urgent public improvements was also a detrimental factor. Less complaint, however, is made over the general shipping trade, and while patent pavements have interfered to some extent, especially in cities, other localities have offered a fair compensation for the loss at this point. In value the change has been unimportant, possibly a slight percentage lower at times when circumstances seemed to warrant it, but the well-preserved compact among manufacturers, assisted by the excellent management of their agents here, has prevented senseless rate cutting and brought sellers through without any unnecessary loss through their own acts. With customers they have not in all cases been so fortunate, owing to the difficulties under which some builders have labored, but as a rule compromises were reached on the basis of extensions with good security. Regarding the outlook for the incoming year there seems to be a cheerful feeling for all kinds of stone, and indeed fair contracts are at the present writing already under treaty. Evidences of fuller building operations are already shown, and there is in addition almost a certainty that besides corporation work now under way, new improvements of some magnitude will be inaugurated calculated to increase the consumption of stone, especially in the way of curbing and flagging.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

The "Nightingale" Wood Block Tiling
GUARANTEED FOR A TERM OF YEARS.

Over 5,000,000 square feet laid. On ground, on fireproof, rough undressed boards and wooden joists or other floors. In any style, rough enough for a factory or artistic enough for a ball or drawing-room. Prevents malaria. Each block firmly keyed to substructure by metal keys dove-tailed into under sides of blocks, other extremities of keys embedded in damp-proof composition, which prevents dry-rot. Each block keyed independently of its neighbor to substructure. Composition is forced into groves traversing sides of blocks binding them to each other and foundation. Adopted extensively for many years in places where tiles, parquet, marble, etc., are often laid. Advantages being its thorough solidity, immovability, noiselessness and warmth.

VOL. XLIII. JANUARY 19, 1889. No. 1,088

The business outlook for the immediate future is not altogether satisfactory. The unseasonably mild weather has cut short the sale of winter goods; the supplies of coal has been much greater than the demand, and then the iron and steel interests are depressed because of the stoppage of railway construction. Real estate is always dull at this season. Nor do merchants and jobbers generally know what to do before February opens. Notwithstanding the favorable factors at work, it is no wonder that the stock market is a halting one. Operators seem puzzled what to do. The returns for the new year generally show a better state of things than for the corresponding period last year. Many corporations are now at peace, and there seems to be an honest effort to keep up rates. But confidence is a plant of slow growth, and conservative operators hesitate for a variety of reasons. There is some political disgust, due to a new administration coming in on the 4th of March; still there is time for at least a transient boom in the stock market while Mr. Cleveland is yet President. Money is easy; the earnings of the railroads are steadily increasing, and wheat is nearing a price at which it can be shipped abroad. Our enormous corn crop is moving freely, and, as far as indications go, the bulls ought ultimately to come out ahead. Spring is approaching, and it may bring with it war in Europe; but certainly matters look peaceful enough at present. The only ominous sign is the increase in the armies of the Czar.

Assemblyman Creamer's propositions to abrogate the restrictions upon elevated roads on Broadway, 4th avenue and 42d street, contained in the Rapid Transit Act of 1875, have naturally created a good deal of discussion; but we may have to do something of this kind unless means are speedily found to further utilize the Manhattan road by permitting it to build extra tracks for through passengers. The controversy has had one good effect in giving us an idea of what Mayor Grant has in mind. He is opposed to any elevated road on Broadway, and thinks our citizens will have no real relief until quadruple tracks are laid on solid earth. From his outgivings and other things we hear, we judge that the Central & Hudson River Railroad may carry out Commodore Vanderbilt's original plans, which was to build a steam road, running on a viaduct or underground, from 42d street to the Battery, thus utilizing the sunken tracks above 42d street.

That very excellent and practicable scheme was met by such a howl of opposition that Commodore Vanderbilt withdrew it. The Central road might now make an arrangement with the owners of the Arcade charter, by which an underground road could be built under Broadway, between the Battery and 52d street. Any new charter for a connecting road would meet all kinds of opposition, and the capitalists who undertook to build it would be beset by hoards of blackmailers, legal, legislative and financial. Property-holders would also give the promoters more or less trouble. But the Arcade charter is in existence, and is nearly out of its legal entanglements. By an arrangement with the New York Central, its owners might carry out only a part of their plan, at least for the present; that is, they might make a tunnel connection, admitting of four tracks, leaving it open to complete the Arcade idea later on.

The Central and Hudson River road could then withdraw a good many of its out-of-town trains, if not indeed all of them, from the 42d street depot, and stop them at 138th street, where it has a large acreage for terminal facilities. This would permit local trains the whole length of the island, and out-of-town passengers could be transferred to them at 138th street so as to reach any part of the city. All this could probably be done within five years' time, but to meet immediate necessities the Manhattan Company ought to be encouraged to build extra tracks for through trains on the Third and Sixth Avenue roads. This would be an approximation, at least, to rapid transit, and would increase the carrying capacity of that now overcrowded system.

Mayor Chapin advocates another bridge to Brooklyn spanning the East River, between Grand street and Broadway. The unexpected success of the first bridge, both in the way of travel and income, warrants the expectation that a second bridge would be equally popular and profitable. But we doubt if the property-holders of New York city would care to help to build this new bridge. It would be simply opening a new avenue that would check the growth of this city and help build up Brooklyn. Hence, if constructed, it would probably be an exclusively Brooklyn enterprise. It is very likely the existing City Hall Bridge added very greatly to the population and business of the regions on the other side of the East River; and that New York, which paid half the expense, has very little to show for it. Perhaps this is rather a narrow view to take of a matter of such general public utility; but property-holders do not generally care to pay out money which brings them no return.

The case, however, would be greatly altered if New York and Brooklyn became one city. A second bridge would add largely to the population and taxable value of that part of New York lying east of the bridges, and would thus help to swell the tax receipts of the amalgamated cities. Has not the time come when a union of interests should be seriously considered? The only real opposition will come from the local politicians of Brooklyn, who would fear that in the event of annexation their occupation would be gone, or at any rate their local importance and power greatly diminished. We are convinced that a union would lead to better government; to a stoppage of waste, and to a general purification of our local politics. The then imperial city could not afford to tolerate boodle Aldermen nor countenance municipal maladministration. Still, while our taxpayers might object to a bridge at Grand street and Broadway they would be quite willing to see the proposed one at Blackwell's Island constructed. This would unite the railway system of Long Island with that of the country. It must be confessed, however, it would confer no special benefit on this city, for any movement of population it might encourage would be from crowded New York to interior points on Long Island.

The Mugwump and so-called independent press are having much to say as to the wickedness of using money in carrying national contests. They are particularly severe upon candidates for a high office whose claims are based upon moneys contributed to help elect the national ticket. John Wanamaker, for instance, is picked out as being especially blameworthy. But there is a good deal of cant in all this talk. The practice of paying for partisan money contributions by appointments, especially in the diplomatic service, dates back many years in our political history. It requires a great deal of money to conduct a national canvass, and it has been an open secret for years that the rich men who contribute largely are remembered by the administration that they helped to elect. Mr. Levi P. Morton has held several honorable positions, which he has secured solely by his money contributions. He is neither an orator, writer, nor a party leader. Yet he is to-day the Vice-President-elect of the United States. It is quite time, however, that a public conscience should be created against this practice of selling high official positions for money. But it seems to have been a part of the spoils system. When we have Civil Service Reform and adopt the Australian system in our election machinery we may hope to get rid of the odium of bartering offices for plethoric pocket-books. As for John Wanamaker, he is one of the great merchants of the country and would make a very competent Postmaster-General. We want more of such men in public life.

In THE RECORD AND GUIDE of December 22d we made the following recommendation to the leading bankers of the commercial world. "Why should not a syndicate be formed of all the great bankers, those who lend the money for these enterprises, to see if the proposed new railroad is likely to be remunerative. If not, they should warn the great money markets of the world against the floating of unjustifiable enterprises of this kind." It will be noted that at the meeting of railroad presidents and bankers at Mr. Morgan's house this suggestion was brought forward by Mr. Roberts, of the Pennsylvania Central, and heartily indorsed by Mr. Morgan on behalf of the bankers. What a world of difference it would have made if this determination had been come to ten years ago. There would have been no paralleling of Lake Shore, New York Central, Chicago & Alton, nor could the Atchison have floated bonds to interfere with the Missouri Pacific. It is members of the great banking interest who are directly responsible for the demoralization among the railroads of the West and Southwest. They have sold bonds to their confiding customers, which they knew, or ought to have known, were sure sometime would default payment of interest, while they covered regions with railroads which would not have population and business enough to pay expenses for years to come. The bankers would cut a sorry figure if some publication should give their names in connection with the loans they have floated since the revival of railroad building in 1879. But all is well that ends well. If the really great bankers—those who represent vital corporate interests—would examine every proposed scheme so as to warn the investing public against those which would be injurious to existing corporations, they would effect a revolution in the public estimate of railroad securities. So far hundreds of millions have been spent in wasteful construction. It would have been better had the money been sunk in the sea.

The discussion of this railroad problem will help to dispel illusions and will educate the public on one important point. The so-called law of supply and demand of competition breaks down utterly in the actual working of railroad corporations. Competition is doubtless useful in gauging the price of perishable commodities sold in the open market, but it is always mischievous in these great, fixed natural monopolies, such as transportation lines, telegraphs, or the water and gas supplies of municipalities. The capital stock and obligations of the Western Union Telegraph Company probably would have amounted to less than $40,000,000 had it not been forced, in the nature of the case, to fight, bankrupt and finally buy out competitive lines. It is now a monopoly, but with its capital stock swollen inordinately, because of the popular hallucination that competition was desirable in sending telegraphic messages. Some of our readers may remember the great express war, when a competitor came into the field to carry packages at reasonable rates. It was ruined by older organizations, which made up their losses in the fight by raising the charges on their customers. This has been the history of the numerous attempts to form opposition gas companies. The public had finally to pay the cost of the parallel gas mains. The only protection against the extortion of the monopolies is direct government action. The city, the State and the nation must intervene to see that charges are reasonable. Competition against natural monopolies has proved a dismal failure.

We have always approved of the Interstate Commerce Act because it was the first step of the government towards putting the transportation lines under some sort of control. Nevertheless what may be called the basic idea of that enactment was to perpetuate competition among railroad lines. The war of rates in the West was undoubtedly partly the result of the undesirable ends which our legislators had in mind in enacting the Interstate Commerce Law. The prohibition of pooling was inconceivably absurd, as it is only by such methods that the roads can work in harmony. But recent occurrences will doubtless enlighten both Congress and the country as to the absurdity of expecting competition to benefit either the railroads or the community. We venture to predict that the next legislation in Congress will be so to amend the Interstate law as to permit corporations to make agreements among themselves as to rates, subject, of course, to the final authority of the nation.

The United States possess a great many good things, but good roads are not among them. This is perfectly natural in the sparsely-populated mountainous districts of the West, but in our Eastern States it is not only not natural, it is shameful. The Governors of two of our oldest settled commonwealths have felt called upon to refer to the matter in their recent messages. There must be some reason for this lack in our transportation facilities. The trouble lies in the fact that the charge of making and keeping our roads has been left to the towns along their route, and consequently the work has either been neglected or badly performed. It is often to the interest of these small places to keep the roads in poor condition, for if they were easily traveled upon traffic would be diverted from local stores to those of neighboring places. But even when the towns mean well, they do not know how. Small sums appear large to their economical eyes; and, assuming that they can afford money, they do not possess the required skill. What is needed is county management, at least of the main roads, and the employment of good engineers for the purpose. The towns, with but a small interest, smaller purse, and no skill, should not be left in charge of so vital a public necessity as the roads. The county, yes even the State uses them—and the county and State should take care of them.

Some years ago we suggested that it would be well to celebrate the end of the first century of our Constitution by a convention to revise it. The conditions under which the nation exists now are very different from what they were one hundred years ago, and some changes in our fundamental law would seem to be desirable. We addressed letters on the subject to a number of eminent statesmen, but the responses were not favorable to the proposition. Mr. Henry C. Bowen, of the Independent, has taken up the same subject, and he publishes answers from a number of respectable old gentlemen, who are very well satisfied with the Constitution as it is. Ex-President Hayes, however, ventures to propose one amendment to the document—a six years term of office for the President, who would then become ineligible for re-election. But surely there are other matters which require altering as well as some desirable additions. Our Electoral College does not fulfil the functions for which it was created. Our Supreme Court is hopelessly in arrears with its business and should be reconstituted. Our chaotic State marriage and divorce laws ought to be replaced by some Federal enactment, in order to put a stop to the anomaly of women being wives in one State and mistresses in another. Then the varying credit, debt and collection laws of the several States are a direct detriment to trade. This could be tolerated before the era of telegraphs and railroads, but it creates endless waste and confusion in modern commercial transactions. But we might indefinitely continue the list. As a matter of fact, our Constitution, which worked well enough in the early stages of our history, needs a thorough overhauling to meet the exigencies of our modern political life.

The City's Assessed Valuation for 1889.

The final assessments for the various wards of the city for 1889, as given below, show an increased valuation of $31,966,989. There has been an increase in each ward, with the exception of the Twenty-fourth, which shows a decrease of $233,021, due to the new park lands taken being subtracted. This ward would otherwise have shown an increase of about $750,000. The largest increase have been made in the Twelfth, Twenty-second and Nineteenth Wards, the smallest being made in the Fourth. The section covered by the Twelfth Ward, taking in the west side, shows an increased assessed valuation of $12,549,113, while the year before it reached $18,276,990, and the year before over $24,000,000, a decrease of about $6,000,000 in each of the two past years. This was inevitable, for the extraordinary increase of 1887 could not have been maintained, as predicted more than once in the columns of this paper. The increased valuation of 1888 over 1887 was $48,327,030, and of 1887 over 1886, $50,550,784, so that 1889 falls behind both. The total increased valuation of 1889 over 1886 is $130,844,801, of which nearly $55,000,000 was in the Twelfth Ward, $17,000,000 in the Nineteenth, and $23,000,000 in the Twenty-second. The following are the tables for the four years:

Our Prophetic Department.

CRITIC—I suppose, Sir Oracle, you have read Prof. James Bryce's "American Commonwealth." It is a work which will be reviewed very extensively by the American press, and if you have anything to say about it you should say it at once. It strikes me as a very valuable work.

SIR ORACLE—So much will be said in its favor by the American newspapers and reviews that I for one feel like criticising. I admit the ability and fairness of Mr. Bryce. His work ought to be carefully perused by every American citizen; but it has its limitations nevertheless. To begin with, it merely aims to point out the actual workings of our Constitution. It does not dwell upon the defects of that instrument. He admits that our fundamental law originally was very complete as to trifling matters, and that it left unsettled many large questions of the greatest importance. This was because the convention that framed it feared that if it gave definite directions as to the conduct of the nation in trying exigencies that opposition would be created which might lead to the rejection of the instrument. This was why the sessions were secret. Had the debates been public, parties would have taken sides on each important question as it arose and the document would have been most certainly rejected.

CRITIC—If a general convention were to sit this year to revise the Constitution of the United States its proceedings would of course be public. The press and political parties would render their verdict on each topic as it came up for consideration. Under the circumstances, would not the most ideal and perfect Constitution stand small show of adoption?

SIR O.—I am afraid you are right. Every attempt to amend our State Constitution and City Charter by conventions has of late years failed. Secret sessions would not be tolerated in this age of publicity, and this is why it seems so hopeless to me to expect to effect any changes in our fundamental law. It can only be altered to suit the times in the way pointed out in my book—by the creation of legal fictions, which will in effect alter its obsolete provisions.

CRITIC—But you said that there were other shortcomings in Professor Bryce's book?

SIR O.—There are many minor ones—such, for instance, as his indirect charge that our silver coinage laws were dictated by the owners of silver mines. Such things have been alleged by some of the craziest gold monometallic papers. But the silver question is a worldwide one, and the silver miners are so small a proportion of our population that they had no more to do with our silver policy than the man in the moon. Then Professor Bryce, in having his book revised by Americans, fell into the hands of the Mugwumps, for he predicts that in all future elections the so-called independent voters would hold the balance of power between the two parties; yet it is now a matter of history that in the recent Presidential contest in this State the Mugwumps were beaten on their candidate for President, Governor and Mayor. It was the liquor interest which gave Harrison and Hill the vote of the State of New York.

CRITIC—But surely there must be some larger matters in which Professor Bryce fell short of making an ideal work?

SIR O.—Well, it did seem to me, after having told what our institutions were, he should have ventured into some speculations as to what they were likely to be in the coming generation. What is the good of history unless it teaches us some lessons or gives us some warnings?

CRITIC—But, Sir Oracle, you have filled that gap in your book, "Glimpses of the Future," which I notice is very well spoken of by the press. Professor Bryce does not come in conflict with you in the ground you try to cover. I think the two works ought to be read together.

SIR O.—My brochure was, I must confess, carelessly and hastily written, and is imperfect in many ways; so much so that I have been surprised at the favor with which it has been received. Professor Bryce's book took seventeen years in its composition and was carefully revised by several well-known Americans. The actual time taken to compile my little book was really only a few weeks; but then most of the views had been in type several years, and were the result of much thought in many directions.

CRITIC—Is it not true that Professor Bryce is a little too optimistic? Does it not seem as if he stretched a point to please American readers?

SIR O.—I certainly thought so in reading the work. His views are too rose-colored. He takes more pains to point out the good in our institutions than he does to emphasize some evil tendencies. He carefully abstains, for instance, from saying anything about our journals, yet he is keenly alive to the force of public opinion in the United States. My guess is that he did not care to discuss the press, as he did not like its character; but was reluctant to offend it by hostile criticism when he desired above all things that his work should be well received by the newspapers. Then he ignored our common school system, although he has much to say about our universities. The fact is, we are running behind in the educational race. One in every sixteen adults in the United States cannot read or write. In Germany there are less than two per cent. of illiterates. Our common school system was once our pride, but other nations are now forging ahead of us. Then we are woefully deficient in technical education. The head men in our workshops, where artistic taste and mechanical skill are required, are nearly all foreigners. Americans are generally the common workmen. This fact ought to have been brought out; but it would have offended the amour propre of the American people, who like to be praised whether they deserve it or not. Professor Bryce was clearly determined to make his work popular on this side of the Atlantic.

CRITIC—Do you recall any other shortcoming in his statement of facts?

SIR O.—I might name several, but there is one curious oversight of a very important point. Our English author discourses on the bar and bench, but he fails to see or to state that our rulers are almost exclusively lawyers. Being a business people, it would seem natural in a country abounding in enterprising and successful railroad men, manufacturers, landowners and merchants, that we should call upon the class or classes which have shown executive faculty to be our Presidents, members of the Cabinet, Governor and the like; but no, these men are all unpopular, and we give almost every office of trust and honor to the legal fraternity. This fact has had important consequences upon the working of our institutions, and Professor Bryce's inability to appreciate it is simply amazing. But this will be enough for the present week.

Men and Things.

To watch Mrs. Potter, as Cleopatra, from the beginning of the performance to the end is to convince the most ordinary critic that she is not only a third-rate actress, but a woman who rarely rises to the height of the occasion or to a proper conception of her parts. The most provoking thing to the critic is the manner in which she snatches a smile at the audience at a time when news of serious import reaches her and when she might be supposed to be conscious of the intense concern which should express itself on her countenance at such a crisis. The critic becomes impatient, and feels like infusing into her a dose of real feeling, even if only a spark of that displayed by a Bernhardt or a Modjeska. But no, it is the same thing throughout, except towards the end, where the very force of character displayed by Mark Antony seems for the nonce to nerve her to intensity. Kyrle Bellew is not by any means an ideal Antony, though he does fairly well. With the acting of Booth and Barrett fresh in one's memory, and with reminiscences of Irving and Wilson Barrett still hovering around us, we feel the inferiority, on the whole, of a performance, the stage setting of which is altogether too good for the actors. The Octavius Caeser of Mr. Robertson is a poor performance. It lacks true dignity, and his voice is absolutely unsuited to the part. The support is most mediocre, and the frequent tittering heard throughout the audience at the ridiculous faux pas of every one of the actors, Mrs. Potter included, and Kyrle Bellew excepted, is the strongest evidence of the weakness of the whole performance. Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, who are friends of the society actress, were evidently as much amused as others in the theatre on Wednesday evening, when Mrs. Potter had a very brilliant audience before her. A word of high praise should be bestowed on Messrs. Abbey, Schoeffel & Grau, for the superb character of the scenery and costumes, which are evidently as historically correct as they could be made to be. A great deal of money has been spent on this representation, and it is doubtful if Henry Irving ever placed anything on the stage more elaborately. For this alone the play is well worth seeing.

"Rheingold" is superbly put upon the stage. The singing is of the highest order and the drama well interpreted. But one feels insensibly that this Wagnerian opera is not to be successful on our side of the Atlantic. It is too heavy, and the objection so frequently raised against the great German master's works is applicable with unusual force to this opera above all others—that there is scarcely a melody in the entire work. It is, in fact, almost a continuous vocal dialogue, redeemed only by a single melodious air by the goddess Freia, and by the wonderfully penetrating song of the Rhine nymphs, at the close, in the "Rheingold" trio. There is no question but what the music, with the scenic accessories and the generally good acting, make an impression upon the beholder—that is, if he be cultivated up to a certain point in the terpsichorean art. Otherwise nothing could be more tiresome than the almost continuous dialogue in "Rheingold." It is like talk-music, if it may be so expressed, rather than song-music. "Lohengrin" and "Tannhauser" grow upon us, but "Rheingold" surely never can. Even those highly cultivated in music express themselves this way, and give us the doubtful consolation that "we have got to have it because it is the prelude to the 'Nibelung's Ring' trilogy." Well, perhaps we may want to see it because we are curious to know what it is like, but we will hardly go to hear it more than—once.

If Manager Aronson, of the Casino, thinks he can maintain his reputation with the New York theatre-going public by permitting half a dozen verses of as many songs to be skipped out of any comic opera which he may put on his boards, as he has done with the "Yeomen of the Guard" during the closing nights, he is much mistaken. When New Yorkers go to his theatre, and he disposes to them books of the opera containing the libretto, and parts of that libretto are left out clean and clear, they are likely to get a little annoyed at what they must justly consider a breach of faith. This is enough to make the best opera unpopular with any audience, New York or otherwise. The writer saw "The Yeomen of the Guard" on the first night, and it was evident that every effort was put forth to make it a success; but he went again on Tuesday evening last, and was disappointed with the "jumping" of parts of the libretto, and with the loose manner of conducting the opera as compared with the first appearances. It is bad enough to give us an opera with the leading singers below the standard; but it is a gross breach of faith with the public, and an evidence of inferior management, to curtail the libretto and the music, thus giving the public less than they pay for.

Real Estate Exchange Matters.

MEETING OF THE NEW COMMITTEE ON LEGISLATION.

The inaugural meeting of the members of this Exchange took place on Tuesday, the President of the Exchange, Mr. E. A. Cruikshank, in the chair. The attendance was good, and considerable interest was taken by the members present in the proceedings. The committee is evidently a live one, and is, on the whole, the best that has been appointed.

The first business was the election of officers, and the following gentlemen were appointed: Chairman, Wm. Reynolds Brown, who acted very efficiently in the same capacity last session; first vice-president, Constant A. Andrews; second vice-president, William C. Orr. In the absence of Mr. Brown, Vice-Chairman Andrews, at the invitation of the president, took the chair, and Mr. Townsend Scudder was installed as secretary.

President Cruikshank, in calling the meeting to order, said:

GENTLEMEN—I am pleased to see such a representation present of the various interests connected with real estate. Your committee is one of the most important connected with the Exchange. Upon you devolves the investigation of all new legislation, so that that which is for the benefit of real estate may be approved of, and that which is prejudicial to its interests may be opposed. Already a number of new bills have been introduced at Albany, and all the care and attention that this committee can give will be needed in keeping watch over them. Without desiring to influence in any way the work of this committee, I would simply call their attention to one or two of the most important matters that will probably come before them. Firstly, New York city is not represented in the State Board of Assessors, and yet it pays nearly one-half of the total of the State taxes. I think that the battle against taxation without representation, which was the primary one in the fight for our independence as a nation, should be fought over again on behalf of our great metropolis. (Applause.) Again, there will come up before you various plans in regard to the question of rapid transit, and I hope you will give the matter your earnest and thoughtful consideration, aiding such measures as will produce the greatest good to the greatest number, while not suffering any of the rights of the weakest property-owner to be taken from him without fair and equitable compensation. (Applause.) These and other kindred questions I commit to your consideration during the coming session. I feel convinced that you will give the same patient and thoughtful care to them in the future that you have in the past, conscious that your deliberations have become a recognized channel of public opinion, and that the Exchange, through the action of this committee, is enabled to fulfil one of its most important functions—that of furnishing for the general guidance of the real estate owner the careful deliberations of a body of capable and independent gentlemen, representing all the different interests of the Exchange.

John D. Crimmins then offered the following resolutions:

Whereas, The Honorable Hugh J. Grant, as Mayor, in his message to the Honorable Common Council of this city, on January 7th, discusses with great intelligence and from a broad standpoint, questions of moment which directly reflect on the continued prosperity of this city; and

Whereas, This Committee on Legislation, numbering sixty members, of the Real Estate Exchange of this city, feels itself qualified to speak for the majority of those who pay taxes upon estimated values of one billion, three hundred and two millions of real property, and is expressly organized for the purpose of aiding such legislation as will from time to time better the conditions of our city and oppose such as is detrimental to its interests;

Therefore be it resolved, That we extend to the Hon. Hugh J. Grant the assurance of our hearty co-operation in obtaining legislation toward the end that laws will be enacted which will bring beneficial results to the people of this city in anticipating its necessities and having the power vested in the head of the city government, namely, the Mayor, for the selection of the various commissioners who will be charged with carrying out the laws which, from time to time, may be enacted for the public good, rather than having them named by the Legislature.

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution, signed by the chairman and secretary of this committee, be forwarded to the Mayor.

Considerable discussion arose on the resolutions. Mr. Lespinasse moved that the last clause be stricken out. Mr. Jayne asked for the postponement of a vote till the next meeting. Mr. M. S. Isaacs urged that it would be unwise to support the resolution giving the Mayor authority to appoint all commissioners The Exchange might be committing itself to a line of policy already arranged upon, but not yet made public. Mr. Barton thought that the first part of the resolution might look like an absolute support of the Mayor's message, while it was unsatisfactory, at least in one particular—that of the removal of the Blackwell's Island buildings to Van Cortlandt Park. This seemed to be the general feeling of the meeting.

Mr. Crimmins rose to state that the first part of the resolution gave only a general, and not an unqualified support to the Mayor's message, and he referred to the wording of the resolution to show this. Another member rose to point out, in reply to Mr. Isaacs, that the Mayor would not dare, even if he felt inclined to do so, to make purely political appointments on his own side of all the commissioners whom he might have power to appoint

The resolutions were carried and a committee of seven appointed to wait on the Mayor to present them.

At the last meeting of the Board of Directors a resolution was passed "that a committee of five be appointed to inquire and report what action it is expedient for this Exchange to take, by way of co-operation, in the establishing of a system of rapid transit for passenger traffic in New York. The committee appointed met on Thursday afternoon, but postponed action.

CALLING ON THE MAYOR.

Messrs. E. A. Cruikshank, John D. Crimmins, Geo. S. Lespinasse, M. S. Isaacs, Constant A. Andrews and W. C. Orr, members of the committee appointed to present the above resolutions to the Mayor in person, called upon Mr. Grant at the City Hall yesterday. Mr. Geo. de Forest Barton was the only member of the committee absent.

Mr. Crimmins made a few remarks and read the above resolutions.

The Mayor thanked the committee very cordially, and said: "Nothing could be more gratifying to me than to have the support and co-operation of the Real Estate Exchange. I will try to shape my conduct while in office so that your body, as well as the whole city, would be satisfied with what I have done. I may err, but you may depend on it that it will not be from intention. It is my desire to co-operate with your body and others towards the good government of the city. The Corporation Counsel is now engaged in drawing up measures which I trust, when introduced, will have the approval of your important Exchange."

Mr. Isaacs said that the directors of the Exchange were now considering a plan for improved rapid transit. The Mayor replied that he would be pleased to have their names, so that he might obtain a presentation to him of such plans as they may suggest. He was very anxious to have the fullest information on this important subject.

Mr. Crimmins introduced President Cruikshank to the Mayor. The President said a few appropriate words, and the Mayor thanked him and the committee generally for their kindness in calling on him and for the tenor of their resolutions.

The complete list of members of the Committee on Legislation up till the closing hour yesterday is as follows: Constant A. Andrews, Geo. De Forest Barton, Orville G. Bennet, Louis Berg, William Reynolds Brown, Henry J. Carr, J. J. Clancy, Clermont L. Clarkson, Clifford Coddington, Charles Coudert, John D. Crimmins, Wm Cruikshank, Henry M. Deen, Richard Deeves, Henry P. Degraaf, William H. Folsom, Fredk. P. Forster, Samuel Glover, William M. Greve, C. F. Hoffman, Jr., Frank R. Houghton, Samuel F. Jayne, Francis M. Joncks, Alex P. W. Kinman, George S. Lespinasse, William C. Lessler, Thomas F. Martha, Sinclair Myers, Garrett Nagle, Edward Oppenheimer, William C. Orr, Marx Ottinger, Henry Remsen, Andrew J. Robinson, W. M. Ryan, Clinton W. Sweet, Chas. A. Schermerhorn, Townsend Scudder, Thos. C. Smith, T. Wolfe Tone, George W. Van Siclen, Beverley Ward, Edward T. Young. The Board of Directors are ex-officio members.

Notes and Items.

Application will be made by the Board of Street Opening to the Supreme Court on February 14th, relative to acquiring title to East 172d street from Vanderbilt avenue East to 3d avenue; Boscobel avenue, from the easterly approach of the bridge over the Harlem at West 181st street to Jerome avenue; 134th street, from the Boulevard to 10th avenue; Birch street, from Wolf street to Marcher avenue; 52d street, from 11th avenue to the bulkhead line of the Hudson River, and 54th street, from 10th avenue to the Hudson River.

At the last meeting of the West Side Association Mr. Cyrus Clark was elected president. This will undoubtedly be the means of infusing new life into that organization. A committee was appointed to select a suitable house for the association's new headquarters. It was also resolved to enlarge the scope of the association and to make the social element much more influential.

The trustees of the newly-incorporated Fordham Club intend to stir up matters in that thriving suburb. They have organized mainly with the object of expediting public improvements in and around Fordham. Their names include Messrs. David N. Carvalho, J. Thomas Stearns, Jno. E. Connolly, S. M. Bixby, A. O. Salter, Chas. Keary, and others.

The Real Estate Exchange has decided to rent out, to members only, the wall spaces above the signs at present occupying the walls. Accommodation will be afforded for fifty or one hundred framed signs with brokers' and agents' names, about 31x48 in size, and it is anticipated that the revenue from this source will yield not far from 1 per cent additional income to the capital stock.

The Bar Association's Special Committee, which waited on the Mayor to urge upon him the desirability of speedily building a new Hall of Records have become alive to the importance of this matter none too soon. THE RECORD AND GUIDE last week again pointed out the danger to the city and to our property owners in having all the official instruments affecting real estate stored away in a building which we may some morning come down town to find reduced to ashes. This is one of the most important matters calling for immediate attention. The Mayor replied to the committee acknowledging the urgency of the case, and several sites were suggested for the new fireproof building.

Chief Inspector John C. Collins, of the Health Department, says that the general want of knowledge of plumbing matters displayed by many architects and builders seems to show that more experts on sanitary plumbing are required. Every day plans are being sent into his department where pipes are introduced that are absolutely unnecessary, except to increase the cost of building. It would pay builders to consult experts on their plumbing plans, thus dispensing with superfluous piping and securing economy. He is impressed with this more and more every day. To a builder who puts up scores of houses annually, the saving that might be effected would be considerable.

The Park Department should consider the advisability of having more footpath entrances to the Central Park, both on the east and west sides. It should not be necessary for any of us to have to walk nearly half a mile before obtaining access to this great breathing space. It is especially hard on children and aged and infirm people. There should be entrances, at least, at all the 100-foot streets, such, for instance, as 86th street on the east side, and at other points where needed. The parks were built to be easily accessible and should not be difficult to gain access to.

The Chamber of Commerce had a lively debate on Thursday, on the site for the new Appraisers' Stores. F. B. Thurber and James McCreery, and others equally prominent, were in favor of the present site or its vicinity, and the agent for the North German Lloyd Steamship Company said that 70 per cent. of the consigners, in the case of one steamer, were above Barclay street. The feeling was that the new stores should be near the steamship landings, as insisted upon by Mr. John Claflin, of the great dry goods firm, in a talk with a reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE recently. On a vote, 41 members favored the up-town site and only 3 the Battery site, the latter including President Orr, of the Produce Exchange, and Mr. O. B. Potter.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE'S twentieth January annual last week was the largest in size and edition ever published. It contained seventy-two pages exclusive of the illustrations of the Times and Progress Club buildings. Of these, thirty-one contained advertising and forty-one reading matter. The two largest issues published previously were those of March 24th last, on the occasion of the completion of THE RECORD AND GUIDE'S twentieth year of existence, and on January 14, 1888, when the nineteenth annual appeared. Both the latter editions contained sixty-four pages each. The sales of last Saturday's paper on the elevated road stations, bookstands and elsewhere, were phenomenal. Newsdealer McBride sold 200 copies at 71 Broadway before 10 A. M., when he sent in haste to this office for 300 more, making 500 altogether, nearly all of which he disposed of. Instances of this kind might be multiplied.

The New Municipal Building.

A bill providing for the construction of a new municipal building for the accommodation of the various city departments, including those which now pay rent to private parties, has just been introduced to the Legislature by Assemblyman Crosby of New York. When it was proposed last year by Mayor Hewitt to add two enormous wings to the City Hall, and so encroach largely upon the limits of the Park, the Legislature naturally did not approve, and passed a law prohibiting the erection of any city building in the Park. The purpose of the originators of the present bill, which is favored by Mayor Grant, is to remove the fire-engine house on Chamber street, the brown-stone building occupied by the Court of General Sessions and the present Register's office, and upon their site to erect a suitable and handsome building sufficiently large to accommodate the city departments and unattached city bureaus. The building commissioners proposed are the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, Surveyor Ransom, County Clerk Reilly and Register Slevin.

Decisions Favorable to the City.

The Court of Appeals' decision in favor of the City have not all appeared, on the face of them, entirely satisfactory. They include the following: The defeat of John H. Starin in his effort to obtain a franchise for the Staten Is'and Ferry, and the triumph of Erastus Wiman and the Baltimore & Ohio Road in this long-contested suit; the defeat of Erastus Crawford and Alfred W. Budlong in their effort to defend themselves from a suit wherein they are compelled, as sureties on an indemnity bond given in the course of a litigation between the city and Peter J. Vanderbilt, for the non-performance by the latter of a contract to build a schoolhouse at Lexington avenue and 105th street, to pay a judgment of $14,750; the defeat of the Dry Dock, East Broadway & Battery Railroad Company, which will be compelled to pay some $30,000 for arrears on licenses of $50 for each car run since 1870, in addition to five per cent. of the receipts, which have been regularly paid; the defeat of Charles S. Clarke, who sought to recover $4,000 paid by him for property bought at a sale for unpaid taxes, on the ground that the sale was void; and the defeat of Annie B. Phelps who paid $1,400 on an old assessment for paving Broadway, and who sought to recover on technical grounds. The city defended on the ground that, the assessment being void on its face, the payment by the plaintiff was voluntary, and therefore no recovery could be had. A representative of THE RECORD AND GUIDE called upon Corporation Counsel Beekman yesterday, who said: "The Phelps decision may be an appearent injustice, but it is in reality a fair one. I have not yet received the decision in the matter, but on referring to the complaint I find that the only defect urged is that the proposals for letting out the work of paving were not advertised at the time, as required by the City Charter. They were let privately, owing to a three-fourths majority vote of the Common Council, a proceeding allowed by law. Mrs. Phelps' property gained the benefit of the paving, with the improvement in the value of such property which resulted from the paving, and although the assessment was made void, she in justice should be compelled to pay for an improvement from which her property received an increased value. I hope that THE RECORD AND GUIDE will state the fact that in all these cases the improvements have been made, and property owners should pay for the benefits they have received." It is believed that the "assessment" lawyers will be stopped by this decision in future from making a business of inducing property-owners to recover monies paid in similar cases.

Real Estate Department.

The announcements of the numerous forthcoming auction sales have evidently had their influence, as they generally have, in making sales quiet in the brokers' offices, where comparatively few transactions have been carried through this week. The healthy tone indicated during the past three or four weeks continues in a lesser or greater degree, but many sales are at a "stand off" temporarily. The auction market was fairly active this week, as will be seen from the detailed account below, and during the next few weeks several important sales of improved and unimproved realty will take place at the Exchange.

Business for the week opened on Monday with the offering under foreclosure orders of eleven parcels. Ten pieces were sold for a total of $198,175 and the eleventh, No. 1 Livingston place, was adjourned without date. Eight of the buildings sold are unfinished, two are on Hudson street, near Watts street and six on 9th avenue, 97th and 98th streets. Parties in interest were the purchasers.

Tuesday was the busiest day of the week at the Exchange. The attendance was large and the sales held were both numerous and important. The Phelps estate sale of three parcels on Church, Duane and Warren streets, attracted considerable attention. A total of $124,850 was realized. No. 194 Church street was knocked down to E. J. N. Phelps at $93,000. Several parcels in the 23rd Ward were among the properties offered, and some of them failed to attract bidders. The Hyatt Farm sale by Fairchild & Yoran, comprising 260 lots at Woodlawn, was well attended, and the lots eagerly bid for. The lots which are on 1st and 2d streets, 2d, 3d and 4th avenues, brought from $60 to $802 apiece.

Only two sales were bulletined for Wednesday and both were foreclosures. But one sale was held, viz: the dwelling No. 243 West 73d street, size 20x102.2. Jacob Lawson, the plaintiff, became the purchaser at $27,750. The sale of the block between 8th avenue, McCombs Dam road, 153d and 154th streets, was postponed indefinitely.

There was not much done at the Salesroom on Thursday, and the attendance was small owing to the storm. The offerings embraced five plots on the upper west side; a dwelling on East 57th street, and a flat on West 129th street. There were not many bidders for the lots, and at least a portion of them were bid in; the sale of the 57th street dwelling, No. 16 East, was adjourned sine die, and the flat No. 138 West 129th street was sold for $30,000 to Wm. C. Boyd, plaintiff. There is about $35,000 due on this flat, which changed hands last February at $40,000. According to the official filings of the week, a similar flat, in the same row, No. 142, has been sold for $45,000 in part exchange for other property.

There was only one sale held at the Exchange yesterday, viz., three lots on the southeast corner of 9th avenue and 76th street. They were offered under foreclosure, and were sold for $57,535 to Thos. C. Higgins, Myer Finn and W. C. Lesster. The same plot changed hands in June, 1887, at $52,000.

On Monday, January 21st, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the tenements and stores at No. 91 Henry street, and the tenement at No. 181 Mott street. On Tuesday, the 22d inst., they will sell two lots on 98th and 99th streets, one on each street, near 9th avenue, and on Wednesday, the 23d, two well-rented tenements at Nos. 232 and 234 East 75th street.

On Tuesday next, the 22d inst., A. H. Muller & Son will conduct a most important sale of vacant lots, as previously announced. These comprise thirty choice and valuable lots between Riverside Drive, the Grand Boulevard, 107th and 108th streets. This will be an unusual opportunity of obtaining some fine lots on and near one of the choicest residence thoroughfares in the city. The property is to be sold by order of the executor of the late C. E. Curtis, and it is announced that the sale will be absolute.

On Tuesday, the 22d inst., Richard V. Harnett & Co. will offer no less than sixty valuable building lots, by order of the executor of the late Abraham R. Van Nest. This will be a very important sale, and will include sites on the southwest corner of the Grand Boulevard and 66th street; the east side of 10th avenue, between 123d and 124th streets, 10th avenue, 100th and 101st streets, West 142d and West 143d streets. Sixty per cent. will be allowed to remain at 4½ per cent., or seventy-five per cent. at 5 per cent. This sale will be of great interest to builders and others.

On Thursday, the 24th inst., Richard V. Harnett & Co., will sell two lots on 66th street, near Central Park West; a large gore on Morningside avenue, between 115th and 116th streets; the valuable property at No. 1565 3d avenue, on the southeast corner of 88th street; 100 and 102 Oliver srreet, near Water, and the private house at No. 138 East 19th street. The last is a trustee's sale.

On the same day Mr. Harnett will sell the choice properties of the Sidney Smith estate, under Supreme Court orders, the particulars of which will be seen in our advertising columns.

On Thursday, the 24th inst., A. H. Muller & Son will conduct the sale of the following valuable properties: Nos. 14 and 16 White street, Nos. 445 to 453 West street, Nos. 151 to 163 Bank street, Nos. 208 to 218 Wooster street, Nos. 1650 and 1652 Broadway, Nos. 782 and 784 7th avenue, and No. 181 Wooster street. These important properties will be sold under Supreme Court in partition.

On Tuesday, January 29th, Scott and Myers will sell the following properties: The valuable stores and apartments at Nos. 180, 182 and 184 6th avenue, between 12th and 13th streets; the residences at Nos. 263 West 34th; 46 East 58th, and 248 East 72d streets; the Association Hall, on 129th street and 4th avenue, containing a spacious hall with stores beneath; an interest in dock property at Mystic Bridge, Conn., and a half interest in two lots in the thriving city of St. Paul, Minnesota.

The Lynch estate sale will take place Thursday, February 14th.

Two-thirds of the big building loan associations have joined in a scheme to circulate a weekly or bi-monthly co-operative bulletin, which is intended to stimulate greatly the sale of small properties in the cities and in the suburbs by giving each association member a review of the good offers that real estate projectors or agents make from time to time. Out Among the Builders.

The Mechanics' National Bank has decided to erect a handsome office building, to cost about $250,000, at Nos. 31 and 33 Wall street, and have engaged Chas. W. Clinton to draw the plans. On the 1st of May next the bank will move to temporary quarters which they have rented in the basement of Nos. 37 and 39 Wall street, and the old building will be torn down, and the new one, which will be of about the same height as the Bank of America building, by the same architect, will be commenced at once. We understand that plans by Mr. Clinton will be used in the construction of the large office building, which Matthew Wilkes will erect on the site of the present buildings Nos. 15, 17, 19 and 21 Wall street, and Nos. 2, 4 and 6 Broad street, as noted in our issue of Dec. 22d, 1888.

Alfred Zucker & Co. are preparing plans for a ten-story fire-proof warehouse, with cellar and sub-cellar, which Charles Broadway Rouss will erect on the lots Nos. 549 and 551 Broadway, recently purchased by him of the estate of Hiram Sibley. These lots, 25x200 each, extend through to Mercer street and brought together $247,000. The new building, which will probably also occupy the lot No. 553 Broadway, will be fitted with electric freight and passenger elevators, steam heat and all improvements, and will cost about $500,000.

The building committee of the Madison Square Garden Company will meet on the first of February next, when it is expected some final action will be taken in regard to the immense amphitheatre which it is their intention to erect on the site of the present Garden and which will cost about a million and a-half of dollars. As long ago stated in this column, plans by McKim, Mead & White have been accepted, but the committee has not yet agreed upon the modification of their designs, sixteen of which are being considered. These plans provide for a building to be used for much the same purposes as the present Garden, with a lofty dome over the centre and a corner tower 300 feet in height. The reports that the plan had been abandoned or that a large hotel was to be erected on the site are positively denied by the officers of the company.

Alex. I. Finkle has plans for some extensive alterations to be made in the interior of the Stuyvesant Club House on the corner of 106th street and 3d avenue. Two floors will be partitioned off into reading, club and billiard rooms, and will be handsomely decorated and furnished.

Richard Ranftt will erect a four-story store with lofts on the north side of East 19th street, 181.11 feet east of 3d avenue, on a lot measuring 25x92 feet. The building will be heated by steam and will have a rich front of stone, brick and terra cotta in the Renaissance style. The cost has not yet been estimated. Plans have been drawn by De Lemos & Cordes.

A. B. Ogden & Co. have plans on the boards for a five-story brick and stone front flat, 45x90, to be built by W. H. Johnston, on the north side of 71st street, 200 feet east of 3d avenue. It will have two apartments per floor, each having eight rooms and bath, steam heat and other improvements, and will cost about $50,000.

Ed. Wenz has plans under way for a five-story flat, 25 and 25.6x81.8, to be built on the northeast corner of Madison avenue and 106th street by Hugh Brady. It will be of brick and stone, and will cost about $20,000.

More than $150,000 has been subscribed towards the cost of erecting a memorial church to the Rev. Adoniram Judson, the Baptist missionary, on the southwest corner of Washington square and Thompson street, 105 x100 feet. Dr. Edward Judson has charge of the arrangements.

Patrick H. McManus will improve four lots on the southeast corner of 5th avenue and 135th street.

Bulkeley & Bannister are preparing plans for a four-story brick and brown stone stable, 20x40, with a two-story extension 20x40, which James A. Striker will build at No. 344 West 52d street, at a cost of $7,000. The first and second floor will be used for stable, carriage and harness rooms, and the third and fourth will be fitted in apartments for the use of the coachmen.

The lowest bids received by the Armory Board for the erection of the 22d Regiment Armory on the block bounded by the Boulevard, 9th aveuue, 67th and 68th streets, were as follows:

Geo. Damen is arranging plans for alterations to the factory of Cranford & Valentine, on the corner of St. Marks avenue and Brighton Beach Railroad.

Out of Town.

HOBOKEN, N. J.—Henry S. Ihnen has plans for a three-story dwelling, 25x45, with two-story extension 17x30, which William Utz will build for himself on Hudson street. The interior is to be finished in hard wood and the entrance is to be an ornamental one with quartered oak and stained glass door. Also for an adjoining building, 22x40, with extension 14x18, for the same owner and of the same material. Total cost, $35,000. Mr. Ihnen is also drawing sketches for a new club house, which the Hoboken Quartet Club will build at a probable cost of $50,000.

PRINCETON, N. J.—A five-story dormitory building, 40x170, will be erected for Princeton College on the college grounds, from plans by A. Page Brown. The new building is to be constructed of Indiana sandstone and yellow brick, and will cost $60,000. It will contain 120 sleeping rooms and a number of larger reading rooms for the use of the students.

MONTCLAIR, N. J.—Plans by Charles D. Marvin will be used in the construction of a yellow pine and improved stable, 35x28, with carriage and harness room, which Joseph Van Vleck will erect at a cost of $2,500. The stable will be a handsome one and will be connected with the house by electricity.

Special Notices.

There is not a reader of this paper who should not peruse the advertisement of the Pasteur Filter Company, which appears elsewhere. It includes recommendations from the eminent bacteriologist Sternberg, and some of the most important hotels in the country; but last, though not least, of M. Pasteur, of Paris, in whose laboratory it was invented, and who wished the filter to bear his name. Such a water-purifier is invaluable to every household.

The office and show-rooms of Robert C. Fisher & Co., marble and granite workers, is at Nos. 97 to 103 East Houston street. The firm began business in 1830, and for many years has been recognized by our principal architects and builders as one of the leading concerns in the city whose work is always of the most artistic character in carefully selected material. They are large importers of foreign marbles and granites and make a specialty of artistic chimney pieces, monuments, church altars, tablets, staircases, wainscoting and monumental work of every description. The firm cheerfully furnish estimates and drawings upon application.

The "Model Novelty" range manufactured by the well-known firm, Wilkinson & Banta, of No. 250 Water street, deserves the special attention of our architects and builders, as it possesses several important and useful features for economizing space and fuel not to be found in other ranges; features of great value in flats and small dwellings where they may be used to heat the whole house. In Brooklyn these ranges have met with exceptional favor and are in use in many dwellings, among others in Van Tine and Lincoln's model flats. In New York city the demand for the range is growing. The horizontal boiler which forms a part of the "Model Novelty" is very popular, and those who wish for a "practical" recommendation of these ranges should call upon J. Kyle & Sons, who have used them in their new Lyceum Flats, Nos. 33, 35 and 37 Grove street. Wilkinson & Banta invite builders to inspect their stock and send for circulars.

S. Klaber & Co., composed of Simon, James and Maurice Klaber, have their showrooms at No. 47 West 42d street and large works at No. 58 West 43d street and Carlstadt, N. J. They are specially prepared to supply the demand which has arisen of late days for rich marbles, Mexican onyx and other semi-precious stones for the enrichment of interior and exterior decoration. The work of the firm is of the highest order of excellence, and their facilities are unequalled for fulfilling contracts expeditiously and economically.

Alfred E. Marling, formerly with Horace S. Ely, has opened an office at 150 Broadway corner of Liberty street, for the transaction of a general real estate business. Mr. Marling will look after sales as well as manage estates and negotiate loans. He has a large amount to loan on bond and mortgage and will arrange loans for builders.

Contractors' Notes.

The Department of Public Parks will receive bids until 11 o'clock Wednesday, January 23d, for constructing a sewer and branches with appurtenances, from Railroad avenue, east, near 153d street, to and across the New York and Harlem Railroad property and land belonging to Chauncey M. Depew and Cornelius Vanderbilt, to 161st street, and in 161st street to Sherman avenue; on the north side of the Southern Boulevard, from the summit east of Willis avenue to Brook avenue, and for regulating, grading, setting curbstones and flagging the sidewalks of Rider avenue, from 135th to 144th street, and Gerard avenue, from 138th street to 150th street.

The Department of Public Works will receive bids until noon, Thursday, January 24th, for alterations and improvements to sewer in 53d street, at 10th avenue; for sewer in Lexington avenue, between 74th and 75th streets; for regulating and paving with granite-block pavement the roadway of 60th street from 9th to 10th avenue, 87th street from Avenue A to Avenue B, 118th street from 5th to Lenox avenue, and 157th street from 10th to 11th avenue.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—The market for Common Hards keeps in very good shape considering the conditions prevailing. Supplies continue to arrive to a considerable extent from the Hudson River yards, besides the offering from New Jersey and the first small installment from Long Island, but the demand has thus far proven pretty nearly equal to the offering, and no amount has remained afloat of sufficient magnitude to cause any trouble or to adversely affect values since the slight reaction noted last week. Indeed, if anything, the tone is now somewhat steadier again, and just as soon as the freeze comes there is a chance for improvement. About $7@7.25 per M is considered an average top range, though exceptionally $12½@25 per M more can be made. The distribution takes stock directly into consumption in pretty much every instance, the open weather permitting work far beyond the time ordinarily calculated upon, and some of the larger dealers are also drawing, to a certain extent, upon accumulations made for the winter, the latter affording a pretty good margin in many cases. The steady shipment from sources of supply kept up until this period must of course have considerable effect in reducing stocks, and this will tell in the spring, when consumers commence to grow anxious for more liberal and quicker deliveries. Sending in Long Island stock at this juncture is somewhat premature, and if the supply is allowed to increase the effect of values will be disappointing to sellers. Pales have not been very anxiously sought after, yet most of the supply, including some arrivals from the Sound, secured a market without difficulty, and at $3.00 per M. there was a considerable amount of steadiness shown in value.

LATH.—For this season of the year there has been a pretty full supply, and it evidently bothered receivers somewhat as there was no natural compensating demand, especially on local account. However, by watching for custom from neighboring cities and keeping the line of cost upon an easy basis the bulk of the offering is at the present writing disposed of, and so far as can be learned there is very little afloat, some say none at all from Provinces. On the latest mentioned price was the figure at which holders were willing to sell.

LIME.—Within the past week or two several cargoes have come to hand from the Eastward, but the demand proved ready for them, and as a consequence the market retained a reasonably healthy form and the "same old quotations" are reported with a possibility that just now they arepretty closely adhered to. Accounts from the point of supply, it is said, indicate continued moderate shipments, or just about enough for the market.

LUMBER.—A considerable degree of uncertanty yet prevails among the majority of the Trade. Signs of improving business on the distributive outlet are not wanting and there is every reason to expect a further increase in due course of time. Yet buyers are by no means anxious regarding the future and talk closely to the hand-to-mouth policy of operations. This comes, too, from the best class of customers who if they desired could obtain liberal accommodation, while those who really ask for the latter privilege as a basis for fuller investment are not considered the ones to treat with. As it stands, however, the form of business is good enough and hopes of an increase in volume are nursed carefully. Some agents representing the Western interest are said to have returned and commenced feeling around somewhat, but do not show their hands very clearly, nor is it believed they have found much encouragement as yet from buyers.

Eastern Spruce as a standard grade of stock and at a period of naturally light supplies may be considered as having a fair demand; indeed, receivers in some cases claim to know of quite a little custom rather anxiously awaiting an opportunity to get hold of something desirable in the way of large sizes. This is a result not unlooked for in view of the small quantity of full sticks laid by and the natural indisposition to sell to any but regular trade on the part of fortunate holders. Of medium and narrow stuff the local accummulation is said to remain fairly full as yet, but Brooklyn stocks are becoming a little broken through recent sales though actual delivery will not be made until a somewhat later period. Late mail advices from Maine brought much complaint about an absence of snow and a scant log supply is accordingly talked of. We quote at $14.00@$15.00 per M for 6 to 9 inch and $15.50@16.25 for 10 to 12 inch, with specials at $16.50@18.00 per M.

Piling receives occasional attention, some of it merely in the shape of inquiry as to prospects for values and supply, and the results are a confirmation of the previous steady undertone. There is a fairish accumulation here, but the principal holders are indisposed to make any effort to place it.

Hemlock meets with a "winter demand," and commands steady rates whenever anything of desirable quality secures a contract. Buyers naturally confine orders mainly to active wants, such as it does not appear possible to postpone; but as sellers are not just now competing for trade, they are enabled to successfully assume a somewhat independent position and refuse commissions. As a rule, accumulations are not very abundant. We quote Joist at $11.50@12.00 per M; Boards at $12.00@12.50 per M; Timber $12.00 per M for 20-foot and under; $12.50 for 22 to 24 foot; $13.00 for 26 to 28-foot; $14.00 for 30 to 32-foot; $15.00 for 34 to 36-foot, and $16.00 for 38 to 40-foot.

White Pine is somewhat irregularly reported, a portion of the trade claiming a continued dull and unsatisfactory market, and others looking upon the position with much more cheerful views. The latter development is in part on box boards, but also on shippers, and one or two dealers in foreign orders seem to have extremely hopeful expectations of what may be done between now and spring. Some of the representatives of interior operators are commencing to "look over" the market again, but making no special effort to realize at the moment. We quote $17.50@19.00 for West India shipping boards; $20@29 for South American do.; $14.50@16.00 for box boards; $16.50@17.50 for extra do.

Yellow Pine retains good support, and while the demand is a trifle irregular buyers quite generally discover that they have to call more directly for supplies than heretofore, instead of having anxious tenders made them from the selling side. There is not much difficulty experienced in finding quantity and assortment wanted within a reasonable period of delivery, but disappointment follows most efforts to obtain modification on value. Advices fromthe South indicate that the combination of manufacturers is working very well, and is likely to strengthen if anything. We quote Randoms, $18.50@21.00 per M; Specials, $19.00@21.00 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $21.00@22.50 do.; Dry, do. do., $23.00@25.00 do.; Sidings, $13.00@14.50 do.; Cargoes, f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $13.00@15.00 for rough and $18.00@20.00 for dressed; Cargoes, f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $12.00@13.50 for rough and $19.00@21.00 for dressed

Carolina Pine of standard quality and assortment always appears to find some little attention and this keeps a strain of cheerfulness in the market. There is, however, nothing particularly new in the situation at the moment, except that some of the trade seem to think that it would probably be as well if no addition to the productive capacity was made until chances for the new season are more fully determined.

Hardwood, it is thought, may do a little better in the matter of sales before long, so far as the more attractive goods are concerned, with poplar spoken of as particularly promising. Oak, too, both plain and quarter-sawed, is calculated upon to sell with greater freedom, provided the best of quality is tendered for negotiation. There is no great stir at the moment, however, and beyond generally steady claims for value sellers are somewhat modest in their reports. Latest advices from England are of more encouraging character, and there is a natural hope of an improving demand. We quote by car, lot as follows: Walnut $60@110 per M; White ash, $36@42 do.; oak, $36@42 do.; quarter sawed clear, $46@50 do; maple, $25@31 do.; chestnut, $30@37 do.; cherry $67@92 do.; white wood, $25@35 do.; elm, $20@23 do.; hickory, $60@80 do.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

Work in the Woods.—After a long period of unfavorable hauling weather, and with skidding finished and nothing to keep their men employed upon, many lumbermen in Wisconsin and the Lake Superior region have been gladdened the past week by the first emphatic snow storm of the season. Some localities have got enough snow to make them reasonably safe, and the loggers in other parts will get along fairly if there is no thaw until more snow comes.

The press dispatches on Thursday reported from 6 to 8 inches of fall in various parts of Wisconsin, and 2 feet or over in some cases. The Wisconsin railways reported at Milwaukee that the heavest fall was below Chippewa Falls, where there was a belt 100 miles wide covered with from 1 to 2 feet, and that the depth varied from 2 inches in the latitude of Fon du Lac and Ashland to 1 foot and over in the latitude of Green Bay and Antigo. Three feet of snow was reported at Ripon. 10 inches at Sparta, 8 inches on a level at Wausau and 2 feet in places, just what the loggers wanted; great depth at Baraboo, some drifts being 7 or 8 feet deep, over 2 feet on a level at Neenah, with the prospect of continued good sledding in the woods; 17 inches at Oshkosh, and at least 6 inches throughout the Wisconsin River district. One report stated that the eastern one-third of the Chippewa district had 6 inches, but that the western and middle part had less. Six inches was reported at Eau Claire. The first great storm of the season was reported at Marquette, Mich.

From the Lumberman's review of the Chicago yard trade as follows:

The trade entered the year 1888 with stock on hand to the amount of 608,416,940 feet of lumber, and 483,123,710 shingles, as compared to 623,494,981 feet of lumber and 428,049,700 shingles on January 1, 1887. The slight comparative falling off in the total of lumber in stock was considered favorable to the firmness of values. The increase in volume of shingles was considerable, but the season previous had been one of overproduction, and this had caused the manufacturers to restrict the output in the year following, a determination that was carried out, resulting in a firmer market and an advance on prices.

* * * * * * * * *

A glance backward over the year's business impresses the reviewer with the fact that it has been remarkably prosperous considering the unfavorable circumstances that beleaguered it. Though receipts were never so large since 1882, the yards entered the winter with less than 60,000,000 feet more on hand than at the close of 1887. This surplus was undoubtedly greatly reduced during December. The adversities of trade during the year were serious. First came the "Q" railroad strike, which paralyzed the spring movement, an exceedingly serious obstruction to trade at a period when the dealers depend on clearing their yards of a load that they had carried through the winter at heavy expense and great risk. This was in a measure offset by the demand from the Mississippi River, and the trade in Iowa and Nebraska, that resulted from the forced shutting down of river mills. Yet there was a serious lack of the shipping demand and the car factory and railroad requirement. But the city and suburban demand helped to make up for these deficiencies. During the year there was an obvious growth in the local trade, and a general looking about for it on the part of a majority of the yards. In the fall the Presidential canvass and election checked trade, and distribution during October and November was disappointing. Yet the trade for the entire year was more profitable than that of 1887. Prices were maintained with remarkable steadiness and uniformity, and generally lumber was sold at a profit, though margins were considered narrow. The dealers were saved by an absence of serious fluctuations.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman as follows:

Nearly all the local lumber dealers have completed their inventories, and it is possible therefore to get at the amount of lumber in pile in Minneapolis. This has been estimated at all the way from 250,000,000 to 300,000,000 feet, but proves to be considerably below the most conservative figure. It will be remembered that it was shown at the end of the sawing season that the mills had cut 337,663,301 feet of lumber, 105,736,150 shingles and 74,016,479 lath. This was an increase of 116,830,327 feet of lumber, 37,171,000 shingles and 31,079,868 lath over the product of the previous year, and on its face promised a considerable increase in the local stocks of lumber, assuming that there had been about the same amount of trade throughout the season, as was the case a year ago.

* * * * * * * *

The figures all indicate that the local demand has been about what it was during the preceding year. As near as this can be arrived at was as follows:

Stock of lumber on hand Dec. 1, 1887	173,398,577
Received by rail during the year	59,294,000
Manufactured by the local mills	337,663,301
Total resources	570,285,878
Shipped during the year	246,498,000
Stock on hand at end of year	241,986,900
Total accounted for	488,484,900	488,484,900
Local consumption		91,800,978

This is hardly a fair indication of what the local consumption of white pine has been, since fully one-half of all the lumber shipped into Minneapolis is hardwood, and comparatively little hardwood lumber is shipped out. It is probable that the local consumption of white pine lumber reached fully 125,000,000 feet, which is less than has been consumed in some previous years.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot has been quoted dull, and the market generally in a stupid sort of condition. Everything remains practically under control of the syndicate, who fix values between themselves and customers to suit convenience, but it is not believed that any great variations take place, and on outside lots figures are quoted at about 17@17¼c. for Lake. Manufactured Copper remains dull, and the prospects are considered more promising and stock generally held about steady. We quote as follows: Sheets, not above 30x72 in.. 16 oz. and over, 25c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 26c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 28c.; do, 10 to 12 oz, 28c.; do, 8 to 10 oz, 30c.; do, under 8 oz, 28@33c. Sheets longer than 72 inches add 1c. for 12@14 oz, 2c. for 10@12 oz, and 3c. for 8@10 oz. Sheets, not above 36x96 in., 16 oz and over, 25c.; do, 16 to 32 oz, 25c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 27c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 29c.; do, 10 to 12 oz, 33c.; do, 8 to 10 oz, 36c. Sheets longer than 90 inches add 1c. for under 16 oz; and 2c. for 8 to 10 oz. Sheets, not above 48x96, 32 to 64 oz, 23@25c.; do, 16 to 32 oz, 27@30c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 32c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 37c. Sheets 60x93 and over, 25@26c.; for 33 to 64 oz. and over, 30@31c.; for 16 to 32 oz. —@—. All bath tub sheets, per lb., 16 oz, 28c.; 4 oz, 30c.; 12 oz, 32c.; and 10 oz, 35c. Bolt copper, ⅝ inch diameter and over, 25c. Circles, 60 diameter and less, 3c. above price of sheets of same thickness; circles, 60 to 96 do do, 5c. do; circles, 96 do and over, 6c. do. Segment and pattern sheets, 3c. above price of sheets required to cut them from. Cold or hard rolled copper, 1c. per lb. above the foregoing prices. Copper bottom, 26@31c. per lb. IRON—Scotch Pig has been selling slowly and in a somewhat unsatisfactory manner. Importers have not become very greatly demoralized as yet, but seem to lack determination, and now and then there is evidence of a tendency to urge sales that has a weakening influence upon values. We quote at $19.00@20.50 per ton, according to brand, delivery, etc. American Pig is meeting with some attention, and the leading companies have a fair number of orders booked for future delivery, understoed in some cases at an open price or at a rate to be fixed when delivery is made. The tone does not appear to be remarkably strong, though no acknowledgement of any actual change in value is made. We quote at $18.00@18.50 per ton for No. 1 X foundry; $17.00@17.50 for No. 2 X do. do.; and $15.50@16.50 for Gray Forge. Old material has no speculative demand from any quarter, and with the consumptive outlet light the market, as a whole, shows a pretty dull sort of tone. The accumulation of supplies is somewhat uncertain, but there is no evidence of any great excess at the moment. We quote at about $23.00 @24.00 for old rails; $20.50@21.00 for No. 1 wrought scrap; $22.00@22.50 for crop ends, and $17.50@18.50 for car wheels. Steel rails do not meet with an altogether satisfactory demand. There is said to be considerable waiting custom with nothing but securities to offer in payment, but from consumers who operate on a more satisfactory basis of settlement orders are not forthcoming just now. This creates some uneasiness, and it is intimated that here and there signs of weakness may be noted. As yet, however, no change in value is known, and the quotation remains at $28.00 per ton for standard sections at Eastern mills. Manufactured Iron remains pretty dull and the market without features calling for special attention at the present time. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 2.00@2.10c. from store, and refined at 2.20@2.50c.; Rods, round and square, 2.30@2.40c.; Bands, 2.40@2.50c.; Norway Nail Rods, 4@5c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 2.75@2.80c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. LEAD—Domestic Pig has been somewhat irregular in price on a rather higher range but the demand did not stimulate and the general aspect of the market was dull. Offerings are fair. We quote at 3.85@3.95c., as to quality. The manufactures of lead are quoted: Bar, 5½c.; pipe, 6½c.; sheet, 7¼c., less the usual discount to the trade; and tin-lined pipe, 15c.; block tin pipe, 45c., on same terms. TIN—Pig sells slowly, the demand developing for only small lots as the wants of consumers may compel investment, and on the whole the tone is easy, though stocks are well enough under control to prevent pressure. We quote at about 21¾@21⅞c. for round lots and 21⅞@22c. for jobbing parcels. Tin plates have found rather more demand and especially roofing stock, said to have been taken to fill out assortments of jobbers who distributed freely just after the late storm. Prices as a rule are about steady on the current range of valuation. We quote prices as follows: 1, C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment, Melyn grades, $5.40@5.45, each additional X add $1.50; I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment, Allaway grade, $4.75 @4.80, each additional X add $1; Charcoal terne, M. F. grade, 14x20, $6.65@6.67½; M. F. grade, 20x28, $13.30@13.40; Worcester, 14x20, $4.60@4.62½; Worcester, 20x28, $9.20@9.25; Deane grade, 14x20, $4.22½@4.25; Dean grade, 20x28, $8.45@8.50; Allaway grade, 14x20, $4.05@4.07½; Allaway grade, 20x28, $8.10@8.20; I. C. Coke, B. V. grade, $4.20@4.22½; J. B. grade, 14x20, $4.25@4.30; I. C. Bessemer steel, squares, $4.65 basis; I. C. Siemens steel, squares, $4.70 basis. Spelter not active, but the supply moderate and prices firm at full former rates. We quote at 4.90@5¼c., according to quality.

NAILS.—Business slill light and uncertain, and not much of a market at the moment. Operators have obtained no specially guiding feature as to the early future, but rather inclined to believe that hopes of some improvement in trade will not be disappointed and a basis secured for establishing a more remunerative plane of valuation. As yet, however, prices are unchanged, and we continue to quote at $1.80@1.90 for car lots and $1.95@2.00 from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Some of the trade even as early as this think they see evidence of a better tone with the incoming of the new year, but probably strain their imagination somewhat. There is, however, no doubt of a reasonably hopeful feeling extant as applied to most leading and standard grades of stock, and extremely doubtful if any contracts could be made for future delivery upon an easier basis of cost than now ruling. All present supplies are under good control. Linseed Oil offered fairly, but carefully and generally held steadily at 56@57c. for Western and 58@59c. for City. Spirits Turpentine meets with moderate attention, and while no actual shading on cost is admitted, the market rules weak at 46½@47c. per gallon, according to quantity, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—A few moderate orders have been filled, but, as a whole, it was a quiet market and without really new features during the interval since our last. We quote Pitch at $1.25@1.50 per bbl.; Tar at $2.00@2.20, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

VOL. XLIII. JANUARY 26, 1889. No. 1,089

Trade reports indicate a partial revival in business. Our real estate market has been active and buoyant for the season. But stocks have been dull and depressed, although there were many factors that were encouraging to the bulls. Money is easy; railroad rates in the West and Southwest are well maintained; the winter has been an open one, and the returns from the various transportation lines show gratifying increases. Then there is an unusually good demand for bonds of all kinds; yet, notwithstanding these favorable indications, the stock market proper shows no signs of animation. Prices have fallen off, and operations are confined to dealings not participated in by the outside public. The difficulty is due to the overbuilding of railroads during the past three years. Usually periods of excessive construction are followed by a panic, but as the work was done very largely with European money the strain has been less felt. Still, time is required to digest the mass of new stocks put upon the market, and hence the hesitancy of investors and speculative dealers. There is no real difficulty except among the newly-built Western and Southwestern lines, but these affect sympathetically the price of stocks of all the roads east of the Mississippi. It is too soon to say that we will not have an advancing market. February may see a rally in prices, but it will probably be followed by a broken spring, due to the change in the administration and the uncertainty as to the future financial policy of the country.

In attempting to solve the rapid transit problem Mayor Grant will meet with two formidable obstacles. If he favors the extension of the sunken tracks of the Hudson River Road to the Battery he will be charged with playing into the hands and adding to the profits of a great railroad monopoly. Then, should he countenance additional tracks and extension of the elevated system, some noisy demagogues will raise the cry that he is acting as a tool of Jay Gould's. Yet these two measures are the best that can be done to give us rapid transit within five years' time. So he will have to pretend to favor a new company, which will be met by a world of obstacles and could not furnish necessary relief for ten years at least. Our free press, with its liberty of unlicensed speech, gives characterless fault-finders a chance, by their clamor, to put a stop to needed public improvements. Mayor Hewitt's scheme of rapid transit was an admirable one and quite practicable, but it involved partnership with the Central Road, which set the paper politicians howling. We could have had rapid transit from 42d street to the Battery ten years ago, but even the courage of old Commodore Vanderbilt failed him in face of the terrific clamor of the press and the stump. Will it be always thus?

It is a notable fact that in January real estate auction sales have been held at which the bidding was spirited and prices high. We could never see any sense in crowding all the real estate business of this great city into the spring and fall months. There is always a market for securities, grain, provision, cotton, petroleum and other products every secular day in the year. Real estate is just as valuable in January as in April or October, and ought to be as salable. During the past week there have been some excellent auction sales and the prices obtained were quite as good as if the property was sold in the height of the season. A lull during the summer months might be tolerated, and then transactions would naturally decrease in activity during the holidays; but it would be to the interest of dealers to keep business as good during the winter as during the spring and fall months.

Travelers on our railroads will not, we think, suffer by the control the Pullman Company has secured over the sleeping-car and saloon-car service of the country. They will be better served in every way, and doubtless in time fares will be reduced as they ought to be. If this is not done voluntarily power will undoubtedly be given the Interstate Commerce Commission to make sleeping-car charges more reasonable. The Wagner system will probably join forces with the Pullman Company, and then there will be only one vast monopoly for the nation to deal with. It will be found that better terms for the public can be made in dealing with one great corporation than in trusting to an aimless and unorganized competition of several small palace-car companies.

Of course criminals, paupers, insane and diseased persons should not be permitted to land upon our shores. In trying to put a stop to this undesirable emigration the Ford bill is all right; but when it is proposed to keep out of the country would-be emigrants who hold objectionable opinions on political and social subjects that is quite a different matter. No ablebodied, healthy man or woman should be excluded. We want population, and the foreigners give us about our only supply of domestic servants. What if some of these people do hold extreme and even dangerous views? That kind of nonsense does not last long in this country. At any rate there is no way of being sure what a man believes, and, in nine cases out of ten, good government will convert the most radical Communist and make him a good citizen. By all means let us welcome all who can work and add to the wealth of the community. We might restrict the right to vote to those who can read and write, but this should apply to natives as well as foreigners.

The Mugwump and Democratic press have been assailing the Senate Tariff Bill so vehemently that the average Republican resents any criticism upon the proposed enactment. Yet, as an entirely independent journal, we doubt the wisdom of many of the provisions in the Senate measure. The replacement of the impost on sugar by a bounty seems to us an experiment that cannot be commended. It opens the door for fraud, and increases, unnecessarily, the force of internal revenue officers. A subvention in aid of steamship lines is quite another matter, for though a bounty it involves no complication, as it is a mere addition to the pay for postal service. Trade follows the flag, and hence all commercial nations but our own have given liberally to their steamship lines to encourage commerce. Our tariff and other enactments, while helping manufacturers, are a direct discouragement to our foreign trade, and it is not fair to help one group of industries at the expense of another. It is to be regretted that the system of bounties was introduced into any legislation intended to affect our agricultural products.

Then the building interests as well as other vital industries will object to the large increase of duties on sheet tin. If it becomes a law it will increase the cost of every house built hereafter. We do not produce any tin in this country, and yet raise over $5,000,000 by a customs duty which we now propose to double. This is not only a needless tax upon the builder, but upon the immense canning interests. It unnecessarily enhances the price of all the foods put up for use by the bulk of our population. It is a tax upon kitchen utensils, makes the myriads of milk cans dearer, and it is a tax upon the laborers' dinner pails and the food of the infants. There are other features of the Senate bill quite as objectionable as the bounty principle and the extra impost on tin.

Party majorities can often be more unwise than individuals. The Democrats during the recent session have furnished many instances of this truth, and now here are the Republicans about to imitate their bad example. The Republican majorities were, after all, in the agricultural States; the manufacturing States did not increase their majorities. Indeed, two of them—Connecticut and New Jersey—cast their electoral vote for Mr. Cleveland. What the Republicans should do would be largely to extend the free list, so as to give manufacturers cheap, raw material; and then they should have liberalized the existing tariff so as to remove all cause of complaint, and thus keep up a protective tariff which would not be questioned for fifteen or twenty years to come. It was the raising of the duties of the tariffs of 1883, under a pretence of reducing them, which gave life to the agitation which culminated in the Mills bill. An addition to tariff burdens will only keep alive the agitation, making it the pivotal question in the next Presidential election.

Kings, it is said, should so rule their people as to prepare for the time when kings would not be needed. So tariffs should be so manipulated as to render them unnecessary when the industries they protected were fully established. The principal nations of the civilized world have combined within the last thirty to fifty years to take away the monopoly of manufacturing from Great Britain. The people of France, Germany, the United States and the British Pacific colonies are not particularly in love with impost duties as such, but their people think it desirable, for obvious reasons, that the shop and the factory should be near their farms—that it is not wise to send raw products three to five thousand miles to be worked up into manufactured goods and sold to them at a price fixed by a rival nation. This is the feeling which has sustained tariff legislation. It is not from any desire to help a hampered class in any community.

Object-Lessons in Municipal Socialism.

It is a curious fact that while the tendency in this country is to what may be called municipal Cæsarism, the local governments of Great Britain manifest a growth of socialistic ideas and practices. Home Rule through Boards of Aldermen and Supervisors has been discredited by the experience of American cities; and so power and accompanying responsibility are being lodged more and more in Mayors and heads of departments. In the recent local election in London held under a reform law enacted by Parliament, it will be noticed that extraordinary powers are lodged in the new Municipal Council. Instead of this legislative body being restricted in its functions, they have been greatly enlarged; and sweeping reforms will probably be made by the Liberal majority elected. They are pledged to take the care of the municipal police away from the Home Office; to establish municipal bath and washing and lodging-houses; to prohibit "sweating" contracts; to pay trades-union rates of wages in connection with official contracts, and to give the municipality the control of the food, gas and water supplies, together with the possession of the city railways. All this assumption of authority will seem startling to our students of local politics; but, after all, London in this is only following the example set by other leading cities. Mr. Albert Shaw, the editor of a Minneapolis paper, now in England studying its institutions, throws a flood of light on this matter in an interview with a reporter of the Pall Mall Gazette.

Mr. Shaw takes for his text the city of Glasgow, where what may be called Home-Rule Socialism has made its boldest experiments. Twenty years ago that city had probably the largest and the poorest tenement population of any city of its size in the world. It was the rule for the workingmen's families to occupy one or at most two rooms. Then came into existence a local government armed with extraordinary powers. The aim of the civic organization since then has been to care for the working classes, and to put a stop to the exploitation of the revenues of the city by rich corporations. The rookeries where the poor people, as Mr. Shaw tersely expressed it, "pigged," were torn down and decent dwellings provided. A free hospital was established on the pavilion principle, covering a space of thirty-two acres, where all contagious diseases were treated under conditions more favorable than could be found even in the richest private families. Cheap baths were established; also public laundries, where a poor woman, with a basket of clothes, in one hour, and the necessary soap, could have the garments of a family washed, dried and ironed for twopence. Municipal recreation halls and lodging houses were also furnished, where for the merest trifle in expense a person could get a clean bed and facilities for cooking their own food.

So much for what may be called the philanthropic side of municipal socialism. But to get the funds to do all this work the local authorities themselves supplied the water, gas, markets and other agencies which in American cities is given for nothing to corporations of private citizens. Recent statistics, for instance, show that one-half the gas stocks in the United States are water, and that fully 10 per cent. is paid by the citizens on this fictitious stock. The majority of American cities, however, furnish their own water supply, and it is the best and cheapest service we have.

It is in the tramway system, however, that Glasgow teaches other municipalities a very valuable lesson. The people of New York have given away literally tens of millions of dollars to the Jake Sharps, Henry Harts, Dan Conovers, and their associated street car stockholders. In Glasgow the city builds and owns the tracks and rents them out to the companies which run the cars. Incredible as it may seem, the fare is only a penny (two cents of our money) and during workingmen's hours only one cent. Yet with these low fares the company has declared dividends of 10 per cent. Mr. Shaw, in summing up the superiority of the British to the American system of local government, gives us the following advice:

> First, simplify your administration; secondly, trust your people; thirdly, give your municipality plenty to do so as to bring the best men to the work; fourthly, keep all the monopolies of service in the hands of the municipality—regard the supply of gas and water, and the letting of the use of the streets as very promising sources of revenue; and lastly, use the authority and influence of the municipality in order to secure for the poorest advantages in the shape of cheap trains, healthy and clean lodging, baths, wash-houses, hospitals, reading-rooms, etc., to such an extent, at least, as in a given case private enterprise shows itself inadequate to do what the welfare of the community requires should be done. I say this with no ardent bias towards socialism, and with due regard for the financial aspects of these questions.

Of course Glasgow is not the only city which has assumed these extraordinary powers. Much in the same direction has been done by Manchester, Birmingham and other large centres of population; and now London, the greatest city in the world, is about to try its hand at municipal socialism, and that, too, under forms of local legislation ordained by a Tory administration. This is a wide departure from the political economy taught a half a century ago in England. Laissez-faire was the popular doctrine of the middle classes. The contention was that private enterprise could perform public work better than any government. Herbert Spencer teaches that doctrine to the present day. But Gladstone's Irish land laws and the assumption of these new municipal powers represent the kind of political economy believed in by the working classes.

The question for us is, is there any likelihood of the Americans imitating the English in these experiments? It is hard to tell. Our press would vigorously oppose anything of the kind. The gas, ferry and horse-car companies can do what they please with our local legislatures, both in the city and the State; but it is nevertheless monstrous that private individuals should in this country be permitted to enrich themselves by using our streets and ferries and by supplying gas and other necessaries, without returning any corresponding equivalent to our city treasury.

Our Prophetic Department.

Traveler—Notwithstanding the shortage in the wheat crop of Western Europe and the loss of over a hundred millions bushels in our own crop of 1888, compared with what should be an average yearly yield, you see it has been found impossible to keep up the price of that cereal. This, of course, is due to the fact that the telegraph and the extension of steamship lines has rendered available all the wheat lands of the world. Hence the consuming markets are kept abundantly supplied even when our crop is deficient.

Sir Oracle—What you say is true enough. Wheat can be grown in any of the temperate zones of the world. Indeed there are very good crops of it in regions near the frigid zone. It is claimed, for instance, that in Manitoba, a country where the summer season is very short, that it could, in an emergency, supply bread for the best part of the human race. But corn is confined to a much more limited area. The wheat matures before midsummer, corn not before autumn and is in danger of frost except in such portions of the earth's surface as are tolerably sure of late falls. This is the advantage the United States has over Europe and Asia. It is the fact that winter doesn't really begin with us until the holidays that gives us our magnificent corn crop and which will, in time, make America the favored home of the vine. Anyone who has traveled in Europe will have been struck with the devices adopted to keep the vines warm during the cold autumn season. The taste for dry wines is, I think, due to the impossibility of making a cheap sweet wine from the half-ripened grapes grown in the Old World.

T.—I call attention to this matter of wheat in order to point out that the extension of steam navigation will, in time, render available other products of the earth, and will enrich distant regions at the expense of the countries that have had a monopoly of profitable trade manufacturing. Col. North, who gave the great ball in London recently, has become enormously rich through utilizing certain chemicals found in distant regions. Now it will be well for us to consider the probable effect for the next quarter of a century of steam navigation upon different quarters of the globe.

Sir O.—You have hit upon a theme that is fruitful in suggestion. I venture to predict that the favored regions in the immediate future will be the newly-settled portion of the earth's surface and some of the regions that were sites of ancient empires. The Argentine Republic tells us something of the future of South America. The country I speak of is the most enterprising on earth. It will soon pass through a great commercial crisis, but it will show the marvellous possibilities in the way of grain and cattle raising possessed by a portion of the continent south of us. Then there are great possibilities in Africa.

T.—I think I understand your allusion to the sites of ancient empires. You mean, of course, that Asia Minor and the country south of the Black and Caspian Seas, extending to India and embracing the country that contained teeming millions in the days of Ninevah and Babylon, will again become populous and prosperous under the oversight of the Muscovites. This supposed original birthplace of the human race on the uplands of Central Asia will grow cotton and grain, and manufactories will be established for furnishing the supplies that can now only be procured in Great Britain.

Sir O.—Yes, that was what I had in mind. The railroads built by the Russians for military purposes will serve the arts of peace more than of war. The canals and irrigating works that enriched Babylon and Ninevah will be resuscitated by the Russian government, and a mighty commerce will grow up throughout a region that for centuries has been kept in an uncultivated state by hordes of plundering Tartars. The land has lain fallow for so many generations that it can easily be made as productive as it was in the ancient world. The same remark is as true of Palestine and Syria. All that is needed is some better government than that of the Turk and that land will again flow with milk and honey, for the long rest has made the soil as fertile as it was when the Hebrews occupied it.

T.—It would follow from this reasoning that the present civilized portion of the earth's surface would suffer from this predominance of the new and the old regions in the matter of production. The soil of Europe, for instance, has been outworked, and it cannot compete with the new lands of the United States or South America and the South Pacific colonies of Great Britain. Will not the very civilization of Europe be affected in time by its inability to supply its own food?

SIR O.—I do not think there will be any step backwards taken in any civilized nation. But I can see very clearly that the monopoly of the arts and sciences, as well as of manufacturing industry, will be lost to us in Europe. Our country is getting richer every decade. The same is true of Australia and New Zealand. South America will grow in wealth and population, and then the degenerated Orient, which, in the dim past,

Showered on her kings barbaric
Pearls and gold—

will again become opulent, and will contain great centres of population with the attending arts and industries.

T.—Do not forget Siberia. We have been taught to look upon it as a mixture of wilderness and desert. But the Russian government is slowly but surely developing its possibilities. It is uniting its waterways, deepening the streams, and has a railway under process of construction to the Pacific Ocean. Siberia will become, in the not distant future, a great grain growing region, and will develop productive industries now little thought of. For one, I doubt if either India or China will relatively do as well in the future as will Central Asia and Siberia. The soil of China and of India has been worked for too many generations to be as susceptible of improvement as either Siberia or the sites of the ancient empires.

SIR O.—The moral of all this to us is that steam navigation is rendering available so much new land that the United States will not be as attractive to emigrants in the future as in the past. Our new land is so far from the coast that it will be about as cheap for an emigrant family to go to Australia or New Zealand. This will be more especially the case after the Panama Canal is completed. What will particularly attract working men is the fact that in the British colonies eight hours for labor is both the law and the custom. So, perhaps, we are troubling ourselves unnecessarily in restricting emigration from Europe.

Benner's Prophecy Criticised.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

That your readers may not venture too much on Mr. Benner's prophecies, I beg to offer a few criticisms of his statements which may help us to estimate his prophetic value.

He states that the boom that commenced in 1879 was the result of specie payments.

I think it came, first, from accumulated savings of five years of economy—viz., 1873 to 1879—capped by the phenomenal crops of that year and helped by the expansion of the currency of several hundred million of gold made possible by the previous facts. Now, we have not had a long continued period of economy and accumulation; our currency is full of gold, paper and silver, and cannot be further expanded; we cannot expect our labor to be in great demand for building or railroad improvements, and so greatly has our floating capital been turned into fixed, and our consumption exceeded our productions, that we have for many months been leaning on Europe for, it is generally estimated, about five millions per week (they taking our promises instead of gold), and still we cannot keep up the pace of the last few years.

Now, if Europe would continue to take stocks and bonds freely, we might expect a reasonable amount of prosperity this season, but it is past time for Europe to break down, and the signs increase that before the year is out the withdrawing of gold (greatly augmented by our 70 cents silver dollar) required by Europe to sustain its collapsing speculations will put us in the position of 1857, if not 1837. Yours, etc., M. B. C.

REMARKS—Our correspondent writes very sensibly. The boom which began in 1879 was due to several causes besides those pointed out in the above. The passage of the silver coinage act in 1878 was one. Our own large crops and the deficient harvest of Europe was another. The adding of all the gold and silver of the country to the paper money extant was third. Then a reaction from very low prices to high ones was in order. It is to the credit of Mr. Benner that he predicted the higher prices of iron, stocks and grain as far back as 1875, and indicated the time when the boom would be over. Hence, while not indorsing his views, we think they are worth the attention of all who buy or sell iron, stocks, grain, provisions and general merchandise.

Our correspondent does not see how our currency can be further expanded; but France has three times the gold, silver and paper per capita than we have. We could coin four millions of silver dollars per month instead of two millions, and still have fewer silver dollars per capita than there are to-day in France. The presumption is that under President Harrison's administration Western ideas, in finance, will prevail, and silver expansion is a favorite remedy for depressed times in that section. While our Treasury Department has been run on a gold monometallic basis for the last eleven years there has always been a large silver majority in both Senate and House.

It is not unlikely that by the next Presidential campaign all the State elections will be held simultaneously with the Congressional elections in November. It cannot be denied that the practice of holding State contests just before the Presidential election has had many evil consequences. It has debauched State politics because of the money spent by the two parties to carry the local contest in order to affect the national vote. But we ought to have some means of knowing the drift of public opinion. In Great Britain not a month passes without a struggle for a seat in the House of Commons, and these give valuable indications of the attitude of the voters towards the existing Cabinet. If we had similar Congressional contests, under the safeguards of the English law against bribery, some intimations would be furnished of the way our voters regarded the course of the administration or the action of Congress. But it is wholly mischievous when State or municipal elections are relied upon to indicate the drift of political feeling.

The Need of a Great Hotel.

There is probably not a city in the world that can overtop New York in regard to business buildings. Land in this city, particularly in its lower portion, is so valuable that builders have been obliged to erect imposing structures in order to economize ground space; and hence any New Yorker can point with pride to the immense office-buildings that tower towards the heavens, giving solidity and grandeur to that part of the city in which they are situated. But if New York can be proud of her office-buildings, such is not the case with the other structures that of necessity afford an opportunity for architectural display. For one thing, we lack what would seem to be essential to a city like our own—a really great hotel. This fact is peculiar, because the floating population of the Metropolis is larger, both absolutely and relatively, than that of any other city in the country. So far as business is concentrated, it is the nation's commercial centre, and large dealers of every kind from all over the Union are obliged to pay us occasional, if not frequent visits. It is a pity they cannot find here first-class accommodations. The Windsor, Fifth Avenue and Hoffman House give their guests good enough rooms, board and service; but accommodations equally as satisfactory can be found in any large city. There is nothing distinctive, nothing Metropolitan about them; they do not form, as they should, one of the sights of New York. Architecturally they are not much more than barns, and the most ignorant countryman, however much he may be delighted with the Hoffman House bar, could not stand very much in awe of the Hoffman House building. The Murray Hill is rather a pleasanter place to look at than the others, but there is nothing really grand or imposing about it. It is a shame to think that a little town in Florida, with its $3,000,000 hotel, has, in this respect, the advantage of the Metropolis—an advantage which, alas! is shared by other places all over the country. We have nothing equal, in table and room capacity at any rate, to the Palace Hotel in San Francisco, the Grand Union in Saratoga, or the Fort William Henry at Lake George.

It is fully time this defect was remedied. We want a hotel which will be conspicuous in its superiority to any in the country, not only in size and number of rooms, but in architectural beauty, decorative finish, and the quality of accommodations afforded. Such a structure would advertise both itself and New York. Travelers would stop there, if for nothing more than the name of the thing, and the enterprise would most probably pay a handsome return on the capital invested. There is, however, one serious but certainly not insuperable objection to the project. A hotel of this description would cost so large a sum that it is not likely that any single capitalist could be found who would risk all the necessary money. Hence the structure would have to be built by a company. Now, if the company decided to run the hotel by means of a steward, it is hardly probable the enterprise would be a pecuniary success, for a steward has no particular motive for economy. If, however, it could be leased to some experienced hotel man, or if in any other way the financial interests of the manager could be identified with the financial interests of the company, its ultimate success would be pretty well assured.

As to the question of the best situation for this mammoth hotel, that is more or less an arbitrary matter. Certain things are plain. It should be placed in some central and easily accessible spot. It should not be too far away from the places of amusement or the lines of communication.

Large Stores and Brooklyn Opposition.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

Have you considered what the effect will be on New York retail store property of the loss of trade consequent upon the erection of good retail stores in Brooklyn. Then the increasing tendency of trade to centre in great houses deserves some attention. Further, I am informed that buyers from Newark and Jersey City find it cheaper and more satisfactory to take the annex boat right to Brooklyn, where they can find good stores convenient to the Ferry. HOUSE OWNER.

Our correspondent must have noticed that in all the capitals of the world great retail stores are supplanting smaller concerns, as witness the Bon Marché and Louvre in Paris, Whiteley's and the Co-operative Stores in London, Wanamaker's in Philadelphia, Jordan, Marsh & Co. in Boston, and Ridley's, Macy's, Stern's, Altman's, Park & Tilford's and others in New York. These great retail establishments are often mere clearing houses for manufacturers. Toward the end of the season a wholesale concern finds a stock of glassware, crockery, boots and shoes, cotton or woolen goods, or other wares unsold on their hands to jobbers and retailers. They make use of such establishments as we have mentioned above to get rid of their surplus stocks, and they put their price down a trifle under the wholesale rates. They thus get good prices themselves in cash, instead of credit, and help to drive out of the field the jobbers and retail dealers to whom they sold goods early in the season. Everything conspires to help these great retail stores. The nimble sixpence is theirs, but the smaller concerns must depend on the slow shilling to live at all. Hence the massing of business in a few monstrous establishments in all our large cities. We do not see how this tendency is to be checked, although it is clear that a multiplicity of small stores would be more profitable to owners of realty than the concentration of the retail business in a few vast establishments.

Brooklyn is now so large a place that it is beginning to have some excellent cheap stores; but we do not think New York need fear its rivalry. Possibly it is true, as our correspondent says, that buyers from Jersey may take the annex boats and do as well, if not better, in the City of Churches as in the metropolis; but, after all, Brooklyn must depend mainly on the growth of its local traffic, while New York will have that of all the surrounding country as well as its own, with the exception perhaps of the Brooklyn local trade. Notwithstanding the cheapness and excellence of the Brooklyn retail stores, we judge the people of that city spend more money in New York than they do at home.

Then there is the vast trade outside of New York, which will always be attracted to this centre. The floating population of the city cannot be far from 100,000 daily, and this represents men and women who are bent on securing New York goods to be used and worn in every State in the Union. Undoubtedly the New York stores of the future will be larger than those of the past; but they need not fear the rivalry of Brooklyn, which, however, has retail establishments of its own that do it no discredit.

Something About Our Colored Population.

DO THEY MAKE GOOD TENANTS?

With the view of ascertaining some particulars in relation to the colored population of New York city, a representative of THE RECORD AND GUIDE called on several real estate agents and others in the 19th precinct for information as to what kind of citizens and tenants they make. Capt. Reilly's precinct has a very large colored population, and during the past eight or nine years they have gradually crept into certain streets under his superveillance. This is especially the case in the district bounded by 24th and 33d streets, 6th and 7th avenues, where from 60 to 70 per cent. of the houses are occupied by them, as nearly as could be ascertained without counting the buildings. They are also getting in on, and west of, 7th avenue along the same line.

Capt. Reilly, of the 19th precinct, where the colored population is very large, said: "They have taken up every street from 24th to 33d, between 6th and 7th avenues, with the exception of 28th and 29th streets. The north side of 24th street, and both sides of 25th, 26th and 27th streets, between these avenues, are literally crowded with them. There are very few in 33d street. They are also getting in west of 7th avenue on the same line. We have 10,440 voters in our precinct, but we have no figures showing how many of these are colored. I should think that at least one-third of them are. They are less trouble to us than the white population, and as a whole are a quiet and orderly class."

A patrolman who has done duty in the precinct for some years was seen. He said: "The colored people don't give me any trouble. The worst thing we ever had round here was the little riot before the last Presidential election, when a colored Republican procession came across a white Democratic one. They generally behave all right, and I don't often have a case of arrest. They know that this precinct has got to be kept quiet and that it will be the worse for them if they don't behave. So we don't have trouble with them, except now and again."

Another patrolman on duty said: "They occupy the houses, tenements and stores in the streets up this way, between 6th and 7th avenues, something like this: 24th street, north side, about one-third colored, south side very few; 25th, 26th and 27th streets, north and south sides, full of them, at least three-quarters colored; 28th and 29th streets, pretty well filled with them, especially towards 7th avenue; very few near 6th avenue. On 30th street there are not as many as further south; on 31st street, there are a number towards 7th avenue; on 32d street, they are pretty well crowded on both sides, three-quarters at least; and on 33d street, south side, there are a number, but on the north side only a few, owing to the factories and stables on that street and to the influence of residents and owners of property on the south side of 34th street. They also occupy houses on the west side of 7th avenue, between 26th and 30th streets, and a few on the east side of the avenue. They inhabit a number of houses between 7th and 8th avenues on the same line, especially on 29th and 30th streets, and near 7th avenue.

The proprietor of a restaurant on 6th avenue, when asked by the reporter how he accounted for the change in the character of the district during the last ten years or more, said: "Formerly this neighborhood was largely given over to houses of ill-fame and gambling, and there are still many left. When these were 'pulled,' or when the occupants were dispossessed, the landlords and agents found that they could not get any respectable white people to rent them, owing to their reputation. They found, however, that there were many colored people who would be glad to occupy them, as the prejudice was so strong against taking them in as tenants in respectable neighborhoods that they were forced to live in the most wretched places. Some of the agents induced the owners to try the experiment. They found it a paying one, and others followed suit. Even large buildings have been put up for them specially in recent years. So that gradually the bad tenants gave way to colored people, who now occupy the greater part of the streets between 6th and 7th avenues, 24th and 33d streets, and are getting in between 7th and 8th avenues." This is evidently the secret of the gradual encroachment of the negroes upon that district.

The "Florida" flats, at No. 127 West 32d street, better known in the vicinity as "The Tombs," were visited. The reporter had the card of a well-known agent to Janitor Williams, a sergeant in the late war. The janitor's rooms are a specimen of the apartments occupied by the respectable colored tenants. Two canaries chirruped in a cage, and flower pots containing geraniums and other plants were spread in front of the windows. Pictures of Frederick Douglass, Mrs. Cleveland and Grant hung from the walls, as well as a certificate showing the janitor's membership in the Sons of New York, numbering some 560, all of whom were born in the city, county and State of New York. The sergeant is a past senior vice-commander of Farrell Stevens Post No. 255, New York, and is an honest type of the colored janitor. He said: "I took charge of these flats nearly eight years ago. I found a rough lot of tenants in possession, and always used to carry my revolver. I started in to number the apartments, put lights in the court-yard, improved the plumbing, and put out the old tenants one by one till I got decent people in. Out of 180 people in the building not one is sick at this moment. Some very respectable colored people are tenants. We have seven apartments on each floor, and we use seven or eight of the ground-floor apartments for storage. Each suite contains three rooms, which rent from $6 to $8 a month." The "Florida" is undoubtedly a veritable "Tombs." It is situated in the rear of the lot, and is entered from an alley way. Its only safety, from a sanitary point of view, is in the ventilation which it obtains from the court-yard running through the centre and the open space running nearly all round. The western wall is practically barricaded from the light, with the exception of small windows sufficient to give air to the sleeping rooms. The front rooms in the courts are almost pitch dark. Yet, with all this, the class of people whom the visitor met, when the janitor showed him through, were very respectable—in dress, demeanor, and in the appearance of their homes. One of the tenants—a washerwoman—had her apartments as neat and clean as one could wish with such humble surroundings. The usual pictures of Grant, Lincoln and Harrison were on the wall, with the inevitable Stars and Stripes. The colored people are evidently grateful and patriotic, in their own way. The front building at No. 127 is occupied as a sort of hotel and eating house for colored people, and is called the "Enterprise Restaurant." No. 129 has four families per floor, and is tenanted by quite respectable families. Sergeant Williams spoke well of Captain Reilly. "The Captain," he said, "is the man we want. He gave me all the aid I asked for in keeping our doors and alley ways free from loafers, and the streets can now be walked through at any time of the day and night safely." The "Tombs" is mainly occupied by women who do washing and general housework, waiters, kalsominers, etc., including a livery-stable man, and one or two porters—"all hardworking people," as the janitor said.

The janitor of Nos. 126 to 130 West 27th street was seen. These numbers are covered with three six-story tenements, almost new—two double and one single. They were built especially for colored people, and are said to be the largest and best of their class in the city. "We have apartments for thirty-six families," said the janitor, "but several of them are occupied by two or three families each. Every apartment has seven rooms, with hot and cold water, and the rents are from $20 to $30 and over. Most of our tenants are waiters and hotelmen, and they take good care of the apartments."

S. F. Jayne & Co. said: "We have found our colored tenants good rent payers. Our experience has extended over many years, though it has been very limited, and we can say that, taking the same grades of tenements and contrasting the class of foreigners who inhabit them, the colored people compare very well with the white people. The latter do not seem to feel the responsibility of paying rent so greatly, whereas the negroes seem to be impressed with a sense of their importance as citizens and voters, and this very feeling, curious as it may seem, is an incentive which induces them to pay their rents. This pride is not shared by the lowest class of Italians, Poles, Hungarians and others. The colored people may be infinitely more respectable and cleanly—that is, the better class of them—but the white people will not live in the same house with them."

"I have nearly always found the negro reliable," said Mr. Cudner, of this firm. "I had opportunities, as an officer in the war, for observing him, and I have found him intelligent, earnest and obedient, and fully equal to the lower class of white people, to say the least."

W. J. Roome: "I consider our colored tenants very good. There is a prejudice amongst buyers of property against purchasing tenements and dwellings occupied by them, but there is no reason why this should be so. Such properties should be as salable as any others. Indeed, if anything, they should sell better, for a higher net return on the investment can be made out of houses occupied by negroes. The people who buy this class of houses are speculators. They try to get in at cheap figures, and then hold on until some one comes along to give them a profit. The property is the most difficult of any to dispose of, and any one who buys it must make up his mind to the possibility of having to keep it as an investment for many years. The class of buildings inhabited by them is of that kind that few others care to occupy. They are not accepted as tenants in many locations, and until recently were compelled to use all the old, ramshackle frame houses that no one else would occupy at any fair rental. But some real estate owners, who have property in certain districts, have come to the conclusion that they are much more desirable than the roughest class of white people, or disreputable characters, and they have consequently allowed their houses to be filled with colored tenants."

"Would it pay builders to put up tenements for colored people in certain locations?" asked the writer.

"It would, undoubtedly," was the answer. "Better rents could be had, and a good class of tenants could be selected from among the applicants, who would be very numerous. But the builders who do so must be able to 'hold on' in case they don't sell the houses for a year or two. The speculative builder with little money should not attempt it; but the rich builder, or the investor with a small capital desirous of getting the best return on his money, would find it profitable."

"Can you give me a specific instance within your own experience as an agent where you have obtained better rents from colored people than from white people?"

"Yes," was the reply. "I will give you an illustration in the case of a front and rear tenement, of which I now have charge. Our tenants were previously of a low European type. I don't care to mention their nationality particularly. They gave us a good deal of trouble, and we lost many rents. So we resolved to turn them out and put in colored tenants. Here are the rents before and after." And Mr. Roome turned to his books and showed the reporter the figures, which are as follows:

RENTS UNDER WHITE TENANTS.		Per Month
Front—	1st floor (store, &c)...	$21
	2d "	13
	3d "	13
	4th " (and rear)....	21
Rear—	2d "	12

	4th " (see front)....	—
Rear House—1st "		8
	2d "	11

Total.....		$127

RENTS UNDER COLORED TENANTS.		Per Month
Front—	1st floor (store, &c)...	$21
	2d "	14

	4th "	13
Rear House—1st "		10
	2d "	12
	3d "	11
	4th "	10
Total.....		$144

This shows an increased rental of $17 per month, or $204 per year, in favor of the colored tenants, an advance of nearly 13½ per cent. on the gross rental.

"But don't they do more damage to property, thus bringing your running expenses higher," asked the writer.

"On the contrary," was the reply, "there is less moving out; they are satisfied with less and are not exacting in little matters, because they are not so independent, owing to the difficulty they experience in getting decent living quarters."

"How about their moral status?"

"Well," said Mr. Roome, "that is generally very low. A great many of the women are disreputable, and many of the men gamble. But I have found them remarkably devoted to their homes. I have one tenant who has a wife, but no children. He is a coachman and his spouse a cook. But they hire a room where they can live and have their general belongings. I offered the cook a position in my house; but she refused, as she wanted to live out in her own home. I want to add that although our colored tenants pay their rents and there is less loss of rent from them than from the lowest grade of white tenants, they are not prompt in their payments. If they know they have to pay on the First, they sometimes leave it till the Fifteenth or longer, until a strong admonition brings them to the mark. We have applications all the time from first-class colored tenants who do not find enough respectable quarters open to them and who are anxious to get four or five rooms and pay $20 and $25 per month for the accommodation."

Jacob Appell: "We have had considerable experience with colored people and find that they are the worst kind we have to deal with. They lie and prevaricate and sometimes cheat us out of the rent. They are continually moving from one place to another, and are not particularly careful of the property they inhabit. We had a case where a door was once missing, and upon inquiry found that it had been taken off the hinges and used for firewood. They will come home at night and if they have no key they will burst the door open, thus involving the expense of a new lock or other repairs."

"Are these not the lowest class of negroes you are speaking about?" asked the writer.

"Well, perhaps so," was the answer. "There are some respectable colored people who make better tenants, but our experience has been largely with the ordinary negro and it has not been satisfactory, to say the least of it."

A well-known firm of agents and brokers who did not wish to be quoted, said: "The better class of our colored tenants are good pay. It is impossible to tell whether they pay better than white people, as a whole. Every tenement we have varies in the character of its occupants. One family on the fifth floor will pay as regularly as clock-work year in and year out, while another on the second floor, in slightly better circumstances, will keep us always a month in arrear, or pay the second or third week after the rent is due. It is the same with people on the line of 5th avenue. Rich and poor, colored and white, are alike in this respect. I think the negro is more likely to squirm out of a contract, by subterfuge or otherwise, than the white man. On the other hand, we have colored tenants who have hired a whole house from us for years and who are as honorable as any tenants we have." "I don't think," said the junior member of the firm, "that they take quite as good care of property as white people. Their moral status is low. Sometimes a man comes in with a woman and applies for apartments for himself and his wife, referring to the lady at his side as though this relationship existed between them. When they get in the apartments we find they are only living together as man and wife. A great many of them make applications for apartments when they cannot pay as high rents as they propose to undertake. Still we are, on the whole, satisfied with our colored tenants, because we only select the better class of them and therefore rarely 'get left.' We have rented a number of houses to them varying at from $800 to $1,000 per annum. The men who rent entire houses are generally caterers, first-class waiters, etc. They occupy part of the house themselves and rent out the balance. These tenants always keep the houses nice and clean. I consider the low negro on a par with the low Italian. They will treat their apartments in about the same way. Both are very unclean in their habits, and we often have trouble with the plumbing work and walls on this account."

"If you had an offer of $1,000 for a house from a white tenant, and $1,200 from a colored tenant, both being equally good and reliable, which would you prefer?"

"The white one," was the reply. "Directly you get a colored tenant in a house it condemns it. If you should try to sell it you will find it hard to do so. If you should try to rent it again to white people, you would fail to do so, as the prejudice is so strong against moving into a house vacated by negroes. 'Once a colored house always a colored house,' is the general maxim."

"One of the agents I called on," said the reporter, "said they moved about a great deal, and were not permanent tenants. What is your experience?"

"He evidently speaks of the lowest class of negroes. They find it so hard to get houses to live in that they are only too glad to stay if they can scrape the rent together. I refer to the more respectable negro—those who go to church, whose children go to day and Sunday-schools, and who try to keep respectable. Let us take a glance at our books. "Here is a case," said the junior member, "where we have been renting out a tenement for nine years to colored families, and it is one of the most remarkable in our experience of the tenacity of the negro for a permanent home. Out of the seven original tenants we have still four; the others have been in several years, and there have only been half a dozen changes of tenure in the whole nine years. This is one of the instances showing that negroes will 'stick' if they are treated as human beings, and if they are carefully selected by the agent. On this house we have saved 15 to 20 per cent. on our gross rental since we changed our white tenants for colored ones. We find that tenement property inhabited by the latter pays about 10 per cent. net on a cash basis of value."

J. Romaine Brown & Co.: "We would rather have negro tenants in our poorest class of tenements than the lower grades of foreign white people. We find the former cleaner than the latter, and they do not destroy the property so much. We also get higher prices. We have a tenement on 19th street where we get $10 for two rooms which we could not get more than $7.50 for from white tenants previously. We have three tenements entirely filled with negroes, and could rent more if we had them. The poor people have to hunt round for decent quarters, and they often try to rent houses which we are compelled to refuse them, owing to the prejudice owners have against renting to them. We have a four-story tenement on our books on 33d street, between 6th and 7th avenues, with four rooms per floor—a parlor, two bedrooms and a kitchen. We get $20 for the first floor, $24 for the second, $23 for the third and $20 for the fourth—in all $87, or $1,044 per annum. The size of the building is only 21x55. We have a colored man who rents a house from us between the same avenues at $1,200 per annum, and pays his rent quarterly in advance, an unparalleled case with white people in a similar location. This tenant is steward of a club. Our colored tenants include a valet to a well-known hotel proprietor; a number of cooks, laundrymen and kalsominers; an employé of the United States government, a clerk in the office of the Standard Oil Company, etc. We find that the lower class of negroes will move frequently, but the better class will stay if the house is in any sort of repair. We are perfectly satisfied with them, and are glad to have them as tenants wherever the owners are willing to rent property to them."

The River and Harbor Bills.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

It has been the policy of THE RECORD AND GUIDE to condemn persistently and emphatically the niggardly and halting methods of our government in regard to the improvement of our rivers and harbors. You have pointed out again and again very forcibly the way other governments were aiding their internal commerce by constructing canals and increasing the efficiency of their waterways; and you have shown what substantial economic results followed therefrom. And you further stated that if the United States systematically pursued the same policy it would not be long before our citizens would be recompensed many times over for the money expended.

In view of these circumstances I thought you might be interested in recording the facts which I send with this letter. So many of our daily press continually assert that our River and Harbor Bills are merely log-rolling schemes, which result in little or no public good, that the following figures ought to receive as wide a circulation as possible. In a recent letter to the Wilmington Messenger, Capt. W. A. Bixby, of the United States Corps of Engineers, set forth of the advantages we derive from the improvement of our waterways. He says:

The rivers and creeks of the South Atlantic and Gulf States are, as a rule, streams of gentle slope, considerable length and moderate depth, obstructed mainly by sunken logs, snags, and fallen or overhanging trees. Were these latter obstructions thoroughly removed (usually readily done at a comparatively small cost) these rivers and creeks would at once appear in their new role of natural and economical navigable waterways, similar to and rivaling the artificial and more expensive canals of the Northern and Middle States. As soon as one of these streams is opened to commerce, the reduction in freight charges is so considerable as to encourage the rapid development of such towns as are already in existence along its length; and the certainty and cheapness of its freighting and traveling facilities authorize the establishment of continuous and extended settlements all along its banks over large areas of good land, until then so deprived of transportation facilities that the sale of farm products would not even pay the expenses of their transport to the nearest market. More than this, the removal of obstructions from the bed and banks of the stream facilitates the free movement of water in the stream and aids so greatly the natural drainage of the river bottoms and other adjacent lands, that land until then malarious and sickly becomes fit for habitation and culture.

As an example of this good work let us look at the results obtained in the States of North and South Carolina during the last few years preceding the 1st of July, 1887.

On the Trent River, N. C., since 1879, about $42,000 has been spent in opening up about forty miles of river, reducing freights by from 25 to 75 per cent., rendering marine insurance unnecessary, and increasing the commerce by $250,000 per year, thus showing a development of $6 of annual commerce for each dollar once spent by the government.

On the Contentnea Creek, North Carolina, since 1881, about $34,000 has been spent in opening up about thirty miles of river, reducing freights by from 12 to 50 per cent. and building up a commerce of $600,000 per year, thus showing a development of $17 of annual commerce for each dollar once spent by the government. Besides this, two towns on the creek bank have nearly doubled in population and property, and the whole river basin shows marked gains in settlement and prosperity.

On the Pamlico and Tar Rivers, North Carolina, since 1876, about $56,000 has been spent in opening up about sixty miles of river, reducing freights by from 12 to 25 per cent. and increasing the commerce by $1,800,000 per year, thus showing a development of $32 of annual commerce for each dollar once spent by the government. Besides this, the town of Washington, N. C., has increased 25 per cent. in population and property, and the town of Greenville has increased from 912 population and $266,000 real estate in 1880 up to 2,505 population and $600,000 real estate in 1886, the development of both these places since 1876 being almost entirely due to the river improvements.

On the Neuse River, N. C., since 1878, about $220,000 has been spent in opening up about 70 miles of river, reducing freights by from 25 to 75 per cent. (the freight on cotton being 75 cents per bale, where it was formerly $2.75 per bale by wagon and rail), rendering marine insurance unnecessary, and increasing the commerce by $1,800,000 per year, thus showing a development of $8 of annual commerce for each dollar once spent by the government. Besides this, the whole river basin is rapidly gaining in population and prosperity.

On the inland waterway from Newbern to Beaufort, N. C., at Beaufort Harbor, N. C., on the inland waterway from Beaufort Harbor, N. C., to New River, N. C., at New River, N. C., and on Black River, N. C., the present unfinished improvements will give returns at least equal to (if not exceeding) those of the preceding waterways.

A number of other illustrations equally pointed are adduced by Captain Bixby. The full amount of the money spent by the government in these cases was $2,338,000; and we have the captain's authority for the statement that the total increase in commerce resulting therefrom has been $14,450,000 per year, or over six dollars for every one expended by the government. It is time our legislators realized the meaning of such figures. A great deal more money should be laid out in these improvements. There is, doubtless, a limit to the amount that could be profitably expended, but there is no danger of that limit ever being reached, for the larger the sum grew the fiercer would become the opposition to any expenditure at all. It would not only be unwise, but it would be impossible for private capital to make these improvements. There would be no way of allowing it any return on their expenditure. The days of hampering commerce by tollgates are over, so there is no resource except government assistance.

To the facts recently given by you respecting the vast improvements foreigners are making in this direction the following may be added: "St. Petersburg is enjoying the benefits of its ship canal, and the great ocean steamers can run up into the Neva without previous lighterage, and Bremen is deepening the estuary of the Weser to keep abreast of Hamburg, Rotterdam and Antwerp. The great rivers of Germany—the Rhine, Elbe, Oder and Vistula—have been much improved by works of rectification; and latterly the German engineers have been following the example of their French colleagues who have been the pioneers in this matter, and have begun to improve the navigation of the smaller rivers by 'canalization' by means of movable dams. The river Main has thus been canalized, and the Rhine boats are able to run up to Frankfort with a draught of 6½ feet. At Frankfort a port has been built with quays, warehouses and granaries."

There exists on the continent of Europe an International Association for the Improvement of Inland Navigation, which is doing great work by bringing together men of science, engineers, government officials and business men to read and discuss papers on various points of general and special interest connected with the subject. A similar organization should exist in the United States. Clubs should be started all over the country for the purpose of throwing light on the matter, and forcing our politicians to give it its due importance. Fortunately, so far as can be at present judged, the incoming administration is favorable to the cause, and the next four years may see much done in the right direction. ENGINEER.

Conveyances, Honest and Dishonest.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

I believe I am among the oldest of your subscribers, having been one since the first issue of the paper. I have therefore taken the liberty of asking the space of your valuable paper for a few thoughts concerning real estate values, which I have always maintained, and of which I was more recently impressed by the letter of "Observer" in THE RECORD AND GUIDE of a late date, in which he mentions, with apparent approval, the increase of values in real estate, quoting four up-town lots selling January, 1886, for $23,000, resold a month later for $27,500, resold again in the same year for $36,000, and resold again in September, 1887, for $55,000, an increase of $32,000 in less than two years. Another plot, "Observer" also informs us, was sold February, 1886, for $30,000, and, after changing hands three times, was finally sold in December of the same year for $50,000, an increase of $20,000 in ten months. Still another plot showed an advance of $30,000 in nine months. I know nothing of the circumstances of these particular transactions, but I do know from experience that most of such transfers, showing such increases in values, are sham and delusive, the outgrowth of deals between grasping speculators and irresponsible builders, which is fast becoming a curse to honest enterprise and legitimate investment. It is just such bogus values that have driven one hundred and fifty thousand heads of families to seek homes in the surrounding suburbs of Brooklyn, New Jersey, Westchester County and elsewhere, all earning a living in the city and spending it out of it, while yet almost one-half of the land of Manhattan Island is lying vacant and unused, to say nothing of the immense vacant territory included within the city limits north of the Harlem River. It is, in my opinion, for the best interests of honest holders of land, for the future security and safety of their property, that they discourage and defeat, as far as possible, all bogus and delusive operations. Selfish greed and the possession of a pliable conscience may contribute to enrich an individual, but never a community of individuals, and no community was ever safe, happy and prosperous composed mainly of rich and poor; for the men who are neither rich or poor are the mainstay of orderly society everywhere, and it is a mighty shortsighted policy on the part of real estate owners to conduct their transactions regardless of the necessities and interests of this large class of our population. We must keep these people here within our own city, and to accomplish this owners of improved real estate must learn to be satisfied with 5 per cent. net on their investments, and then, with greater transit facilities, more permanent and lasting in character in both through and way travel, and with liberal laws and ordinances, fairly and equally administered, we will see the city advance on a career of prosperity far beyond our most sanguine anticipations.

CONSERVATIVE.

Our correspondent is perfectly just in his criticism of real estate speculators who falsify the deeds of this city by entering them for considerations beyond the actual price agreed upon between the buyer and seller. THE RECORD AND GUIDE has frequently called attention to this. It is not too much to demand that a law should be passed making it criminal for these official documents to be falsified. But "Observer's" article, as our correspondent will find on reverting to it, pointed to an increase in the values of vacant properties which had long been neglected; which were in reality worth much more than the prices at which they were purchased, and which were eventually sold to builders who improved them, and who actually sold the majority of the finished houses built upon them at a fair profit. The builders who purchased these vacant properties certainly paid the enhanced values with their eyes open, and that they were willing to give the figures stated shows that the values are not fictitious, especially as they have made profits on the ventures. Where a consideration is given in the deed and the price is the same as actually agreed upon between the parties and paid, it cannot be called a "bogus" figure; but where a consideration is given which is over and above the price agreed upon and paid—whether it be $500 or $50,000—it certainly is a "bogus" figure. It is the latter "Conservative" evidently refers to and which THE RECORD AND GUIDE has so frequently condemned, and it is the former which "Observer" gave instances of in his article of the 15th inst.

Bills Introduced Affecting Property.

The following is a list of bills affecting real estate introduced at Albany:

ASSEMBLY.

Bill No. 26, introduced by Mr. McCann, incorporating Manhattan Bridge Company, and allowing a bridge to be built over the East River.

Bill No. 28, introduced by Mr. Sullivan, permitting stages on Fulton, Wall and Cortlandt streets.

A Suggestion on Rapid Transit.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

In reference to your recent articles on rapid transit and overcrowding, I beg to propose the following: Branching off at the present station at 33d street and 6th avenue up along Broadway to 65th street; crossing the Ninth Avenue Elevated road at that street, as at 34th street and 2d avenue; thence along 10th avenue to 162d street, through Kingsbridge road, and, as soon as the new parks are laid out, to the proposed parade ground. Passengers will change at 68th street (just as they do now at 34th street and 2d avenue), from the Ninth to Sixth Avenue road, and vice versa. The advantage gained by this new road is that it will enable the 53d street branch to be taken down, thereby abolishing a great delay and danger. The Ninth Avenue road would then be independent from the Sixth, and neither would be in the way of the other. There will scarcely be a single objection, I think, from property-owners on the new line, as the properties on 3d, 6th and upper 8th and 9th avenues have increased so enormously since the elevated roads have been built. The lines I propose would be built in very quick time and at comparatively little cost. The 58th street branch could be run as now, taking in the 42d and 50th street stations. Stations could be created on Broadway at 38th street and 46th street, and at similarly equal distances north of these points. In connection with these changes and additions, I would suggest a branch eastern line running from the Harlem River at 3d avenue and along the river front to a point connecting with the west side elevated roads. Don't you see how valuable this would be? Think it out. NATHAN WISE.

Real Estate Exchange Matters.

The second meeting of the Committee on Legislation took place on Tuesday. Present: Constant A. Andrews, in the chair; Geo. De. Forest Barton, J. J. Clancy, Wm. Schermerhorn, W. M. Greve, Townsend Scudder, W. H. Folsom, Clermont L. Clarkson, G. S. Lespinasse, E. Oppenheimer, Garrett Nagle, A. J. Robinson, E. T. Young, W. M. Ryan, F. R. Houghton and W. C. Orr.

The Special Committee who called on the Mayor reported the result of their interview.

The Assembly returns up to the 17th inst. were read, and Mr. Creamer's act for the construction of railways relating to Broadway was referred to the Sub-committee on City Improvements. The Senate returns up to the 18th were also read, and Mr. Raines' bill to reduce interest on mortgages was referred to the Sub-committee on Pending Legislation.

Mr. Lespinasse offered a resolution to the effect that no new buildings should be constructed in the City Hall Park.

Mr. Deeves moved, as an amendment, recommending the present site of the old New Haven depot on Centre street and the "Toombs," for the new municipal building.

Several members rose to oppose this site. The general feeling of the committee evidently was in favor of not encroaching on the City Hall Park with a large building, but to have it very near the City Hall. No member favored Mr. Deeves' amendment, which was not seconded.

Mr. Orr moved to refer the matter to the Sub-committee on City Improvements, recommending that no vote be taken until their report be received. Mr. Lespinasse hereupon withdrew his motion, and Mr. Orr's amendment was carried. The report is expected next week.

The meeting then adjourned.

Amendment to the Sanitary Code.

Section 18 of the Sanitary Code has been amended by the Health Department to read as follows:

SECTION 18. That no owner or lessee of any building, or any part thereof, shall lease or let, or hire out the same or any portion thereof, to be occupied by any person, or allow the same to be occupied, as a place in which, or for any one, to dwell or lodge, except when said buildings or such parts thereof are sufficiently lighted, ventilated, provided and accommodated, and are in all respects in that condition of cleanliness and wholesomeness, for which this Code or any law of this State provides, or in which they or either of them require any such premises to be kept. Nor shall any such person rent, let, hire out or allow, having power to prevent the same to be used as or for a place of sleeping or residence, any portion or apartment of any building, which apartment or portion has not at least one foot of its height and space above the level of every part of the sidewalk and curbstone of any adjacent street, nor of which the floor is damp by reason of water from the ground, or which is impregnated or penetrated by any offensive gas, smell, or exhalation prejudicial to health. But this section shall not prevent the leasing, renting or occupancy of cellars or rooms less elevated than aforesaid and as a part of any building rented or let, when they are not let or intended to be occupied or used by any person as a sleeping apartment, or as a principal or sole dwelling apartment.

At President Hart's office yesterday afternoon a reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE was informed that the Court of Appeals has not yet given its decision relative to the laying of a cable road on the Third Avenue Surface Road. The decision is expected every time the Court sits, and should it be favorable the company will take early action.

Real Estate Department.

The market has been fairly active this week, both at public and private sale. There were some very important auctions of both improved and unimproved realty on the Exchange, as will be seen in the particulars given below and in our "Sales of the Week." In the brokers' offices, with the exception of a few good sales, no transactions of moment have transpired.

On Monday there were a few sales of property, but none of importance.

On Tuesday the Exchange was quite crowded, the offerings being mainly of vacant lots. The principal attraction was the sale of the Van Nest estate. This comprised sixty lots on the Grand Boulevard, 66th, 142d, 143d, 100th, 101st streets and 10th avenue. The prices obtained were considered good, but more than half the lots were knocked down to J. S. Draper and bid in. An important sale, held on the same day, was that of the property on Riverside Drive, the Grand Boulevard, 107th and 108th streets, comprising thirty lots belonging to the Curtis estate. The peculiarity of the sale consisted in the long strip running along the entire north side of 107th street, between the Drive and the Boulevard, which was left out of the block sold. This strip has a frontage of 12.2¼ feet on the Drive and 2.3¼ on the Boulevard, and affects seven street lots and two avenue corners. This valuable strip is owned by C. E. Tripler, and the Curtis estate have made considerable effort to purchase it, but Mr. Tripler has persistently refused. Amongst the purchasers were S. F. Jayne, representing Mr. Tripler, who bought the two corners affected by the strip, and this now gives Mr. Tripler a full-sized lot on each corner. Albert Bellamy purchased two lots for Samuel Colcord. Fleming Smith, who owns considerable property on the Drive, bought three more, while S. G. Bayne purchased some twelve lots opposite the residence built by him on the corner of Riverside Drive and 108th street. The price obtained for the Drive front, exclusive of the strip, was $97,550, and for the Boulevard front $64,800. The doubt as to the future character of the Boulevard seems to have had an effect upon the prices obtained.

On Wednesday there was comparatively little done on 'Change.

On Thursday a number of important parcels of improved realty were sold. These included properties on Broadway, Wooster, West and other down-town streets, under Supreme Court orders in partition. Messrs. R. V. Harnett & Co. and A. H. Muller & Son mainly occupied the attention of buyers.

On Friday little business was done at the Exchange.

On Tuesday, the 29th inst., Scott & Myers will sell the following real estate, by order of the assignee of James D. Fish: The valuable store properties at Nos. 180, 182 and 184 6th avenue, between 12th and 13th streets; the four-story English basement dwelling at No. 363 West 34th street; the handsome residence, with three-story extension, at No. 46 East 58th street; the three-story brown stone front house at No. 248 East 72d street; the three-story building, with spacious hall and stores, etc., known as "Association Hall," corner of 129th street and 4th avenue; an interest in dock property at Mystic Bridge, Conn., and a half interest in two lots in St. Paul, Minn. These properties, both in and out of the city, are all choice. The 6th avenue sale will be of interest to many surrounding property-owners.

On Tuesday next, the 29th inst., Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the six-story double tenement and store No. 189 Chrystie street, near Rivington street.

On Wednesday, the 30th inst., Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the five-story tenement and stores at No. 427 West 16th street; two lots, ready for building, on 98th street, between 9th and 10th avenues, and the tenement and store on the southwest corner of 11th avenue and 49th street. The latter is a trustee's sale.

On Tuesday, February 5th, A. H. Muller & Son will sell some valuable down-town properties, by order of the heirs of the late Lorillard Spencer. These comprise Nos. 525 Broadway, 104 Worth street, 498 Pearl street, 130 and 132 White street, 534 Greenwich street, 513 Washington street, 136 Prince street, 12 Allen street, 62 and 109 Canal street, 60 and 62 Eldridge street and 85 Hester street. This is one of the strongest lists of improved properties offered this season, and will undoubtedly attract a large crowd of investors and others.

On February 6th Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the property on the southwest corner of 2d avenue and 5th street.

The Lynch estate sale of property at the terminus of the Sixth and Ninth Avenue Elevated Roads, 155th to 157th streets, will be held on February 21st, not the 14th, by A. H. Muller & Son.

The first story and basement of each will be of brown stone and the floors above of brick and stone, and they will have steam heat, hardwood trim, etc., the whole costing about $80,000. Architect, A. Spence.

B. Finkensieper has plans for a three-story frame tenement, 25x55, to be erected on the north side of Palmetto street, 200 west of Central avenue, for Casper Vollhardt; cost, $5,000.

Out of Town.

BOSTON, MASS.—Plans for the new Stock Exchange, by Peabody & Stern, have been completed and approved, and work preparatory to building was commenced Friday. The capital stock, $3,500,000, has all been subscribed, and the building will cost over $2,000,000. It will not be completed for two years.

ELIZABETH, N. J.—The New Jersey Jockey Club has secured a plot of 112 acres within ten minutes' walk of the Union Station at this place, and ground is soon to be broken for a new race-course, to be under the management of Michael F. Dwyer.

ELIZABETH, N. J.—Emil Poda will build a two-story and attic frame dwelling here, 20x45 in size, on Fulton street, between 3d and 4th streets, to cost $2,800, from plans by R. Sailer.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—Real estate has been fairly active this year so far, but there has been more inquiry for renting and buying than at this time last year. A good spring market is anticipated. There is not so much building under way at present, but considerable will be done in the spring. One architect informed your representative that he has twenty-five houses ready to be commenced in two months in all parts of the city.

R. Sailer has plans on the boards for the following improvements: A two-story and attic frame dwelling, 20x48, to be built by Geo. Headden, on the south side of Academy street, near Tunnelle avenue, on the Heights, to cost $4,000; for alterations and interior changes to Jacob Ewald's residence on Wayne street, between Monmouth and Brunswick, to cost $4,500, and for alterations to Wm. Dorman's tenement at No. 152 Newark avenue, with a new brick building to be put up in the rear, fronting on Bay street, to be 25x47 in size, the whole to cost $12,000.

The extension to the Post-office has just been completed, and will be occupied for the first time to-morrow or on Monday.

Amongst the last batch of bills introduced at Trenton is an amendment to the mechanics' lien law, authorizing the sale of any article upon which a workman may have a lien, to defray the amount of the claim. It also authorizes the filing of liens for work or material, providing for a sale within ten days after the debt becomes due.

NEWARK, N. J.—Architect Frank F. Ward has plans for a two-story engine-house, 34x60, including extension for stable, to be built for this city on Springfield avenue, corner of Hunterdon street, at a cost of $8,000; building to be constructed of Hackensack and Roman brick, and fitted with bath, sleeping and dressing rooms. It will have a tin roof and be finished in yellow pine.

Special Notices.

The annual statement for 1888 of the United States branch of the well-known and firmly-established Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company, published in full in another column, shows a surplus of $3,000,527.28, with assets of $6,963,811.91. Of these $2,004,187.50 are in government bonds, $1,832,850 in loans on bond and mortgage, and $713,134.20 in cash. The liabilities include $2,968,464.79 in unearned premiums, $429,119.88 in unadjusted losses, and $336,315.85 in perpetual policy liability. Robert B. Minturn is chairman of the New York directors, and Henry W. Eaton the resident manager.

Contractors' Notes.

The Department of Docks will receive bids until noon, February 1st, for removing existing pier No. 7 at the foot of Coenties slip, East River, and building a new wooden one.

Sealed proposals will be received by the School Trustees for the 12th Ward until 4 o'clock, Thursday, February 7th, for the furniture required for the new building, Grammar School No. 54, at the corner of 104th street and 10th avenue.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—The only remarkable feature about the situation is that there should be any market in a wholesale way to report. With the river still open, however, and stock coming forward, trade keeps in motion to some extent, and the results reveal a pretty well preserved tone with full former rates ruling all around at the commencement of the present week, followed by a stiffening that now presents a higher average. Probably $7.50 might be considered the average top, but exceptionally $7.75 is claimed. As we write the market is bare and it is difficult to say how far there would be a balancing demand, as when there is nothing afloat buyers have a knack of appearing as though they did not care a farthing about the scantiness of the offering, but receivers have learned through recent experience to expect custom as soon as they have cargoes upon the market, and to obtain about ruling rates without much difficulty, as dealers do not care to draw upon their piles with much freedom. Indeed, the current expression of opinion indicates that in the majority of cases a pretty good idea is entertained of the general prospect, based upon the calculation that spring work will commence much earlier than usual and assume comparatively liberal proportions against a stock in manufacturers' hands that, by this time, must have run down to a great many millions less than at the corresponding period last year. Pales have been offered rather sparingly, and we understand mostly from Long Island, with a good offsetting demand that has brought a stimulus to values and put the price up to $3.50 per M, as probably now the lowest that anything could be reached.

CEMENT.—There is not much animation at this season on any outlet and to a certain extent the market is nominal. For imported goods there is a rather slack tone under two or three adverse influences, such as difficulty in the way of obtaining reasonable transportation to the interior, a light local demand and pretty full arrivals. The latter, however, are believed to be the finishing lots on old contracts and it is predicted that within a few weeks matters will change for the better. About former rates are asked at present. Domestic stock is meeting with fair winter demand, possibly a little fuller than usual if anything, owing to the open weather, and commands full previous rates readily. The total quantity of cement manufactured in the Rosendale district during 1888 was 2,262,984 bbls., or a falling-off of 75,760 bbls. as compared with 1887.

LATH.—The market is in stronger and better form, and has recovered from the temporary depression of last week. The local demand, we should judge from the tenor of most reports, did not manifest any great degree of interest in the situation, but such supplies as came over found custom elsewhere, first at $2.10 and thence along up to $2.20@2.25 per M, with a still higher rate suggested as most likely on the next arrival. When that will be is a matter of much surmise, for if no error of investigation has been made there is at the present time nothing afloat from either Maine or the Provinces, and stock in manufacturers' hands is said to be very limited. It may, however, be just as well to note that the upward turn of value has already attracted attention of interior holders, and certain indications lead to the impression that at a return above $2.25 per M here, offerings by rail would be very apt to increase.

LIME.—It has been a dull market, probably as much for want of stock as anything else, receivers feeling confident that supplies could have been placed if available, and of course previous prices are quoted. From the Eastward the reports indicate that while manufacturers are working to some extent the output is small and the present light shipments are principally of old lime.

LUMBER.—While the open weather during the early portion of the present month assisted the consumption of lumber to some extent, this result was probably confined to such work as was already under way and could be pushed right along. There has, however, been some hesitation about entering upon anything new of importance lest a sudden change, such as was experienced this week, might interfere to compel a temporary shutting down again. Stocks in yard have not fallen away to any extent, except in the case of a few particularly well-favored dealers, and there is in consequence a comparative indifference toward fresh offerings, though the coastwise arrivals, as a rule, found place without much difficulty, and some of the agents who are trying the position on supplies to be shipped by rail from interior points, claim to find evidences of growing interest leading them to hopeful feelings regarding the revival of trade as spring approaches. On values very few changes of a prominent character are noticeable. In view of the $3.00 per M export duty now imposed upon logs by the Canadian government, the following amendment to the Senate Tariff bill, secured just before final passage is of interest. It is added to Schedule D—wood and wooden ware—and reads as follows:

Provided that in case any foreign country shall impose an export duty upon pine, spruce, elm or other logs or upon stave-bolts, shingle wood or heading blocks, exported to the United States from such country, in excess of the duty fixed in this act upon the sawed lumber manufactured from logs of the kinds heretofore mentioned, then the duty upon the sawed lumber herein provided for when imported from such countries shall remain the same as fixed by law in force prior to the passage of this act.

We have received from the Northwestern Lumberman a copy of a neat and handy publication just issued from its press, entitled "New York Lumber Inspection and Directory of the Lumber Trade of New York and Vicinity." It embodies the hardwood inspection rules, yellow pine rules, etc., as well as a classified list of dealers in all branches of the trade, and will be found a useful book of reference for all who may be interested.

Eastern Spruce, since the pretty full arrivals just previous to our last, has had something of a nominal market. About all the stock then received found sale without apparent difficulty and at no sacrifice on the line of valuation for really desirable stock, with a probability that moderate amounts could again be placed wherever there was nothing to interfere with the berthing of vessels and reasonably prompt delivery, yet there is hardly a free open general demand, and receivers are just as well satisfied to have about seasonable conditions in the matter of shipments from primary points, etc., unless there be something in the way of large sticks to send forward. Valuations are quite generally made from a full former basis and can probably be supported without much difficulty. We quote at $14.00@15.00 per M for 6 to 9 inch and $15.50@16.25 for 10 to 12 inch, with specials at $16.50 @18.00 per M.

Piling remains steady, as most of the stock is in good hands and owners have no special reason for attempting to make a market. Some of them, too, have secured a few nice sales "for the season" during the past few weeks, as the open weather permitted dock building work to keep right along, and contracts are understood to have been closed for spring delivery.

Hemlock is reported upon in a somewhat irregular manner, but, as a rule, does not appear to be particularly active, and buyers are disinclined to invest except as a matter of necessity. The market, however, is kept well in hand, and the plane of values well sustained. We quote Joist at $11.50@12.00 per M; Boards at $12.00@12.50 per M; Timber $12.00 per M for 20-foot and under; $12.50 for 22 to 24 foot; $13.00 for 26 to 28-foot; $14.00 for 30 to 32-foot; $15.00 for 34 to 36-foot, and $16.00 for 38 to 40-foot.

White Pine, so far as immediate home demand is concerned, does not find much of a market, and neither the distribution into consumptive channels or agents who may be trying to place supplies by car loads meet with any very brilliant success. It is, however, always safe to make something of an exception in favor of box boards, for which a reasonably full demand now is likely to increase as general spring trade of all kinds expands and the use of packages become liberal, and a great many operators are firmly of the opinion that higher prices must ensue. We also hear a repetition of the claims for a good export trade, but it does not as yet show itself in any unusually liberal clearances. There does not appear to be much stuff selling to come forward from primary sources. We quote $17.50@19.00 for West India shipping boards; $20@29 for South American do.; $15.00@16.00 for box boards; $16.50 @17.50 for extra do.

Yellow Pine, according to market reports, is realizing to a very satisfactory extent the results hoped for through the recent efforts of manufacturers at the South and dealers here, both associations working harmoniously. It continues a somewhat difficult matter to obtain all the information necessary to fully reflect the condition of the market, both in the matter of sales and prices, but general indications lead to the inference that quite a little business is going on from day to day and that buyers gain no advantages, but, on the contrary, are in many cases compelled to bid higher rates. We quote Randoms, $19.00@21.00 per M; Specials, $20.00@21.50 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $21.00@22.50 do.; Dry do. do., $23.00@25.00 do.; Sidings, $13.00@14.00 do.; Cargoes, f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $13.00@15.00 for rough and $18.00@20.00 for dressed; Cargoes, f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $12.00@13.50 for rough and $19.00@21.00 for dressed.

Carolina Pine shows nothing really new. Some operators complain a little over the condition of trade, but those who have the experience of former seasons seem to think they are doing about as much as could be expected at this time, and calculate that the outlet will expand about as quickly as for any other description of stock. Prices are supported without difficulty on standard quality.

Hardwoods are generally ruling about steady for all leading descriptions, and, though without any special degree of animation, give promise of picking up. Walnut will probably have its best chance on the export outlet, though some of the trade entertain an idea that more will be wanted on home account than last season. Ash is spoken of in hopeful tones, and unless shippers have forgotten the results of forcing oak forward as they did last season, it is a desirable grade that has good chances. All hands, however, seem to expect great things of poplar as probably the best "all around" wood on the list and likely to meet with a broad demand, while the chances for a better control of the supply are claimed to be steadily improving. None of the domestic woods, it is thought, can interfere with the popularity of mahogany, unless the latter has a fancy valuation, and the trade is evidently in too shrewd hands to permit the latter result without full warrant. We quote by car lot as follows: Walnut $60@110 per M; White ash, $36@42 do.; oak, $36@42 do.; quarter sawed clear, $46@50 do.; maple, $25@31 do.; chestnut, $30@37 do.; cherry, $67@92 do.; white wood, $25@33 do.; elm, $20@23 do.; hickory, $50@80 do.

Shingles have an uncertain market and are in a great measure nominal. When any export trade can be caught, however, it is generally on a basis of pretty steady values for standard grades. Some very fair bunches of stock have arrived from the South during the month. We quote Cypress at $8@9.50 per M for 6x20 and Cypress large $10@16. Pine, $4.10@4.50 for 18-inch extra; $3.85@3.25 for 16-inch extra; and $4.50@5.50 for 16 and 18-inch stock Eastern shaved cedar $4@4.75 per M. Machine dressed cedar shingles quoted as follows: For 30 inch, $15@20 for A and $23@28.50 for No. 1; for 24 inch $13@15 for A and $17.00@19.00 for No. 1; for 20 inch, $8.75@9.50 for A and $11.00@12.00 for No 1

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

From the Northwestern Lumberman we make the following clippings:

Loggers, as a rule, are disappointed. Remembering that skidding can be carried on to better advantage when the ground is bare than when covered deeply with snow, the operators took time by the forelock and loaded their skidways. Skidding, however, is but half the battle. Hauling comes next, and that cannot be prosecuted with entire success without enough snow to make a good track. Ice roads are feasible, but it takes money to make them and a freezing temperature to sustain them. At present the outlook is very unfavorable. Cold weather persistently refuses to show itself. Yet there is a silver lining to the cloud. Benjamin F. Taylor used to lecture on "Failure, the Alphabet of Success." While the poor logging season will make many a logger disconsolate, it may turn out that the unfavorableness of the situation will be of benefit to the lumber industry. The mill men of the Northwest had got the bit in their mouths and were going at too rapid a gait. The open winter tugging at the rains may check them.

The Southern manufacturers will read of the poor logging season in the Northwest and swing their hats for joy. Providence is certainly smiling on them. Every week of soft weather in the white pine district means that, owing either to a reduced log output or advanced prices of White Pine lumber, yellow pine will have a better chance. And who will say that yellow pine doesn't stand in need of it?

The opinion is entertained by many that higher prices for white pine will rule the coming season. Unless the weather clerk gives us colder weather soon higher prices certainly will prevail. The dealers who have already contracted for their stock will be happy

In respect to actual logging conditions in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, it can be said that during the past week the minds of operators have swayed from glee to gloom. It will be observed that the Lumberman's reports this week mention sufficient falls of snow throughout Northern Wisconsin, from the eastern side of Chippewa River to the Menominee. Throughout this territory good work was being done. West of Chippewa River little snow had fallen, and hauling was seriously delayed. In the upper peninsula of Michigan there was also plenty of snow and good roads, and excellent work was being done on the Menominee, Escanaba, Ford and other streams. The snow belt also extended across the upper part of the lower peninsula, though the fall was lighter than further north and west. Fair work was being done, however, on the upper Manistee, in the Cheboygan district, Grand Traverse region, and on the lower Huron shore. A belt extending across the lower pine counties from Lake Michigan to Saginaw Bay lacked the requisite shipping facilities. In Minnesota and the St. Croix Valleys there was no snow to speak of.

Early this week the weather turned warm all over the Northwest, including the pine regions. There was also a powerful rain on Wednesday which terminated with snow in Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin, followed by a freeze-up.

The Lumberman also gives the first installment of figures representing the output of lumber and shingles from the white pine mills of the Northwest. Comparative figures for 1888, for the points named are as follows: Saginaw Valley—lumber cut, 786,375,696; on hand, 339,565,951; shingles cut, 196,983,000; on hand, 6,866,500. Manistee—lumber cut, 258,328,476 feet; on hand, 43,869,000; shingles cut, 433,131,750; on hand, 20,231,000. Grand Haven and Spring Lake—lumber cut 52,000,000 feet; on hand, 24,500,000; shingles cut, 41,275,000; on hand 6,578,000. Lake Erie points—lumber cut, 54,750,000 feet; on hand, 43,000,000. Ludington—lumber cut, 137,250,380; on hand, 17,139,000; shingles cut, 79,657,500; on hand, 2,314,000.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman as follows:

The men who have been predicting their hope of higher prices upon the possibility of a short log crop can find nothing in the present conditions to justify them in this confidence. The conditions have somewhat changed during the past week, and there is but a limited area now in which hauling is now going on under circumstances entirely favorable. These conditions have come about in the nick of time, when loggers generally have their winter's cut pretty thoroughly skidded, and when they can turn their attention entirely to hauling. It is almost an absolute certainly that there will be no shortage in the log supply, and that whatever curtailment is effected will be the result of a determination to bring about that result, and an early break up in the spring.

All in all, while there is no especial new or particularly positive indications different from those which have prevailed for the past six weeks, there is no occasion to change the opinion already expressed that there is nothing to cause apprehension of lower prices, and a great deal to justify the universal confidence in the future of trade in all its bearings.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The Timber Trades Journal as follows:

LONDON.

There probably never was a year which began with such an air of indecision about it as the present one. While in the north all is activity, and importers are clearing out the agents of their f. o. b. stock regardless of expense, on the south side of the kingdom trade is quiet, and importers do not show any inclination to stock themselves at the present advance in cargo prices.

Here in London the principal question is how to work off to advantage some of the heavy Baltic stocks which have accumulated during what has perhaps, without exception, been one of the dullest years ever experienced in the building trade.

American Black Walnut.—In both logs and lumber there is a fair inquiry, and some business is reported, but orders so far are not very large. Prices are generally maintained, and, as stocks are not so excessive, the prospects are alike cheerful and confident. It would seem that the bulk of business being done is for cut stuff of the better class, the lower grades being practically neglected.

American Whitewood.—In this, so far as the extent of business is concerned, the progress being made is regarded as satisfactory, and there is certainly an improvement in prices. There is very little lumber about, and the stock of logs also is also much reduced; consequently, shippers may now safely send further consignments to a moderate extent. We notice that much of the board stuff recently imported has been rough and sappy, but as for this class of stuff there is no inquiry its importation is not desirable.

American Satin Walnut.—Now that the dock stock is so greatly reduced the condition of the market has certainly improved, better prices being obtainable, but speculation on any large scale is carefully avoided.

The imports of American oak scantlings to the Clyde are expected to be exceptionally heavy this year; the amount of contracts already made for delivery exceed the usual imports, and these contracts are shared by all the importing firms.

NAILS.—Demand continues moderate and uncertain from most quarters, buyers still claiming that it is useless for them to hurry in the absence of any danger of any material advance in cost or scarcity of supplies. There is to be some more or less of an effort among manufacturers to lessen the output and stimulate prices, but it does not appear to materialize to any marked degree. We quote at $1.80@1.90 for car lots and $1.95@2.00 from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—"There is a little more business doing," was the reply to our inquiry for information received from quite a number of jobbers, and while the wholesale market does not, as yet, feel the influence to a positive degree, a proper start has been made that will, it is hoped, gradually bring more general animation into business. Supplies are, in most cases, in good shape and valuations sustained. Linseed Oil is also kept in hand and a steady tone sustained at 56@57c. for Western and 58@59c. for City. Spirits Turpentine has shaded off somewhat since our last and business runs rather slowly at 45¾@46½c. per gallon, according to quantity, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—The market remains dull and without feature of general importance. About former rates ruling, but no excess of stock offering. We quote Pitch at $1.25@1.50 per bbl.; Tar at $2.00@2.20, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

For tables of Building Material prices see pages IV. VIII., IX. and X.
